More About Our War
If France Runs Out
An Air War Coming?
The Emperor Entertains

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

NEXT TUESDAY New York will see the "first million-dollar gate" since the glorious Dempsey-Tunney days and New York is excited.

Hotels will be crowded, night clubs busy, airplanes even now are bringing fight enthusiasts from all over America.

If Europe wants to interest this country or get any position on "the front page" after next Monday morning, it will have to do something very much worth while.

P. S.—Surely too wise to bet, but you may like to know that one representing the "wise money," which means money of those that know what is "arranged," bet that Baer will knock out Joe Louis. The odds are three to one against that, and as Louis has never yet been hit VERY hard, some "wise money" bets on a knockout. The REALLY "wise money" will stay in its owner's pocket.

THE ETHIOPIAN emperor, who wants to visit the United States "after the present trouble is over," will be welcome, but this would be the time to come.

He would make a wonderful referee for the big fight, representing both sides of it, he the Semitic ruler of an Ethiopian African race.

If Baer should win, the emperor's branch of the human race would win, and if Louis should win, the emperor's people would win, which should make him impartial.

MANY ITALIANS would look upon the sending of British battleships, cruisers, destroyers, submarines and airplanes into the Mediterranean as "an act of war."

Europe wonders what England would do if after her demonstrations against Italy, she should suddenly find France NOT with her.

France has not forgotten how she was left to bear the brunt of 1914, before England had gathered an army, and might suddenly decide not to take part in a war against a sister Latin nation. In that case wise Britishers believe that their government "would withdraw regretfully into splendid isolation." England's choice is to fight with allies, as when she fought Napoleon, and before that when Marlborough won for her at Blenheim.

IT SEEMS to England "hardly cricket" when she reads of twenty-five Italian seaplane bombers in war formation flying within easy striking distance of the Suez canal and British ships gathered there. London reports "additional royal air force planes to gather at Gibraltar shortly."

If war comes, watch, and you will see the predicted air war.

HAILE SELASSIE, the Ethiopian emperor, gave a banquet to eighty assorted newspaper men and some of their wives at Addis Ababa, a good dinner. When the newspaper people bowed the emperor inclined his head "very slightly" and did not shake hands. George Washington also avoided shaking hands, and he was not an emperor, although he might have been.

The reporters ate from solid gold plates, but the electric lights went out often.

THE FLY in the British financial ointment grows bigger. London's stock exchange was most "uneasy," yesterday, important stocks dropping seriously. Some Americans will be glad to hear that cotton and copper were strong, but South Africa, which the British thoughtfully took from the Boers some time since, will probably supply any copper England needs. It is an advantage to have South African blacks work in your mines for ten dollars a month.

ITALO-ETHIOPIAN WAR IS EXPECTED WITHIN 30 DAYS

Diplomats Speculate As To Whether Another World Conflict Looms

MUSSOLINI TURNS DOWN LEAGUE PEACE PROPOSAL

Il Duce Is Disposed To Negotiate Dangerous Issue, However

LONDON, Sept. 21.—(AP)—The concensus of Europe's diplomats is that, barring the surrender of Mussolini to League of Nations pressure, the Italo-Ethiopian war will break out between September 29 and October 15.

The gravest of the ensuing questions, these troubled diplomats in Rome, Paris, Geneva and London said today, was whether hostilities could be localized or whether the African spark would ignite another world conflagration.

Mussolini's refusal to compromise, combined with the approaching end of the rainy season in Ethiopia, has converted Europe almost overnight from speculation on the likelihood of a colonial war to discussion of what nations may be involved.

The survival or collapse of the cumbersome post-war machinery of peace depends, in the view of British circles, on what Mussolini does in the next few critical weeks—or even hours.

Most official and diplomatic spokesmen in Europe's capitals agree that there is only the slenderest chance that Il Duce will turn back once his blackshirts have crossed the Ethiopian frontier—even if they penetrate only far enough to capture Aduwa, 25 miles inward.

Such an act of aggression, it is generally believed, would compel the league to swing into action with the

5 HURT BY HIT AND RUN DRIVER

Police Search For Man Who Wrecked Automobile After Accident

West Monroe police were searching last night for a hit-and-run driver who struck and injured two men, two women and a 16-months-old infant at Natchitoches and Seventh streets, and then wrecked his automobile three blocks away, making good his escape. The accident occurred about 7:30 p. m.

His name was known to the police but was withheld pending his apprehension, it was stated.

Those injured were: J. H. Thrasher and Miss Wordner Rue Speights, both of Choudrant, and Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Dunlap and baby daughter, Ethel Burns of West Monroe.

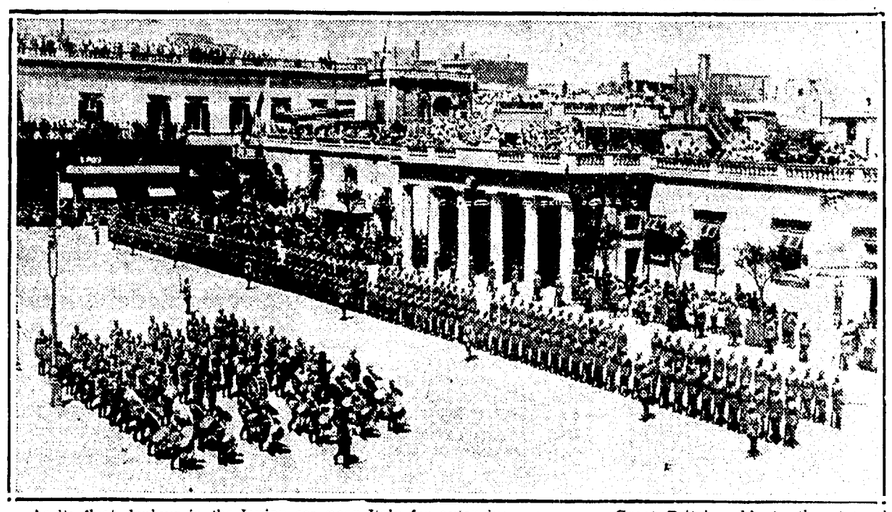

Mr. Thrasher suffered contusions of the back and right arm, Miss Speights had abrasions and contusions and the Dunlaps and their child were painfully bruised.

Thrasher and Miss Speights were taken to Riverside sanitarium for treatment, Miss Speights being allowed to leave after a medical examination and treatment. Thrasher, the more seriously injured, remained in the hospital.

CHICAGO MORON STRIKES AGAIN

Woman, 47, Is Near Death As Result Of Beating By Sex Maniac

CHICAGO, Sept. 21.—(AP)—Micaleo Iannella, 24, a taxicab driver, was identified tonight, Deputy Chief of Detective Walter Storms said, by one of the men whose wives were criminally assaulted as the sex madman whose recent series of sadistic attacks terrorized the western Chicago suburbs.

CHICAGO, Sept. 21.—(AP)—A brutal attack on a woman—the fourth attributed to a muttering maniac—spread terror anew through the west side today.

Miss Anna Swanson, 47-year-old employe of the Danish-American hospital, was found near death from a savage beating in a vacant lot early this morning. During brief interludes of consciousness she told authorities how a dark-complexioned man accosted her as she walked to work. He struck her a heavy blow on the jaw, she said, and dragged her into the weeds.

Her general description of the assailant corresponded with that of the madman who battered and assaulted two other women in the district and who was frightened off as he attempted to attack a third victim.

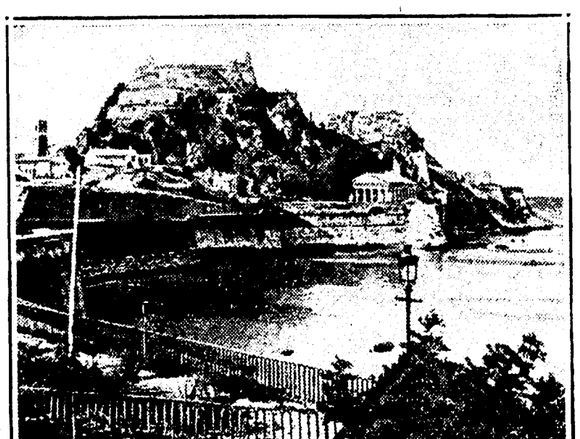

Dr. Lewis K. Eastman, who attended Miss Swanson at the hospital, expressed fear the shock might cause her death. He disclosed she had not been criminally assaulted but that her face and body had been badly bruised "by a sexual maniac of the worst type who derives satisfaction from seeing women suffer like this."

Officials were uncertain whether the moron has used a blunt instrument as well as his fists.

Detectives believed it was the same madman who stole into the apartment of a youthful bride early Thursday, bound and gagged her husband, forced the girl to disrobe and lashed her with a lead-longed quirt. On Aug. 17 an intruder of the same description—dark, slender and of medium height—perpetrated a similar attack on a woman tenant of the same building. His attempt to victimize a maid at a nearby home on

FLIER IS RACING OVER ATLANTIC

Felix Waitkus Speeds Through Rain And Fog Towards Lithuania

NEW YORK, Sept. 21.—(AP)—Flying through cold rain and fog, Felix Waitkus, trans-Atlantic flier, was believed to be somewhere over the north Atlantic tonight on a flight from Floyd Bennett field to Kaunas, Lithuania.

St. Johns, Newfoundland reported an unidentified plane passed over Harbor Buffett, Placentia bay, flying east, at 4:58 Newfoundland time (3:29 p. m., eastern daylight time).

Harbor Buffett is about 50 miles east of Bell island where a plane, believed to be Waitkus' was reported earlier.

Though he had no radio sending apparatus, the former army flier was equipped with a radio compass with which he can tune in on English or French stations for direction.

The radio station at Athlone, in the Irish Free state, was directed to transmit weather reports to aid the aviator during the first quarter of every hour. In Dublin, Ireland, the Free State radio station broadcast a special weather report and forecast after its usual closing hour.

No anxiety was felt for the flier's safety here. It was generally believed in Ireland that the aviator would arrive over that country about noon Sunday (9 a. m., Dublin standard time).

The weather favored the Kohler,

TROUBLE BESETS MOONEY HEARING

Warren K. Billings Threatens To Halt Action; New Witness Found

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 21.—(AP)—New complications loomed in Tom Mooney's habeas corpus bid for freedom tonight as court action to halt his hearing was threatened and another potential witness in his behalf appeared.

The court move was threatened by Warren K. Billings, who, like Mooney, is serving a life sentence for the 1916 San Francisco preparedness day bombing.

Marshall R. Spencer, 58-year-old odd jobs man of Oregon City, Ore., said he could support Mooney's claim that he was more than a mile from the bombing scene at the time the blast killed 10 persons and injured 40 others.

Frank P. Walsh of Mooney's counsel said Spencer's story was "interesting" but late—like many others which have been volunteered in the years since the bombing. Walsh said no decision had been made on whether Spencer would be brought here to testify.

2 SENTENCED FOR HELPING DILLINGER, HOMER VAN METER

CHICAGO, Sept. 21.—(AP)—Two men who harbored John Dillinger and Homer Van Meter were given suspended sentences of 11 months each today by Federal Judge William H. Holly and a third was remanded to Leavenworth penitentiary as a parole violator without further punishment.

Dr. Harold Bernard Cassidy, who aided Dr. Wilhelm Loeser in performing face-lifting operations on the desperadoes, and Arthur W. O'Leary, former investigator for Attorney Louis P. Piquett, drew suspended sentences because they aided the government in convicting Piquett of similar charges.

Dr. Loeser, who also assisted the prosecution against Piquett, was returned to Leavenworth.

Piquett, under sentence of two years imprisonment and a $10,000 fine for harboring Van Meter, is at liberty on bail pending an appeal.

Florida Troops Accused Of Thefts During Storm

MIAMI, Fla., Sept. 21.—(AP)—A military board of inquiry today heard a charge that national guardsmen failed to return an antique jewel box intrusted to their care by a storm sufferer after the Labor day hurricane.

The accused, Jack Rider, of Upper Matecumbe, in the heart of the storm stricken keys, testified he gave the guards at an Islamorade outpost two fishing rods, reels and the jewelry box.

"I got back the rods and reels in very bad condition, but I never saw the jewel box again," said Rider, who first told of recovering the articles from the ruins of his home.

"I treasured the box and its contents, not for its intrinsic value, but because of its connections."

While Rider sat nearby, the board called Lieuts. E. J. Ballard and A. R. Lindsey and Sargt. H. D. Wagner and Private Paul Hershey, all of whom had been on duty at Islamorade.

It was established the articles had been seen at the outpost, but the disposition of the jewel box was not learned.

The guardsmen were under orders, the board was told, to turn over to superiors all private property recovered during the guard's tour of duty in the storm-stricken keys.

Lieut. John J. Klein, revealing the order, said he had not observed guardsmen attempting to conceal articles found on the keys, as charged by two Monroe county deputy sheriffs previously testifying before the board.

"I turned over the shotguns and rifles to the deputy sheriff after insisting and finally getting a receipt for them," Lieutenant Klein testified concerning the Islamorade incident when a deputy insisted the evacuating guardsmen leave behind property obviously not part of their gear.

William Taylor, Miami boatman who appeared as a voluntary witness, praised the conduct of the guardsmen, as observed by him while he was engaged in relief work in the storm-lashed region.

NEW YORK, Sept. 21.—(AP)—Three armed bandits held up a jewelry store in broad daylight today at a busy midtown corner, one block north of Grand Central station and two blocks east of Fifth avenue, and escaped with an estimated loot in gems of $20,000.

The owner of the shop, Leo Gumbiner, his porter, and a customer were bound with picture wire and gagged while the gunmen, young and smartly dressed, rifled set and unset diamonds in the concern's safe.

The robbers ignored many thousands of dollars worth of other gems with which the showcases were packed.

The shop, D. Gumbiner, jeweler, long established at the corner of Vanderbilt avenue and East 46th street, is equipped with automatic-locking doors, which the owner failed to close in time.

GOVERNOR ALLEN FINDS HE KNOCKED UPON WRONG DOOR

Immediately after adjournment of the caucus of leaders of the late Senator Huey P. Long to select a slate for the January elections at a downtown hotel, Gov. Allen, the titular head of the organization, rushed from the conference rooms on the twelfth floor to the eighth floor. He was accompanied by a bodyguard.

As they stepped from the elevator they asked a bystander where room 578 was.

The bystander, thinking they were seeking the suite of Lt. Governor James A. Noe, who had just been kicked off the administration's slate for the governorship by the caucus, directed them to Noe's rooms.

The governor and his bodyguard moved on toward Noe's suite, but returned to the elevator immediately and the bodyguard firmly informed the bystander they were looking for room 578.

Harmonious Relations With Federal Government Pledged By Solon

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 21.—(AP)—Representative Cleveland Dear of the eighth Louisiana district, announced his candidacy today for governor in the January Democratic primary as the standard bearer of the anti-Long political faction.

His announcement declared in favor of restoration of local, self government and peace to Louisiana, harmonious relations with the federal administration and the repeal of all laws recently passed by the legislature "that seek to prevent expenditure of federal money in our state for relief, for public works and public improvements of any and all character."

He also declared for repeal of the

CENTENARY COACH DIES AT JACKSON

JACKSON, Miss., Sept. 21.—(AP)—E. T. Renfro, assistant football coach at Centenary college, Shreveport, La., died at a local hospital tonight shortly after 9:30 o'clock.

JACKSON, Miss., Sept. 21.—(AP)—Coach E. T. Renfro of Centenary college, Shreveport, La., was reported "losing ground" in his fight for life at a local hospital early tonight.

The assistant football mentor, a stalwart physical speciman, was said to be "slowly sinking" tonight from the ravages of blood poisoning, which started from an infected boil on his face.

Renfro was unconscious throughout the day, and blood transfusions were given, but attending physicians said tonight he was "not responding" to treatment, and it was apparent that he was losing strength.

Blood examinations this morning revealed a definite poisoning of the blood stream, and the poison is spreading.

A boil on the right side of his face was giving him trouble, but he had not considered it serious. Shortly after arriving in Jackson, he was stricken with a high fever; and was rushed to the Baptist hospital for treatment. The boil was operated on, but infection, which had already set in, developed into erysipelas, and spreading of the infection caused blood poisoning.

NEW DEAL ISSUE CLIMAX EXPECTED

1936 Tactics, For And Against Plan To Be Revealed Within Fortnight

WASHINGTON, Sept. 21.—(AP)—The fury of words over "constitutionalism" and "confidence" intensified this week, but more concrete evidence of the 1936 tactics for and against the New Deal awaits the fortnight ahead.

After months of paper work and speech-making, the Republican executive committee gathers here Wednesday to plan "early organization" and greater activity. A day or so following, President Roosevelt takes off on the much-planned transcontinental trip and its political opportunities.

A wealth of material is fresh at hand for each side. It is realized that recent developments portend a campaign based broadly on whether the New Deal is legal, and whether it has helped or hindered recovery.

Little other than supreme court sanction or nullification of a wide range of Roosevelt policy before June, or a startling turn by business in either direction, can greatly alter that prospect.

Spicing it are differences within the Republican party over how to deal with the agricultural issue. Because farm states are well represented on the executive committee, next week's meeting will be watched for any consideration of the AAA.

Arguments between the publicity departments of both parties about that extraordinary agency center just now on the "potato control" law. Holding President Roosevelt "directly responsible," G. O. P. headquarters said it is one and the same with the AAA philosophy, justice and economics.

Charles Michelson, Democratic publicity director, rejoined today that the administration "had nothing to do with" this law. He reminded that nine of 15 senate votes against it were Democratic.

The whole question may be threshed out again when congress reconvenes.

Secretary Wallace, at a time when some eastern growers were organizing against the compulsory potatoes-for-sale limitation, said enforcement could not begin until funds were specifically provided.

Demands for changed relief and budgetary policies confront the New Deal with alternatives of political importance, much as Republicans ponder the extent of AAA support. Conceivably the whole direction of the campaigning could be shifted by

Burglars Make Huge Haul In Theft At Los Angeles

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 21.—(AP)—Theft of nearly $500,000 in securities from the fashionable Bel Air home of George A. Hormel, millionaire canner, was disclosed today by police.

The thieves also took a valuable fur coat. Aside from that, authorities said, the big "haul" won't mean a thing to the robbers—the securities are described as non-negotiable.

"If the yeggs don't know it already," said Captain of Police Bruce Clarke, "they'll soon find out that they have a white elephant on their hands."

Captain Clarke said it was "plainly an outside job."

He said the theft, which was engineered by "jimmying" a second-story window of the big residence, occurred four days ago.

Mrs. D. T. Bonnell, Hormel's secretary, notified him of the break, the police captain related. Besides herself, two servants and a chauffeur were occupying the house.

The securities were in a closet in her quarters, the officer said Mrs. Bonnell reported. No attempt was made to conceal them, because of their lack of value to anyone but the present owner.

The stolen fur coat was hanging in the same closet, Capt. Clarke said. He expressed belief the thieves had stuffed the bonds and the coat in a pillow-case, found not far from the home.

The securities aggregated 30,000 shares.

At Austin, Minn., Hormel expressed amusement at the report that $500,000 in securities had been stolen. He expressed doubt that more than "a small amount of valuable paper" had been taken.

Hormel said he stopped the transfer of ownership of all his securities because he was not sure what stocks might have been involved. This, he said, probably caused reports of the large loss.

JIMMY NOE NOT ON SLATE NAMED BY ALLEN GROUP

Monroe Man Threatens To Run For Chief Executive As Independent

EARL LONG AND ELLENDER GIVEN PLACES ON TICKET

Wade Martin Is Chosen To Take Huey Long's Place For Short Term

By Ralph Wheatley
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 21.—(AP)—Lieutenant-Governor James A. Noe, an embittered lieutenant in the Huey Long political machine, tonight threatened to split the organization by running as an independent candidate for governor after he had been rebuffed by the faction's caucus, which selected Judge Richard W. Leche as the administration's candidate for governor.

Several hours before Noe's threat, Congressman Cleveland Dear announced his candidacy for governor on the anti-Long ticket.

Several days ago Noe announced his candidacy for governor with the asserted support of Governor Allen and after the caucus had thrown him entirely off the ticket, he said:

"My position is unchanged. I've already announced for governor on the Huey P. Long share our wealth platform and my announcement stands. I'm going to run. My friends are sticking by me."

But in defying the Long party in his proposed independent campaign, Noe was deserted by the Rev. Gerald L. K. Smith, national organizer of the "share the wealth" society, and Wade O. Martin, who announced their support of him when Noe jumped the gun and announced his candidacy ahead of the caucus.

The Rev. Mr. Smith, who was credited with getting Noe to announce prematurely, said in a statement that he would support the Allen administration ticket because of their "platform of the share our wealth society."

"I shall always respect Mr. James A. Noe as a friend and as a citizen, but there comes a time in every man's life when he must choose between the personal ambitions of a man and the life of an organization."

Wade Martin said he would support the administration ticket and had accepted the candidacy for the senate to fill the unexpired term of Senator Long.

Judge Leche, of the court of appeal and former secretary of Gov. Allen, was chosen as a compromise candidate between the rivalry of Noe and Allen Ellender, speaker of the house.

Ellender was appeased by being put forward as the candidate for the full senate term beginning in January 1937 and Noe was punished by being kicked entirely off the ticket because he attempted to jump ahead of the caucus.

Noe was extremely bitter and walked about the hotel conferring with groups of his friends. But after the

MOTHER AND SON FOUND GUILTY IN SLAYING OF WIFE

FRANKLIN, Ga., Sept. 21.—(AP)—A 70-year-old woman and her 25-year-old son today were found guilty of slaying the son's wife. The mother was sentenced to life imprisonment and the son to the electric chair.

The mother and son were tried jointly.

The jury found both guilty, but recommended mercy for the woman, who cried out at hearing the verdict:

"God knows I am not guilty. I'm innocent." The son was sentenced to die Oct. 25.

The state introduced testimony that the elderly woman and her son had treated young Mrs. Wynen cruelly.

MOTHER OF ROOSEVELT CELEBRATES BIRTHDAY

The presidential family gathered for the occasion but the smiling, active Mrs. Roosevelt insisted that she had celebrated her birthday with Elliott Roosevelt, second son of the president, at the family reunion last Sunday.

So, today was just another day for Mrs. Roosevelt and candles were not even lighted on the cake tonight as was the way she wanted it to be.

Officials were uncertain whether the moron has used a blunt instrument as well as his fists.

Detectives believed it was the same madman who stole into the apartment of a youthful bride early Thursday, bound and gagged her husband, forced the girl to disrobe and lashed her with a lead-loaded quirt. On Aug. 17 an intruder of the same description—dark, slender and of medium height—perpetrated a similar attack on a woman tenant of the same building. His attempt to victimize a maid at a nearby home on

FLIER IS RACING OVER ATLANTIC

Felix Waitkus Speeds Through Rain And Fog Towards Lithuania

NEW YORK, Sept. 21.—(AP)—Flying through cold rain and fog, Felix Waitkus, trans-Atlantic flier, was believed to be somewhere over the north Atlantic tonight on a flight from Floyd Bennett field to Kaunas, Lithuania.

St. Johns, Newfoundland reported an unidentified plane passed over Harbor Buffett, Placentia bay, flying east, at 4:58 Newfoundland time (3:29 p. m., eastern daylight time).

Harbor Buffett is about 50 miles east of Bell island where a plane, believed to be Waitkus' was reported earlier.

Though he had no radio sending apparatus, the former army flier was equipped with a radio compass with which he can tune in on English or French stations for direction.

The radio station at Athlone, in the Irish Free state, was directed to transmit weather reports to aid the aviator during the first quarter of every hour. In Dublin, Ireland, the Free State radio station broadcast a special weather report and forecast after its usual closing hour.

No anxiety was felt for the flier's safety here. It was generally believed in Ireland that the aviator would arrive over that country about noon Sunday (9 a. m., Dublin standard time).

NEW YORK, Sept. 21.—(AP)—Three armed bandits held up a jewelry store in broad daylight today at a busy midtown corner, one block north of Grand Central station and two blocks east of Fifth avenue, and escaped with an estimated loot in gems of $20,000.

The owner of the shop, Leo Gumbiner, his porter, and a customer were bound with picture wire and gagged while the gunmen, young and smartly dressed, rifled set and unset diamonds in the concern's safe.

The robbers ignored many thousands of dollars worth of other gems with which the showcases were packed.

TROUBLE BESETS MOONEY HEARING

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 21.—(AP)—New complications loomed in Tom Mooney's habeas corpus bid for freedom tonight as court action to halt his hearing was threatened and another potential witness in his behalf appeared.

The court move was threatened by Warren K. Billings, who, like Mooney, is serving a life sentence for the 1916 San Francisco preparedness day bombing.

Marshall R. Spencer, 58-year-old odd jobs man of Oregon City, Ore., said he could support Mooney's claim that he was more than a mile from the bombing scene at the time the blast killed 10 persons and injured 40 others.

Frank P. Walsh of Mooney's counsel said Spencer's story was "interesting" but late—like many others which have been volunteered in the years since the bombing. Walsh said no decision had been made on whether Spencer would be brought here to testify.

GOVERNOR ALLEN FINDS HE KNOCKED UPON WRONG DOOR

Immediately after adjournment of the caucus of leaders of the late Senator Huey P. Long to select a slate for the January elections at a downtown hotel, Gov. Allen, the titular head of the organization, rushed from the conference rooms on the twelfth floor to the eighth floor. He was accompanied by a bodyguard.

As they stepped from the elevator they asked a bystander where room 578 was.

The bystander, thinking they were seeking the suite of Lt. Governor James A. Noe, who had just been kicked off the administration's slate for the governorship by the caucus, directed them to Noe's rooms.

The governor and his bodyguard moved on toward Noe's suite, but returned to the elevator immediately and the bodyguard firmly informed the bystander they were looking for room 578.

Florida Troops Accused Of Thefts During Storm

MIAMI, Fla., Sept. 21.—(AP)—A military board of inquiry today heard a charge that national guardsmen failed to return an antique jewel box intrusted to their care by a storm sufferer after the Labor day hurricane.

The accused, Jack Rider, of Upper Matecumbe, in the heart of the storm stricken keys, testified he gave the guards at an Islamorade outpost two fishing rods, reels and the jewelry box.

"I got back the rods and reels in very bad condition, but I never saw the jewel box again," said Rider, who first told of recovering the articles from the ruins of his home.

"I treasured the box and its contents, not for its intrinsic value, but because of its connections."

While Rider sat nearby, the board called Lieuts. E. J. Ballard and A. R. Lindsey and Sargt. H. D. Wagner and Private Paul Hershey, all of whom had been on duty at Islamorade.

It was established the articles had been seen at the outpost, but the disposition of the jewel box was not learned.

The guardsmen were under orders, the board was told, to turn over to superiors all private property recovered during the guard's tour of duty in the storm-stricken keys.

Lieut. John J. Klein, revealing the order, said he had not observed guardsmen attempting to conceal articles found on the keys, as charged by two Monroe county deputy sheriffs previously testifying before the board.

"I turned over the shotguns and rifles to the deputy sheriff after insisting and finally getting a receipt for them," Lieutenant Klein testified concerning the Islamorade incident when a deputy insisted the evacuating guardsmen leave behind property obviously not part of their gear.

William Taylor, Miami boatman who appeared as a voluntary witness, praised the conduct of the guardsmen, as observed by him while he was engaged in relief work in the storm-lashed region.

2 SENTENCED FOR HELPING DILLINGER, HOMER VAN METER

CHICAGO, Sept. 21.—(AP)—Two men who harbored John Dillinger and Homer Van Meter were given suspended sentences of 11 months each today by Federal Judge William H. Holly and a third was remanded to Leavenworth penitentiary as a parole violator without further punishment.

Dr. Harold Bernard Cassidy, who aided Dr. Wilhelm Loeser in performing face-lifting operations on the desperadoes, and Arthur W. O'Leary, former investigator for Attorney Louis P. Piquett, drew suspended sentences because they aided the government in convicting Piquett of similar charges.

Dr. Loeser, who also assisted the prosecution against Piquett, was returned to Leavenworth.

Piquett, under sentence of two years imprisonment and a $10,000 fine for harboring Van Meter, is at liberty on bail pending an appeal.

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 21.—(AP)—Representative Cleveland Dear of the eighth Louisiana district, announced his candidacy today for governor in the January Democratic primary as the standard bearer of the anti-Long political faction.

His announcement declared in favor of restoration of local, self government and peace to Louisiana, harmonious relations with the federal administration and the repeal of all laws recently passed by the legislature "that seek to prevent expenditure of federal money in our state for relief, for public works and public improvements of any and all character."

He also declared for repeal of the

CENTENARY COACH DIES AT JACKSON

JACKSON, Miss., Sept. 21.—(AP)—Coach E. T. Renfro of Centenary college, Shreveport, La., was reported "losing ground" in his fight for life at a local hospital early tonight.

The assistant football mentor, a stalwart physical speciman, was said to be "slowly sinking" tonight from the ravages of blood poisoning, which started from an infected boil on his face.

Renfro was unconscious throughout the day, and blood transfusions were given, but attending physicians said tonight he was "not responding" to treatment, and it was apparent that he was losing strength.

Blood examinations this morning revealed a definite poisoning of the blood stream, and the poison is spreading.

A boil on the right side of his face was giving him trouble, but he had not considered it serious. Shortly after arriving in Jackson, he was stricken with a high fever; and was rushed to the Baptist hospital for treatment. The boil was operated on, but infection, which had already set in, developed into erysipelas, and spreading of the infection caused blood poisoning.

NEW DEAL ISSUE CLIMAX EXPECTED

1936 Tactics, For And Against Plan To Be Revealed Within Fortnight

WASHINGTON, Sept. 21.—(AP)—The fury of words over "constitutionalism" and "confidence" intensified this week, but more concrete evidence of the 1936 tactics for and against the New Deal awaits the fortnight ahead.

After months of paper work and speech-making, the Republican executive committee gathers here Wednesday to plan "early organization" and greater activity. A day or so following, President Roosevelt takes off on the much-planned transcontinental trip and its political opportunities.

A wealth of material is fresh at hand for each side. It is realized that recent developments portend a campaign based broadly on whether the New Deal is legal, and whether it has helped or hindered recovery.

Little other than supreme court sanction or nullification of a wide range of Roosevelt policy before June, or a startling turn by business in either direction, can greatly alter that prospect.

Spicing it are differences within the Republican party over how to deal with the agricultural issue. Because farm states are well represented on the executive committee, next week's meeting will be watched for any consideration of the AAA.

Arguments between the publicity departments of both parties about that extraordinary agency center just now on the "potato control" law. Holding President Roosevelt "directly responsible," G. O. P. headquarters said it is one and the same with the AAA philosophy, justice and economics.

Charles Michelson, Democratic publicity director, rejoined today that the administration "had nothing to do with" this law. He reminded that nine of 15 senate votes against it were Democratic.

The whole question may be threshed out again when congress reconvenes.

Secretary Wallace, at a time when some eastern growers were organizing against the compulsory potatoes-for-sale limitation, said enforcement could not begin until funds were specifically provided.

Demands for changed relief and budgetary policies confront the New Deal with alternatives of political importance, much as Republicans ponder the extent of AAA support. Conceivably the whole direction of the campaigning could be shifted by

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 21.—(AP)—Theft of nearly $500,000 in securities from the fashionable Bel Air home of George A. Hormel, millionaire canner, was disclosed today by police.

The thieves also took a valuable fur coat. Aside from that, authorities said, the big "haul" won't mean a thing to the robbers—the securities are described as non-negotiable.

"If the yeggs don't know it already," said Captain of Police Bruce Clarke, "they'll soon find out that they have a white elephant on their hands."

Captain Clarke said it was "plainly an outside job."

He said the theft, which was engineered by "jimmying" a second-story window of the big residence, occurred four days ago.

Mrs. D. T. Bonnell, Hormel's secretary, notified him of the break, the police captain related. Besides herself, two servants and a chauffeur were occupying the house.

The securities were in a closet in her quarters, the officer said Mrs. Bonnell reported. No attempt was made to conceal them, because of their lack of value to anyone but the present owner.

The stolen fur coat was hanging in the same closet, Capt. Clarke said. He expressed belief the thieves had stuffed the bonds and the coat in a pillow-case, found not far from the home.

The securities aggregated 30,000 shares.

At Austin, Minn., Hormel expressed amusement at the report that $500,000 in securities had been stolen. He expressed doubt that more than "a small amount of valuable paper" had been taken.

Hormel said he stopped the transfer of ownership of all his securities because he was not sure what stocks might have been involved. This, he said, probably caused reports of the large loss.

JIMMY NOE NOT ON SLATE NAMED BY ALLEN GROUP

Wade Martin Is Chosen To Take Huey Long's Place For Short Term

(Associated Press Staff Writer)

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 21.—(AP)—Lieutenant-Governor James A. Noe, an embittered lieutenant in the Huey Long political machine, tonight threatened to split the organization by running as an independent candidate for governor after he had been rebuffed by the faction's caucus, which selected Judge Richard W. Leche as the administration's candidate for governor.

Several hours before Noe's threat, Congressman Cleveland Dear announced his candidacy for governor on the anti-Long ticket.

Several days ago Noe announced his candidacy for governor with the asserted support of Governor Allen and after the caucus had thrown him entirely off the ticket, he said:

"My position is unchanged. I've already announced for governor on the Huey P. Long share our wealth platform and my announcement stands. I'm going to run. My friends are sticking by me."

But in defying the Long party in his proposed independent campaign, Noe was deserted by the Rev. Gerald L. K. Smith, national organizer of the "share the wealth" society, and Wade O. Martin, who announced their support of him when Noe jumped the gun and announced his candidacy ahead of the caucus.

The Rev. Mr. Smith, who was credited with getting Noe to announce prematurely, said in a statement that he would support the Allen administration ticket because of their "platform of the share our wealth society."

"I shall always respect Mr. James A. Noe as a friend and as a citizen, but there comes a time in every man's life when he must choose between the personal ambitions of a man and the life of an organization."

Wade Martin said he would support the administration ticket and had accepted the candidacy for the senate to fill the unexpired term of Senator Long.

Judge Leche, of the court of appeal and former secretary of Gov. Allen, was chosen as a compromise candidate between the rivalry of Noe and Allen Ellender, speaker of the house.

Ellender was appeased by being put forward as the candidate for the full senate term beginning in January 1937 and Noe was punished by being kicked entirely off the ticket because he attempted to jump ahead of the caucus.

Noe was extremely bitter and walked about the hotel conferring with groups of his friends. But after the

MOTHER AND SON FOUND GUILTY IN SLAYING OF WIFE

FRANKLIN, Ga., Sept. 21.—(AP)—A 70-year-old woman and her 25-year-old son today were found guilty of slaying the son's wife. The mother was sentenced to life imprisonment and the son to the electric chair.

The mother and son were tried jointly.

The jury found both guilty, but recommended mercy for the woman, who cried out at hearing the verdict:

"God knows I am not guilty. I'm innocent." The son was sentenced to die Oct. 25.

The state introduced testimony that the elderly woman and her son had treated young Mrs. Wynen cruelly.

MOTHER OF ROOSEVELT CELEBRATES BIRTHDAY

The presidential family gathered for the occasion but the smiling, active Mrs. Roosevelt insisted that she had celebrated her birthday with Elliott Roosevelt, second son of the president, at the family reunion last Sunday.

So, today was just another day for Mrs. Roosevelt and candles were not even lighted on the cake tonight. It was the way she wanted it to be.

Dr. Herbert Yeuell Will Speak At First Christian Church Here

Dr. Herbert Yeuell, of Washington, D. C., will present a lecture at the First Christian church at 7:45 o'clock tonight on the world-renowned Passion Play at Oberammergau. This speaker, a native of England, was educated at Bethany college in West Virginia and is a post-graduate of a London college. He attended the Passion Play for three seasons, in 1910, 1922, and 1930 and during these times he took his own pictures.

The first part of the lecture will comprise a character study of the people as he met and knew them. The second part is the interpretation of the Passion Play and the speaker impersonates the leading characters, especially Judas Iscariot, giving his lines as he speaks them in the play in the scene of his remorse when he discovers what he had done in the betrayal of Christ.

The 1930 presentation of the Passion Play in Oberammergau was attended by 386,000 persons at 76 presentations. The theater, 200 by 150 feet, accommodates 5,386 persons and no more are allowed to enter. The mammoth stage, 150 feet wide by 125 deep, is divided into several scenes, which are used in rotation.

RODESSA FIELD AGAIN EXTENDED

SHREVEPORT, La., Sept. 21.—(AP)—Extending the Rodessa field slightly to the northwest, the O'Brien brothers' Rodessa Oil and Land company No. 1 test in NW SW section 14-23-16 was completed at 7:15 p. m. today flowing at the rate of 260 barrels per hour on one-inch choke on casing.

Total depth of the test is 6,022. Casing pressure is 275 pounds and tubing pressure 200 pounds. The production is two per cent. Oil men in the Rodessa area are confident that the salt water is a result of the Haynes' Otwell No. 1 salt water production and believe that the salt water will disappear as soon as the Otwell is plugged. The salt water showed up in the O'Brien test as soon as it was brought in, indicating seepage from the Otwell No. 1.

The O'Brien well was to be allowed to flow all night and if there continues to be evidence of water tomorrow, it will be shut down until Haynes succeeds in plugging back his test. The latter test cut the liner in two places Saturday and an attempt was being made to pull the liner.

The newest well in the field is two and one-half miles from the Arkansas line and and an equal distance from the Texas line.

Pelican Oil and Gasoline company's Sexton No. 1, one-half mile due east of the O'Brien well, is expected to be a completion tomorrow. Crews started washing it in at 9 p. m. today. A week ago this test was completed making about 60,000,000 cubic feet of gas daily, with a spray of 85 barrels of oil per hour. Twenty-five feet of the upper gas sand was cased off in an effort to cut the gas flow and allow the oil a chance to get out.

BANDITS USE NEW METHOD IN HOLD-UP

GAYLESVILLE, Fla., Sept. 21.—(AP)—A new method of approach and escape from a bank was employed here today by robbers in holding up the Bank of Gaylesville and escaping with approximately $400.

Two young men entered the bank about noon and covering J. H. Mitchell, cashier, with pistols forced him in to the vault.

With the cashier in the vault the pair ransacked the tills, but overlooked "a substantial amount of currency and silver," Mitchell said.

Persons on the street said the two men alighted from a car driven by a woman, and others who saw them leave said they were picked up by a man driving a car of different color and make.

Authorities who answered Mitchell's alarm, said the robbers apparently were trying to confuse the trail by using two cars.

Mitchell gave the alarm, emerging from the vault which he said the robbers apparently thought they had locked but failed to do so.

Interesting Changes In New Men's Clothes

Alongside the new fall suits a man's present wardrobe is apt to look disturbingly behind the style trends. For so many new, interesting changes appear in both the single and double breasted models.

The variety of treatments were evolved only after a sound analysis of public tastes and needs. They meet the requirements of every man—from the smartest to the most conservative dresser.

The New Long Roll Lapel.

Double breasted suits will tap a vast reservoir of masculine interest this season with the advent of the rolled-to-the-bottom-button model, as illustrated here. It's a British origination which is rapidly being adopted by well-dressed men of America. Note the graceful curve of the lapel that has been skilfully fashioned and molded to meet the lower button.

The middle button may be used though the garment is most handsome when only the bottom button is fastened. The lapels are cut wider; the waistline is set lower; the jacket lengthened a trifle and the sleeves trimly tapered. The whole effect tends to "build up" the chest and shoulders. By the same token, the illusion of a slimmer waist and added height is created.

Side vents contribute to the easy, informal air and extreme comfort of this model. They are very smart and lessen the crumpled appearance of the jacket when hands are in the trousers pockets.

Side Vents are Smart.

A well balanced wardrobe should include the three button, single breasted suit. In my travels through style centers I observed this model quite frequently. Young men especially, will welcome its soft front, high roll lapels and its trim, athletic lines.

Be on the watch for the latest custom cut lapels. They resemble notch lapels but differ in that the notch opening is much narrower. It's a distinctive innovation.

Many of the better grade garments have broader sleeve heads and high arm holes. Combined, these features grant the wearer more freedom and comfort; prevent the back of the coat from riding up; and produce a broad-shouldered outline without the sacrifice of smart lines at the chest, shoulder blades and waist.

the party positions when the decisions can no longer be deferred.

By the president's side on his western trip will be Secretary Ickes and Relief Administrator Harry L. Hopkins. Presumably, through direct contact with the unemployment problem as various states are visited, an attempt will be made to reconcile their disagreements finally.

Other late developments also promise to focus the question. Federal spending bulks large in the survey planned by the Chamber of Commerce of the United States of business sentiment toward the New Deal.

With sentiment among its membership that confidence is impaired by "trends" since 1932, the result of the survey cannot help but present possibilities of political use.

Again, General Hugh S. Johnson's plan to stump the country as a friendly but stern administration critic is expected at least to dramatize the conflict within Roosevelt ranks. He is known not to share the American Liberty league viewpoint that much recent legislation is unconstitutional, basing his objections on what he terms "the futility" of some policies.

President Roosevelt this week left it to Secretary Roper to state the administration position both on the constitutional and recovery arguments. On the former, it was merely to ask—if the constitution does not permit federal solution of a national emergency—do the voters want amendment? On the latter, business improvement was attributed directly to action by the administration.

GERMAN YOUTHS ATTACK LITTLE GIRLS IN FRANCE

METZ, France, Sept. 21.—(AP)—Metz police reported tonight that one girl had been stabbed when eight members of the Hitler youth organization crossed the frontier from Germany and attacked a group of French children.

Police said investigation showed the Hitler youth members approached the French children, who were tending cows, and told them that they "soon will be Germans again."

FALL EQUINOX IS SCHEDULED TODAY

Days And Nights Of Equal Length All Over The Globe

The autumn season of 1935 officially begins today at 6:39 p. m., according to the almanac. The fall equinox also is here. Then it is that the days and nights are of equal length all over the world.

Owing to the inclination of the axis, on which the earth rotates, as it journeys around the sun, the portion of the surface which is lighted by the sun's rays varies, but at the equinox the sun apparently describes the equatorial circle and exactly one-half of each parallel is illuminated.

At the vernal equinox in March the sun passes from south to north which results in the days lengthening in the northern hemisphere and from north to south in the autumn when days shorten.

PASSION PLAY IS LECTURE TOPIC

Dr. Herbert Yeuell Will Speak At First Christian Church Here

Dr. Herbert Yeuell, of Washington, D. C., will present a lecture at the First Christian church at 7:45 o'clock tonight on the world-renowned Passion Play at Oberammergau. This speaker, a native of England, was educated at Bethany college in West Virginia and is a post-graduate of a London college. He attended the Passion Play for three seasons, in 1910, 1922, and 1930 and during these times he took his own pictures.

The first part of the lecture will comprise a character study of the people as he met and knew them. The second part is the interpretation of the Passion Play and the speaker impersonates the leading characters, especially Judas Iscariot, giving his lines as he speaks them in the play in the scene of his remorse when he discovers what he had done in the betrayal of Christ.

The 1930 presentation of the Passion Play in Oberammergau was attended by 386,000 persons at 76 presentations. The theater, 200 by 150 feet, accommodates 5,386 persons and no more are allowed to enter. The mammoth stage, 150 feet wide by 125 deep, is divided into several scenes, which are used in rotation.

RODESSA FIELD AGAIN EXTENDED

SHREVEPORT, La., Sept. 21.—(AP)—Extending the Rodessa field slightly to the northwest, the O'Brien brothers' Rodessa Oil and Land company No. 1 test in NW SW section 14-23-16 was completed at 7:15 p. m. today flowing at the rate of 260 barrels per hour on one-inch choke on casing.

Total depth of the test is 6,022. Casing pressure is 275 pounds and tubing pressure 200 pounds. The production is two per cent. Oil men in the Rodessa area are confident that the salt water is a result of the Haynes' Otwell No. 1 salt water production and believe that the salt water will disappear as soon as the Otwell is plugged. The salt water showed up in the O'Brien test as soon as it was brought in, indicating seepage from the Otwell No. 1.

The O'Brien well was to be allowed to flow all night and if there continues to be evidence of water tomorrow, it will be shut down until Haynes succeeds in plugging back his test. The latter test cut the liner in two places Saturday and an attempt was being made to pull the liner.

The newest well in the field is two and one-half miles from the Arkansas line and and an equal distance from the Texas line.

Pelican Oil and Gasoline company's Sexton No. 1, one-half mile due east of the O'Brien well, is expected to be a completion tomorrow. Crews started washing it in at 9 p. m. today. A week ago this test was completed making about 60,000,000 cubic feet of gas daily, with a spray of 85 barrels of oil per hour. Twenty-five feet of the upper gas sand was cased off in an effort to cut the gas flow and allow the oil a chance to get out.

BANDITS USE NEW METHOD IN HOLD-UP

GAYLESVILLE, Fla., Sept. 21.—(AP)—A new method of approach and escape from a bank was employed here today by robbers in holding up the Bank of Gaylesville and escaping with approximately $400.

Two young men entered the bank about noon and covering J. H. Mitchell, cashier, with pistols forced him in to the vault.

With the cashier in the vault the pair ransacked the tills, but overlooked "a substantial amount of currency and silver," Mitchell said.

Persons on the street said the two men alighted from a car driven by a woman, and others who saw them leave said they were picked up by a man driving a car of different color and make.

Authorities who answered Mitchell's alarm, said the robbers apparently were trying to confuse the trail by using two cars.

Mitchell gave the alarm, emerging from the vault which he said the robbers apparently thought they had locked but failed to do so.

Interesting Changes In New Men's Clothes

Alongside the new fall suits a man's present wardrobe is apt to look disturbingly behind the style trends. For so many new, interesting changes appear in both the single and double breasted models.

The variety of treatments were evolved only after a sound analysis of public tastes and needs. They meet the requirements of every man—from the smartest to the most conservative dresser.

The New Long Roll Lapel.

Double breasted suits will tap a vast reservoir of masculine interest this season with the advent of the rolled-to-the-bottom-button model, as illustrated here. It's a British origination which is rapidly being adopted by well-dressed men of America. Note the graceful curve of the lapel that has been skilfully fashioned and molded to meet the lower button.

The middle button may be used though the garment is most handsome when only the bottom button is fastened. The lapels are cut wider; the waistline is set lower; the jacket lengthened a trifle and the sleeves trimly tapered. The whole effect tends to "build up" the chest and shoulders. By the same token, the illusion of a slimmer waist and added height is created.

Side vents contribute to the easy, informal air and extreme comfort of this model. They are very smart and lessen the crumpled appearance of the jacket when hands are in the trousers pockets.

Side Vents are Smart.

A well balanced wardrobe should include the three button, single breasted suit. In my travels through style centers I observed this model quite frequently. Young men especially, will welcome its soft front, high roll lapels and its trim, athletic lines.

Be on the watch for the latest custom cut lapels. They resemble notch lapels but differ in that the notch opening is much narrower. It's a distinctive innovation.

Many of the better grade garments have broader sleeve heads and high arm holes. Combined, these features grant the wearer more freedom and comfort; prevent the back of the coat from riding up; and produce a broad-shouldered outline without the sacrifice of smart lines at the chest, shoulder blades and waist.

the party positions when the decisions can no longer be deferred.

By the president's side on his western trip will be Secretary Ickes and Relief Administrator Harry L. Hopkins. Presumably, through direct contact with the unemployment problem as various states are visited, an attempt will be made to reconcile their disagreements finally.

Other late developments also promise to focus the question. Federal spending bulks large in the survey planned by the Chamber of Commerce of the United States of business sentiment toward the New Deal.

With sentiment among its membership that confidence is impaired by "trends" since 1932, the result of the survey cannot help but present possibilities of political use.

Again, General Hugh S. Johnson's plan to stump the country as a friendly but stern administration critic is expected at least to dramatize the conflict within Roosevelt ranks. He is known not to share the American Liberty league viewpoint that much recent legislation is unconstitutional, basing his objections on what he terms "the futility" of some policies.

President Roosevelt this week left it to Secretary Roper to state the administration position both on the constitutional and recovery arguments. On the former, it was merely to ask—if the constitution does not permit federal solution of a national emergency—do the voters want amendment? On the latter, business improvement was attributed directly to action by the administration.

GERMAN YOUTHS ATTACK LITTLE GIRLS IN FRANCE

METZ, France, Sept. 21.—(AP)—Metz police reported tonight that one girl had been stabbed when eight members of the Hitler youth organization crossed the frontier from Germany and attacked a group of French children.

Police said investigation showed the Hitler youth members approached the French children, who were tending cows, and told them that they "soon will be Germans again."

The German boys quickly crossed the frontier into Germany.

FALL EQUINOX IS SCHEDULED TODAY

Days And Nights Of Equal Length All Over The Globe

The autumn season of 1935 officially begins today at 6:39 p. m., according to the almanac. The fall equinox also is here. Then it is that the days and nights are of equal length all over the world.

Owing to the inclination of the axis, on which the earth rotates, as it journeys around the sun, the portion of the surface which is lighted by the sun's rays varies, but at the equinox the sun apparently describes the equatorial circle and exactly one-half of each parallel is illuminated.

At the vernal equinox in March the sun passes from south to north which results in the days lengthening in the northern hemisphere and from north to south in the autumn when days shorten.

CLEVELAND DEAR SEEKS ELECTION TO GOVERNORSHIP

laws passed by the state administration of the late Senator Huey P. Long and Governor O. K. Allen which virtually wiped out local government and centralized power in the state "dictatorship."

"True and patriotic Louisianians want political peace in our state," Representative Dear's formal statement said. "They want to smother the flames of hate, to re-establish free speech and free thought, and to that end local self government must be restored. Every city and town, every police jury, school board and every other public agency should be allowed to govern itself."

In reference to the restoration of peace and cooperation with the national administration which Senator Long bitterly criticized, the Dear statement declared "the restoration of this relationship will bring immediately to Louisiana the same material advantages that are flowing into the other 47 states in the form of millions of dollars for the poor and unemployed, and for public improvements."

Dear pledged himself in favor of repeal of laws which he said denied the people fair and honest elections and representation for all candidates at the polls.

He said he was opposed to "punishment and intimidation" of citizens for political reasons and declared that the use of the state's taxing power "as exercised today to compel property owners to any political view" is "a form of political slavery."

"This condition in Louisiana must end," Dear asserted.

Among other things Representative Dear promised Louisiana a "progressive, humanitarian program" which, he said, "Louisiana has never had."

Congressman Dear is 47 years old, a graduate of the law school of Louisiana State university, a veteran of the World war and has a law practice in Alexandria.

He served as district attorney for the ninth judicial district from 1920 until March 1, 1933, when he resigned the position to go to Washington unopposed as the eighth district representative.

In 1934 he was re-elected by the defeat of J. W. Ethridge, an administration members of the legislature from Grant parish.

The text of Representative Dear's announcement follows:

"To the Citizens of Louisiana:

"I hereby announce my candidacy for governor of Louisiana. It is inspired by the earnest request of many people throughout the state that I run for governor and the sincere desire to be of service in my native state in restoring peace among our people and to restore a friendly relationship between Louisiana and the federal government in Washington.

"In making this announcement, it is not my purpose to place before the people my entire platform, but it is proper at this time that I make known to the people some of the fundamentals which prompt me to announce my candidacy.

Peace And Cooperation

"I know that peace and cooperation can be restored between our state Democratic government and the national Democratic government. The restoration of this relationship will bring immediately to Louisiana the same material advantages that are flowing into the other 47 states in the form of millions of dollars for the poor and unemployed, and for public improvements; and to this end I demand the repeal of all laws recently passed by the state legislature that seek to prevent expenditure of federal money in our state for relief, for public works and public improvements of any and all character.

Relief For The Needy

"Louisiana has never had a progressive humanitarian program. I advocate such a program and shall immediately establish a department of social welfare to cooperate with the federal government in the execution of the social security legislation passed by the congress. This legislation, which I assisted in passing, provides for old age pensions, unemployment insurance, etc., in cooperation with the different states, and Louisiana should promptly take advantage of these laws and make old age pensions, unemployment insurance, assistance to needy mothers, the blind and crippled children, a fact in Louisiana. There are more than $1,500,000 of federal funds available to Louisiana to assist in setting up such a department to give this relief, and the lack of cooperation between the state of Louisiana and the federal government deprives the aged and infirm, the afflicted, and widows with dependent children of the benefits of this program.

"I have been and am now recognized, both in Louisiana and Washington, as a friend of the national Democratic administration, and it is my humble belief that I am in a position to bring about and to establish this most desired relationship and to bring to our people the advantages which the present state administration has constantly denied them.

"Our state is potentially a great industrial state and industry should be encouraged to expand within her borders to the end that labor may find just and remunerative employment. This cannot be done until there is a peaceful relationship between the state government and business; until fear of punishment is abolished and confidence restored.

Restoration Of Government

"True and patriotic Louisianians want political peace in our state; they want to smother the flames of hate; to re-establish free speech and free thought, and to that end local self-government must be restored. Every city and town, every police jury, school board and every other public agency should be allowed to govern itself. The robbing of these institutions of this ancient and just right is un-American and politically wrong. I condemn it and pledge myself to the repeal of the laws which have centralized all power in Baton Rouge and destroyed the last vestige of local Democratic government.

"The people should have restored to them the right to elect by honest methods their own public officials, free from any interference from Baton Rouge. Public boards, sheriffs and other officials are charged with certain duties under the law and they should have the right to select their own employes and to perform their duties in response to the people who elected them. Today by law an attempt is made to make them servants of a political machine. Especially is this true of the school boards in the state. The right for them to select their teachers must be restored, and no man or committee sitting in the capitol should ever have been given the power to politicalize the schools by the naming of school teachers throughout the state.

"The three branches of government—legislative, judicial and executive—must function separately in fact as well as in name. No one branch should be permitted to absorb the functions of the other. The integrity and independence of each is essential to the liberties of the people and the preservation of their lives and property. On this fundamental principle there can be no compromise.

Honest Elections

"None but fair and honest elections should be tolerated. Until that is accomplished there can be no peace in this state. Every person offering for office—be it for governor or justice of the peace—should be permitted representation at the polls. This is democratic; this is American. This right is specifically and purposely denied our people by the laws recently passed and those laws must be repealed. I pledge myself to do so.

"I am unalterably opposed to the punishment and intimidation of citizens for their political views. I believe in free speech and free thought, and without it no people can remain a strong and noble race.

"Today in Louisiana business is subjected to political dictation and it is in constant fear of reprisals and punishment which might be visited upon it because of political differences. Every citizen should be permitted the God-given right to engage in any legitimate business and to entertain any political opinion without fear of destruction of his or her business because of such view.

Taxes And Taxing Power

"The use of the taxing power of the state as exercised today to compel property owners to any political view is a form of political slavery. This condition in Louisiana must end.

"I have during all my political career advocated good roads, free school books and the expansion of all state activities for the happiness and welfare of the poor. I pledge my continued cooperation in this direction. The establishment of farm-to-market roads system in this state has been neglected and I advocate the immediate completion, not only of the farm-to-market roads, but the entire good roads system. The waste of taxpayers' money through a system of political employes who render no service or benefit to the people must end. Secret payrolls must be abolished. The people of this state are overburdened by taxes levied and collected for the purpose of supporting this army of political henchmen while school terms are cut short for the lack of funds and the needy receive no relief from the state.

"It is my conviction that the owner of an automobile or truck is paying too much tax, and that it is all out of proportion to that paid in other states. I believe that Louisiana could and should establish a uniform annual license tax of three dollars. It is likewise my conviction that there is no justification for the gasoline tax which the fishermen and other boat owners are called upon to pay for the construction of public roads which they do not use. It is my purpose to relieve them of this tax.

"When elected governor, I shall take the office without spite or hate toward anyone and no punishment of any kind shall be permitted to be visited upon anyone because his political views are opposed to mine or to the cause which I represent. I rather look to the future of a great Louisiana with happy and prosperous people, with peace among our people and all living under that system of government wrought by the sword of Washington and the pen of Jefferson, enjoying the freedom and liberty guaranteed to us by the state and federal constitutions. To this great end, I invite and welcome all without question of past political differences to join in this progressive effort to restore Louisiana again to its just place in the sisterhood of states."

Extraordinary precautions have been taken by police of the Austin district. Each night 16 detectives and policewomen, aided by volunteers, have patrolled the area, all heavily armed. Captain Willard Malone told them:

In West Orange, N. J., the flier's 23-year-old bride sat by a radio tonight and waited for reports of her husband's flight. An anxious vigil was likewise kept in Chicago by the family of the youthful flier winging his way toward his home country. His father, Anton, proprietor of a plumbing shop; his mother, Mary, and sister, Antoinette, gathered with friends there. All expressed confidence that Waitkus would reach his destination.

FLIER IS KILLED AS HIS PLANE CRASHES

CECILTON, Md., Sept. 21.—(AP)—Howard Fox, Jr., 26, was killed today when an airplane in which he was returning to Harrisburg, Pa., with Sidney Press, 32, crashed during the takeoff.

Press was taken to Union hospital, Elkton, with a possible fracture of his skull and cuts and bruises. His condition while serious is not critical.

Fox lived in Hershey, Pa., and Press at Humbolton, a Harrisburg suburb. Press was the owner and pilot of the plane.

ADVISORY COMMITTEE FOR YOUTH MOVEMENT NAMED IN LOUISIANA

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 21.—(AP)—Frank H. Peterman, state administrator of the works progress administration and the FERA, and W. B. Hatcher, state director of the national youth administration, today announced the names of the state advisory committee for the national youth administration.

The committee was appointed by Aubrey Williams, national director of the youth administration and its members are:

C. I. Jones and Marian Mayer of Baton Rouge; Alvin R. Christovich, William Ruth and Ashton Phelps of New Orleans; John Howat of Shreveport; John M. Caffery of Franklin; N. C. Williamson of Lake Providence and T. H. Bres of Port Allen.

Mr. Hatcher said the committee would be called together in a short time for their first meeting.

"The national youth administration is the federal agency designed to meet the imperative needs of the youth of America between the ages of 16 and 25 for building the proper foundations and making the necessary progress toward establishing themselves as worthwhile citizens," Mr. Peterman said in a statement.

2 PERSONS EXONERATED IN SHOOTING OF MAN

PURVIS, Miss., Sept. 21.—(AP)—Two persons who had been detained in connection with the shooting a week ago tonight of T. L. Williamson, 45, were exonerated here today at a habeas corpus hearing conducted before Circuit Judge Harvey McGehee.

Those freed were Ada Beach and her niece, Maggie Beach.

Judge McGehee and District Attorney Toxey Hall said they did not believe there was any evidence to connect the two Beach women with Williamson's shooting.

ferred to her home later. Mr. and Mrs. Dunlap were treated at their home.

According to the victims, they were walking down Natchitoches when the car approached without lights. They believe the driver saw them just in time to swerve the automobile and it sideswiped them rather than striking them with full force.

Mr. Dunlap was knocked almost across the street and it was considered miraculous that he escaped serious or even fatal injury. Miss Spcights' dress was torn almost off her body.

The police began an immediate search for the driver and soon discovered his wrecked automobile in a ditch on Fourth street, in West Monroe, about three blocks away. The car had turned over several times, examination revealed.

Authorities were able to obtain the name of the owner of the automobile from the license plate and then sought his arrest. He had not been apprehended at a late hour last night.

SILK PARADE

The weaving of silks was known to the Orientals long before the Greeks built the Parthenon . . . long before the Caesars conquered Europe . . . ages before the Renaissance . . . the period which inspires modern fashions . . . silk was the king of fashion and was worn by queens for centuries. Today silk still holds that reputation and the old phrase "fine as silk" still means the best. Silks now are more beautiful than ever . . . new weaves, new patterns and new finishes give added glamour and beauty while the combining of silk with metallic threads gives added elegance to already elegant fabrics. We've scoured the country's largest markets and have selected from its finest makers such as Stelhi, Belding and Mallinson their choicest silks . . . they're here . . . now . . . to join the grandest Silk Parade in our history.

Mallinson's Tourist Crepe

Without a doubt Tourist crepe is one of the most original of fabrics . . . shot with a white wool thread it has the appearance of a wool on one side and the satin back will be just what you want to trim it plus probably a metal clip or pin. $1.98 Yd. —STREET FLOOR

Stelhi's Ruff and Belding's Canton Crepe

This collection represents the products of two of America's foremost makers of fine silk . . . silks that have surface interest as well as the smoother weaves . . . and silk with wool finishes. CLEVELAND DEAR SEEKS ELECTION TO GOVERNORSHIP laws passed by the state administration of the late Senator Huey P. Long and Governor O. K. Allen which virtually wiped out local government and centralized power in the state "dictatorship."

"True and patriotic Louisianians want political peace in our state," Representative Dear's formal statement said. "They want to smother the flames of hate, to re-establish free speech and free thought, and to that end local self government must be restored. Every city and town, every police jury, school board and every other public agency should be allowed to govern itself."

In reference to the restoration of peace and cooperation with the national administration which Senator Long bitterly criticized, the Dear statement declared "the restoration of this relationship will bring immediately to Louisiana the same material advantages that are flowing into the other 47 states in the form of millions of dollars for the poor and unemployed, and for public improvements."

Dear pledged himself in favor of repeal of laws which he said denied the people fair and honest elections and representation for all candidates at the polls.

He said he was opposed to "punishment and intimidation" of citizens for political reasons and declared that the use of the state's taxing power "as exercised today to compel property owners to any political view" is "a form of political slavery."

"This condition in Louisiana must end," Dear asserted.

Among other things Representative Dear promised Louisiana a "progressive, humanitarian program" which, he said, "Louisiana has never had."

Congressman Dear is 47 years old, a graduate of the law school of Louisiana State university, a veteran of the World war and has a law practice in Alexandria.

He served as district attorney for the ninth judicial district from 1920 until March 1, 1933, when he resigned the position to go to Washington unopposed as the eighth district representative.

In 1934 he was re-elected by the defeat of J. W. Ethridge, an administration members of the legislature from Grant parish.

The text of Representative Dear's announcement follows:

"To the Citizens of Louisiana:

"I hereby announce my candidacy for governor of Louisiana. It is inspired by the earnest request of many people throughout the state that I run for governor and the sincere desire to be of service in my native state in restoring peace among our people and to restore a friendly relationship between Louisiana and the federal government in Washington.

"In making this announcement, it is not my purpose to place before the people my entire platform, but it is proper at this time that I make known to the people some of the fundamentals which prompt me to announce my candidacy.

Peace And Cooperation

"I know that peace and cooperation can be restored between our state Democratic government and the national Democratic government. The restoration of this relationship will bring immediately to Louisiana the same material advantages that are flowing into the other 47 states in the form of millions of dollars for the poor and unemployed, and for public improvements; and to this end I demand the repeal of all laws recently passed by the state legislature that seek to prevent expenditure of federal money in our state for relief, for public works and public improvements of any and all character.

Relief For The Needy

"Louisiana has never had a progressive humanitarian program. I advocate such a program and shall immediately establish a department of social welfare to cooperate with the federal government in the execution of the social security legislation passed by the congress. This legislation, which I assisted in passing, provides for old age pensions, unemployment insurance, etc., in cooperation with the different states, and Louisiana should promptly take advantage of these laws and make old age pensions, unemployment insurance, assistance to needy mothers, the blind and crippled children, a fact in Louisiana. There are more than $1,500,000 of federal funds available to Louisiana to assist in setting up such a department to give this relief, and the lack of cooperation between the state of Louisiana and the federal government deprives the aged and infirm, the afflicted, and widows with dependent children of the benefits of this program.

"I have been and am now recognized, both in Louisiana and Washington, as a friend of the national Democratic administration, and it is my humble belief that I am in a position to bring about and to establish this most desired relationship and to bring to our people the advantages which the present state administration has constantly denied them.

"Our state is potentially a great industrial state and industry should be encouraged to expand within her borders to the end that labor may find just and remunerative employment. This cannot be done until there is a peaceful relationship between the state government and business; until fear of punishment is abolished and confidence restored.

Restoration Of Government

"True and patriotic Louisianians want political peace in our state; they want to smother the flames of hate; to re-establish free speech and free thought, and to that end local self-government must be restored. Every city and town, every police jury, school board and every other public agency should be allowed to govern itself. The robbing of these institutions of this ancient and just right is un-American and politically wrong. I condemn it and pledge myself to the repeal of the laws which have centralized all power in Baton Rouge and destroyed the last vestige of local Democratic government.

"The people should have restored to them the right to elect by honest methods their own public officials, free from any interference from Baton Rouge. Public boards, sheriffs and other officials are charged with certain duties under the law and they should have the right to select their own employes and to perform their duties in response to the people who elected them. Today by law an attempt is made to make them servants of a political machine. Especially is this true of the school boards in the state. The right for them to select their teachers must be restored, and no man or committee sitting in the capitol should ever have been given the power to politicalize the schools by the naming of school teachers throughout the state.

"The three branches of government—legislative, judicial and executive—must function separately in fact as well as in name. No one branch should be permitted to absorb the functions of the other. The integrity and independence of each is essential to the liberties of the people and the preservation of their lives and property. On this fundamental principle there can be no compromise.

Honest Elections

"None but fair and honest elections should be tolerated. Until that is accomplished there can be no peace in this state. Every person offering for office—be it for governor or justice of the peace—should be permitted representation at the polls. This is democratic; this is American. This right is specifically and purposely denied our people by the laws recently passed and those laws must be repealed. I pledge myself to do so.

"I am unalterably opposed to the punishment and intimidation of citizens for their political views. I believe in free speech and free thought, and without it no people can remain a strong and noble race.

"Today in Louisiana business is subjected to political dictation and it is in constant fear of reprisals and punishment which might be visited upon it because of political differences. Every citizen should be permitted the God-given right to engage in any legitimate business and to entertain any political opinion without fear of destruction of his or her business because of such view.

Taxes And Taxing Power

"The use of the taxing power of the state as exercised today to compel property owners to any political view is a form of political slavery. This condition in Louisiana must end.

"I have during all my political career advocated good roads, free school books and the expansion of all state activities for the happiness and welfare of the poor. I pledge my continued cooperation in this direction. The establishment of farm-to-market roads system in this state has been neglected and I advocate the immediate completion, not only of the farm-to-market roads, but the entire good roads system. The waste of taxpayers' money through a system of political employes who render no service or benefit to the people must end. Secret payrolls must be abolished. The people of this state are overburdened by taxes levied and collected for the purpose of supporting this army of political henchmen while school terms are cut short for the lack of funds and the needy receive no relief from the state.

"It is my conviction that the owner of an automobile or truck is paying too much tax, and that it is all out of proportion to that paid in other states. I believe that Louisiana could and should establish a uniform annual license tax of three dollars. It is likewise my conviction that there is no justification for the gasoline tax which the fishermen and other boat owners are called upon to pay for the construction of public roads which they do not use. It is my purpose to relieve them of this tax.

"When elected governor, I shall take the office without spite or hate toward anyone and no punishment of any kind shall be permitted to be visited upon anyone because his political views are opposed to mine or to the cause which I represent. I rather look to the future of a great Louisiana with happy and prosperous people, with peace among our people and all living under that system of government wrought by the sword of Washington and the pen of Jefferson, enjoying the freedom and liberty guaranteed to us by the state and federal constitutions. To this great end, I invite and welcome all without question of past political differences to join in this progressive effort to restore Louisiana again to its just place in the sisterhood of states."

Aug. 31 was interrupted by the ringing of a doorbell.

Extraordinary precautions have been taken by police of the Austin district. Each night 16 detectives and policewomen, aided by volunteers, have patrolled the area, all heavily armed. Captain Willard Malone told them:

"Shoot to kill."

FLIER IS KILLED AS HIS PLANE CRASHES

CECILTON, Md., Sept. 21.—(AP)—Howard Fox, Jr., 26, was killed today when an airplane in which he was returning to Harrisburg, Pa., with Sidney Press, 32, crashed during the takeoff.

Press was taken to Union hospital, Elkton, with a possible fracture of his skull and cuts and bruises. His condition while serious is not critical.

Fox lived in Hershey, Pa., and Press at Humbolton, a Harrisburg suburb. Press was the owner and pilot of the plane.

ADVISORY COMMITTEE FOR YOUTH MOVEMENT NAMED IN LOUISIANA

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 21.—(AP)—Frank H. Peterman, state administrator of the works progress administration and the FERA, and W. B. Hatcher, state director of the national youth administration, today announced the names of the state advisory committee for the national youth administration.

The committee was appointed by Aubrey Williams, national director of the youth administration and its members are:

C. I. Jones and Marian Mayer of Baton Rouge; Alvin R. Christovich, William Ruth and Ashton Phelps of New Orleans; John Howat of Shreveport; John M. Caffery of Franklin; N. C. Williamson of Lake Providence and T. H. Bres of Port Allen.

Mr. Hatcher said the committee would be called together in a short time for their first meeting.

"The national youth administration is the federal agency designed to meet the imperative needs of the youth of America between the ages of 16 and 25 for building the proper foundations and making the necessary progress toward establishing themselves as worthwhile citizens," Mr. Peterman said in a statement.

2 PERSONS EXONERATED IN SHOOTING OF MAN

PURVIS, Miss., Sept. 21.—(AP)—Two persons who had been detained in connection with the shooting a week ago tonight of T. L. Williamson, 45, were exonerated here today at a habeas corpus hearing conducted before Circuit Judge Harvey McGehee.

Those freed were Ada Beach and her niece, Maggie Beach.

Judge McGehee and District Attorney Toxey Hall said they did not believe there was any evidence to connect the two Beach women with Williamson's shooting.

ferred to her home later. Mr. and Mrs. Dunlap were treated at their home.

According to the victims, they were walking down Natchitoches when the car approached without lights. They believe the driver saw them just in time to swerve the automobile and it sideswiped them rather than striking them with full force.

Mr. Dunlap was knocked almost across the street and it was considered miraculous that he escaped serious or even fatal injury. Miss Speights' dress was torn almost off her body.

The police began an immediate search for the driver and soon discovered his wrecked automobile in a ditch on Fourth street, in West Monroe, about three blocks away. The car had turned over several times, examination revealed.

Authorities were able to obtain the name of the owner of the automobile from the license plate and then sought his arrest. He had not been apprehended at a late hour last night.

SILK PARADE

The weaving of silks was known to the Orientals long before the Greeks built the Parthenon . . . long before the Caesars conquered Europe . . . ages before the Renaissance . . . the period which inspires modern fashions . . . silk was the king of fashion and was worn by queens for centuries. Today silk still holds that reputation and the old phrase "fine as silk" still means the best. Silks now are more beautiful than ever . . . new weaves, new patterns and new finishes give added glamour and beauty while the combining of silk with metallic threads gives added elegance to already elegant fabrics. We've scoured the country's largest markets and have selected from its finest makers such as Stelhi, Belding and Mallinson their choicest silks . . . they're here . . . now . . . to join the grandest Silk Parade in our history.

Mallinson's Tourist Crepe

Without a doubt Tourist crepe is one of the most original of fabrics . . . shot with a white wool thread it has the appearance of a wool on one side and the satin back will be just what you want to trim it plus probably a metal clip or pin. $1.98 Yd. —STREET FLOOR

Alpaca, Matelesse Crepe

These two rough weaves come from Stelhi's collection and are prime favorites because they fashion both tailored or afternoon dresses. It takes such a famous weaver to make such silks and The Palace to find them for you at this price. $1.98 Yd. —STREET FLOOR

Stelhi's Sugar and Spice

This pure dye crepe looks like wool. Its rich spicy grounds in smart Fall shades are dusted with a stipple like sifted sugar. It's exclusive with us, it's non-crushable, and shown for the first time this year it will have a long run of popularity. $1.98 Yd. —STREET FLOOR

Pure Dye Friendship Crepe

Yes, it's pure dye . . . looks like a chiffon woolen and has a satin back . . . which means it can be self trimmed. It has every requisite of a Fashion-right fabric and comes in the new browns, greens, wines, grape tones, rust, navy and black, all 39 inches wide. $1.98 Yd. —STREET FLOOR

The Secret Of Security

Scoffing is heard nowadays at the word cooperation. Fun is being made of that word. "It has been worn out," you hear it said.

The word cooperation can never be worn out, any more than the words love, honor, honesty, generosity, decency and other symbols of the higher, better principles and emotions.

It may not be possible to explain it, but it seems to be true that whenever the human family begins to talk broadly and persistently about any fine moral and spiritual thing, a certain element among us begins to ridicule the word or the words employed to signify that fine moral and spiritual thing. The only way to account for that phenomenon is that it is merely one of the many ways that evil has of understanding good.

Cooperation is the collective working together for the well-being of all. What could be more worthy? What could be more admirable? What could command greater respect? And what else can ever bring the people of a community, a state, a nation, a world into harmonious, wholesome relations one with another?

Cooperation is the only hope that the human family has for getting along together. Cooperation is the exact opposite of selfishness and greed. The man who laughs at cooperation hugs selfishness and greed to his bosom; and he laughs at cooperation because he loves selfishness and greed.

Cooperation is the unremitting, unwavering opponent of the two forces that have done most and are doing most to throw mankind into distress and desolation—selfishness and greed.

It takes a regular fellow to cooperate and keep on cooperating. Mean, little souls can not cooperate. They think if they can grab theirs and let everybody else go to pot, they are just that much ahead.

Did you ever see a chicken snatch a worm from another? He seems to think he has done something; but he does not like it so well when the whole flock starts chasing him to get that worm. The survival of the fittest is the law of the lower brutes—even the higher of the lower animals know better than that.

Men and women are intended to be higher than animals; for they have been given minds capable of high thoughts and fine distinctions. They have been given abilities which enable them to contemplate and accept the wisdom of the ages born of the experiences and the experiments of the ages. What a blessed endowment! The lower animals have it to a certain extent in their instincts.

When you hear a man scoff at cooperation, you can know that he is not sufficiently developed in the matter of collective action for the common well-being, to be admitted to fellowship with the bees, the ants and the termites. Not one of those groups would permit a creature of its kind to remain in the colony if it refused to cooperate.

Study the ant, thou individualist. Copy her ways and be wise in the manner of working with your fellows for their good and your good.

Don't laugh at cooperation, whoever you are. You would be in a sad plight but for the cooperation of your fellows, crude as it is.

WHERE REFORM IS NEEDED

"If I were made dictator," remarks the Very Rev. William R. Inge, "Gloomy Dean" of St. Paul's, "I think I should employ the short interval between my appointment and my assassination in overhauling the criminal law."

Coming from a British critic, the thought is especially significant. English criminal procedure has always been held forth as the acme of perfection. If it actually needs overhauling, what can be the need for similar reform in the United States?

Dean Inge might well have directed his gloomy shaft toward America. We don't want a dictator. But we certainly could stand substantial alteration of our criminal law.

UP TO MOTORISTS

Dr. Miller McClintock, of Harvard university, is America's leading traffic expert. Motorists should take heed, therefore, when he remarks that unless "a constructive and rational solution is found for the traffic problem, the motor vehicle ultimately will be placed under restrictions definitely limiting the freedom of those using it."

The final responsibility inevitably rests upon the man behind the wheel. If he lacks common sense, decent regard for the rights of others, physical fitness and a knowledge of the regulatory code as well as an adequate control of the machine he is driving, there is little chance of converting him into a highway safety factor.

Opponents of the scheme to tax government bonds say the nation would be unable to borrow. Is this supposed to be a negative argument?

PREDATORY WAVES

(Scientists assert that four types of waves pass over the human brain while its owner is asleep.)

The scientists find
That the average mind
Has rarely a moment of rest.
By night and by day
It is toiling away
With a calm and unwearying zest.
So when in my blankets I'm cozily rolled
My slumbers are not really deep;
Four types of electrical waves, I am told,
Move over my brain as I sleep.

Small wonder I yawn
At the break of the dawn,
Small wonder I'm listless and pale;
No wonder I shirk
Every form of hard work
That might be productive of kale.
Those brain waves have used up my sources of pep,
Which nothing but sleep may restore,
Fagged out and distracted I cannot keep step
With the pace of the world any more.

As the time passes by
I eagerly try
To put on a full head of steam—
I hunger for fame;
To make a great name
Is something of which I still dream.
But I only can sit in my little old chair
For many long profitless hours;
Those dreams, which have brought me just nothing,
I swear,
Have exhausted my frail mental powers.

He Saved The West

BY BRUCE CATTON

Most people remember Oliver Hazard Perry today because he had a singular gift for the expressive phrase. "We have met the enemy and they are ours" takes rank with Caesar's "Veni, vidi, vici" as a model of narrative brevity.

But the man is worth knowing for other reasons. If he had lost the battle of Lake Erie, Britain would in all probability have seized the greater part of western North America. The boundaries of the United States would have ended at the Ohio and the Mississippi and the nation would have been stunted from the very cradle.

So says Charles J. Dutton in "Oliver Hazard Perry," a book which oddly enough is the first biography of the great naval hero to be printed in some 90 years.

It is Mr. Dutton's idea that Perry was not only one of our greatest naval officers, but that he was also the one man who kept that confused and abortive war of 1812 from being a tremendous national calamity. He shows, too, that Perry did what he did because of his own great ability.

The story of how Perry came to the western wilderness, built a fleet of green timber, rounded up a backwoods crew and whipped a British fleet is interesting both as history and drama. Mr. Dutton tells it well and gives a well-rounded picture of Perry's personality.

New Deal In Washington

By Rodney Dutcher

WASHINGTON—Some day, perhaps before election, President Roosevelt will have to admit to the country that business activity has returned to normal, but that there are still six to eight million unemployed.

He will have to explain that the efficiency of private industry, expressing itself in a saving of labor costs, has largely brought about that condition. And doubtless add that until industry can think up some way of absorbing those millions, it will have to pay for their subsistence through taxes.

This problem—call it technological unemployment or the increased productivity per man per hour, which gained enormously during the depression—is one of the biggest stories in the country. The highest officials often discuss it privately, though only an occasional labor leader talks of it publicly.

Everybody knows that Roosevelt must eventually meet the issue with something more than an optimistic assumption that improving business conditions will absorb the surplus of labor.

The most scientific chart of unemployment yet devised by the government (it's kept secret for the time being) indicates that 800,000 more persons were unemployed in June 1935, than in June, 1934. True, this counts in some 300,000 of "new population available for employment" and about as many more displaced from road building and other public works, but—

In that same period, the federal reserve index of manufacturing production rose from 83 to 86, which you might well suppose would have meant re-employment of several hundred thousand men. Remember that this was in the NRA period, before codes were canceled and employers began to increase hours.

Thousands Being Displaced

The answer is that workers, at an ever-accelerating rate, are being displaced by better management, elimination of the least efficient plants and equipment—and the least efficient labor—pressure through sweatshop, stretchout and speedup methods, new machinery and new inventions.

This goes on in agriculture, mining, transportation, and other fields as well as in the factories.

No one knows the relative importance of those causative factors. But the best available studies show that in the 10 years ended in 1929, the average worker's production increased 45 per cent.

Subsequent studies indicate the output per man hour rose 24 to 28 per cent in 1929-32 and about 12 per cent for 1932-34, meaning at least a 33 per cent gain in the depression period.

Dr. Isador Lubin is now in an official position as commissioner of labor statistics and isn't talking publicly about the matter any more. But in 1932 he told a senate committee that even if business reached its 1929 level, there would still be at least 5,000,000 unemployed.

Inventions Kill Jobs

Productivity has since increased and nobody is anticipating any early arrival at the 1929 industrial production index figure, which was 119 as against the recent 86.

From every front come reports of new inventions certain to displace human labor. Washington this fall will watch closely the performance of the mechanical cotton picker, ballyhooed as able to pick 1,000 pounds an hour as against a man's 10 pounds, a potential instrument of unemployment for hundreds of thousands.

Everyone is talking of pre-fabricated houses—and some warn of what it will do to building trades workers. New single-unit trains threaten the jobs of shopmen, switchmen, brakemen, and firemen. High-line logging operations threaten the jobs of thousands of northwest lumbermen.

Output Per Man Grows

NRA halted the process awhile through spreading work by shortening hours and by protecting obsolete plants. But now the chains are off.

And even in the NRA period (1933-35), government figures show output per man increased 29 per cent in oil production, 40 per cent in steel mills, 21 per cent in automobiles, 23 per cent in rubber tires, 29 in woolens and worsteds, 28 per cent in cigars and cigarettes, and 14 per cent in bituminous coal mining.

Unless something no one can now foresee happens to absorb millions of workers, this problem holds the sprouting seeds of future political issues, future economic progress, future depressions and the future, if any, of national economic planning.

ROTARY CLUB PLANS BARBECUE THIS WEEK

The Monroe Rotary club will hold a "friendship" barbecue at Mayor Arnold Bernstein's country place on Bayou DeSiard Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. This barbecue is for members, their wives and families.

Prior to the barbecue, at 6:45 p.m., there will be a club assembly composed of the chairman of all club committees, who will meet with President Sig Masur for the transaction of business. All business will be completed prior to the barbecue and the remainder of the evening will be devoted to entertainment.

A special feature of the barbecue will be the reception of the broadcast of the Baer-Louis prize fight which will be staged that night. Arrangements have been made so that loud speakers will convey the battle round by round.

Lights Of New York

By Paul Harrison

NEW YORK.—One of the reasons Broadway has been such a peaceful place lately is that John J. Broderick has been sent back to keep an eye on things.

Mr. Broderick, also known as "The Duke" because of his passion for fancy clothes, is a well-knit fellow of 40, weighing 180 pounds and looking like a character actor who'd be in demand for tough detective roles. As a matter of fact, he is a detective. And tough. His hands have been broken so often that doctors use X-rays of them for lectures on fractures.

When the late Arnold Rothstein boldly visited police headquarters to solicit a favor, the commissioner assigned Broderick to give the racket and gambling czar a public beating. Rothstein was duly dragged out of Lindy's and drubbed. Those were the days when the restaurant was a hangout of racketeers and their bodyguards, but they'd scatter like two-for-a-nickel pickpockets whenever word was received that Broderick was on his way uptown.

Handy In Emergency

One of his most spectacular triumphs was scored when three bandits got out of their cells in Tombs prison, murdered the warden and a keeper, and then with smuggled arms tried to shoot their way to freedom. The Tombs was far off Broderick's beat, but he went down. When he got there the convicts were barricaded behind a coal pile in the prison yard and scores of wary cops were sniping at them with rifles. Broderick entered the yard alone and walked over to the coal pile, firing as he went to keep the convicts down. His pistol was empty when he rushed them, but he didn't need it anyway. The convicts had committed suicide.

Another off-Broadway incident was the siege of Two-Gun Crowley. Battalions of police were employing machine guns and tear gas ineffectually when Broderick arrived. He went upstairs, crashed the door through which Crowson had been pouring a hail of lead, and smacked down the vicious little desperado.

His service record, beginning in 1923, is full of similar exploits. It seems that Broderick just naturally enjoys going singlehanded into difficult places after an armed man, or a group of armed men. Once there, he seldom shoots. Fists are quicker. Nowadays when a criminal has received a terrible beating incident to his arrest he is said to have been given "the broderick."

Gives Muggs A Pane

I would not like to create an impression that the detective is ungallant or indiscriminately brutal. He abhors riot duty because most of the people who get hurt are not dangerous or particularly despicable individuals. Once he came upon two burly Broadway muggs who were standing in front of a restaurant and insulting women passersby. Broderick knocked both of them through the plate glass window, then arrested them for malicious destruction of property. That way, they had to pay for a new window.

He's a model family man, with a pretty wife and two attractive daughters whom he proudly beaus around the rialto theatres. Law-abiding Broadway rather idolizes him. It is said, indeed, that the reason he was transferred to a quiet suburb a couple of years ago was because he was becoming too important a character—something of a free-lance arbiter and a law unto himself. But Broderick now is back among his friends and dearest enemies.

Not On The Card

He keeps himself in magnificent condition with almost daily workouts in a gymnasium. As a kid, he fought all comers in the old gashouse district, and at 12 was supporting his mother by driving a brick truck. Later he became bodyguard to Samuel Gompers, late head of the A. F. of L. He guarded Jack Dempsey, too, and Dempsey used to admit that he wouldn't want any part of Broderick in a rough-and-tumble fight.

Jack Sharkey seemed to have held the same opinion. On a fight night at Madison Square Garden (where Broderick always is to be found) John Buckley, Sharkey's manager, took a swing at an undersized newspaper reporter. The detective witnessed it, was enraged, and followed Buckley into Sharkey's dressing room. While the fighter danced around howling threats Broderick chastised the manager, then turned to inquire whether Sharkey wanted to try to do anything about it. Sharkey didn't.

HAMBONE'S MEDITATIONS

By Alley

City Briefs

Monroe friends have just been informed of the resignation of Rev. Claude L. Jones as pastor of the Central Christian church in Shreveport. His resignation was caused by his having accepted a call to Hot Springs, Ark.

The Claiborne Home Demonstration club met the past week at the home of Mrs. Bertha Mae Wallace. The meeting was in charge of Mrs. E. C. Gaskin, vice-president. Plans were formulated for the entering of a club booth at the Ouachita Valley fair to be held Oct. 1-6. Mrs. Joe Hendricks was named chairman of the committee on the arranging of the booth. A report of the recent state council meeting at Baton Rouge was given by Mrs. M. L. De Freese.

Several hundred persons appeared Saturday morning to take examinations under the civil service for clerk and carrier at the Monroe postoffice. This was the first time in approximately eight years since similar examinations were held here.

Regular classes will start Monday at the Northeast Center of Louisiana State university. Registration of students will be continued on Monday but those who now enter will be penalized by being charged a small fee for lateness in entering.

Rev. L. T. Hastings, pastor of the First Baptist church, has just entered on his eleventh year as pastor here. In this time the membership of the church has been greatly increased until today there are many more than 2,000 members, making it by far the largest church in point of membership, in this section of the state.

STAGE SET FOR LEGION RODEO SEPTEMBER 21-22

FERRIDAY, La., Sept. 21.—(Special—The stage is all set for the Gray McCearleys post rodeo, which will be staged by the Legionnaires September 21 and 22 and all indications point to a record crowd attending the events.

The rodeo will be held at the old Fairgrounds on the Ferriday-Jonesville highway and five events will be on the program daily. Entries will be made from over the nation and, as an added attraction, there will be wild bull riding and clowning by Ike Hamilton, the famous rodeo clown of West Monroe and his famous rodeo mule "Fannie."

WPA TO LAUNCH WORK ON 88 MISSISSIPPI PROJECTS

JACKSON, Miss., Sept. 21.—(AP)—The works progress administration today announced selection of 88 projects from several hundred approved by the WPA in Washington upon which work is to be launched in Mississippi next week.

At the same time, Miss Ethel Payne, director of women's activities of the WPA in Mississippi, announced that she had been formally notified of an allotment of $333,512 of federal funds with which to finance three statewide projects of her division.

CHILDREN HAVE OWN CHURCH

Children between the ages of three and 10 have organized a church in Dorchester, England. They have their own churchwarden and their own choir. A little girl plays the organ. They take turns in reading the lesson. Tiny chairs and hassocks are placed in position every Sunday, and there is an air of complete reverence during the services. Birthdays are observed and each member is presented a birthday cake.

The Secret Of Security

Scoffing is heard nowadays at the word cooperation. Fun is being made of that word. "It has been worn out," you hear it said.

The word cooperation can never be worn out, any more than the words love, honor, honesty, generosity, decency and other symbols of the higher, better principles and emotions.

It may not be possible to explain it, but it seems to be true that whenever the human family begins to talk broadly and persistently about any fine moral and spiritual thing, a certain element among us begins to ridicule the word or the words employed to signify that fine moral and spiritual thing. The only way to account for that phenomenon is that it is merely one of the many ways that evil has of understanding good.

Cooperation is the collective working together for the well-being of all. What could be more worthy? What could be more admirable? What could command greater respect? And what else can ever bring the people of a community, a state, a nation, a world into harmonious, wholesome relations one with another?

Cooperation is the only hope that the human family has for getting along together. Cooperation is the exact opposite of selfishness and greed. The man who laughs at cooperation hugs selfishness and greed to his bosom; and he laughs at cooperation because he loves selfishness and greed.

Cooperation is the unremitting, unwavering opponent of the two forces that have done most and are doing most to throw mankind into distress and desolation—selfishness and greed.

It takes a regular fellow to cooperate and keep on cooperating. Mean, little souls can not cooperate. They think if they can grab theirs and let everybody else go to pot, they are just that much ahead.

Did you ever see a chicken snatch a worm from another? He seems to think he has done something; but he does not like it so well when the whole flock starts chasing him to get that worm. The survival of the fittest is the law of the lower brutes—even the higher of the lower animals know better than that.

Men and women are intended to be higher than animals; for they have been given minds capable of high thoughts and fine distinctions. They have been given abilities which enable them to contemplate and accept the wisdom of the ages born of the experiences and the experiments of the ages. What a blessed endowment! The lower animals have it to a certain extent in their instincts.

When you hear a man scoff at cooperation, you can know that he is not sufficiently developed in the matter of collective action for the common well-being, to be admitted to fellowship with the bees, the ants and the termites. Not one of those groups would permit a creature of its kind to remain in the colony if it refused to cooperate.

Study the ant, thou individualist. Copy her ways and be wise in the manner of working with your fellows for their good and your good.

Don't laugh at cooperation, whoever you are. You would be in a sad plight but for the cooperation of your fellows, crude as it is.

WHERE REFORM IS NEEDED

"If I were made dictator," remarks the Very Rev. William R. Inge, "Gloomy Dean" of St. Paul's, "I think I should employ the short interval between my appointment and my assassination in overhauling the criminal law."

Coming from a British critic, the thought is especially significant. English criminal procedure has always been held forth as the acme of perfection. If it actually needs overhauling, what can be the need for similar reform in the United States?

Dean Inge might well have directed his gloomy shaft toward America. We don't want a dictator. But we certainly could stand substantial alteration of our criminal law.

UP TO MOTORISTS

Dr. Miller McClintock, of Harvard university, is America's leading traffic expert. Motorists should take heed, therefore, when he remarks that unless "a constructive and rational solution is found for the traffic problem, the motor vehicle ultimately will be placed under restrictions definitely limiting the freedom of those using it."

The final responsibility inevitably rests upon the man behind the wheel. If he lacks common sense, decent regard for the rights of others, physical fitness and a knowledge of the regulatory code as well as an adequate control of the machine he is driving, there is little chance of converting him into a highway safety factor.

Opponents of the scheme to tax government bonds say the nation would be unable to borrow. Is this supposed to be a negative argument?

PREDATORY WAVES

(Scientists assert that four types of waves pass over the human brain while its owner is asleep.)

The scientists find
That the average mind
Has rarely a moment of rest.
By night and by day
It is toiling away
With a calm and unwearying zest.
So when in my blankets I'm cozily rolled
My slumbers are not really deep;
Four types of electrical waves, I am told,
Move over my brain as I sleep.

Small wonder I yawn
At the break of the dawn,
Small wonder I'm listless and pale;
No wonder I shirk
Every form of hard work
That might be productive of kale.
Those brain waves have used up my sources of pep,
Which nothing but sleep may restore,
Fagged out and distracted I cannot keep step
With the pace of the world any more.

As the time passes by
I eagerly try
To put on a full head of steam—
I hunger for fame;
To make a great name
Is something of which I still dream.
But I only can sit in my little old chair
For many long profitless hours;
Those dreams, which have brought me just nothing, I swear,
Have exhausted my frail mental powers.

He Saved The West

BY BRUCE CATTON

Most people remember Oliver Hazard Perry today because he had a singular gift for the expressive phrase. "We have met the enemy and they are ours" takes rank with Caesar's "Veni, vidi, vici" as a model of narrative brevity.

But the man is worth knowing for other reasons. If he had lost the battle of Lake Erie, Britain would in all probability have seized the greater part of western North America. The boundaries of the United States would have ended at the Ohio and the Mississippi and the nation would have been stunted from the very cradle.

So says Charles J. Dutton in "Oliver Hazard Perry," a book which oddly enough is the first biography of the great naval hero to be printed in some 90 years.

It is Mr. Dutton's idea that Perry was not only one of our greatest naval officers, but that he was also the one man who kept that confused and abortive war of 1812 from being a tremendous national calamity. He shows, too, that Perry did what he did because of his own great ability.

The story of how Perry came to the western wilderness, built a fleet of green timber, rounded up a backwoods crew and whipped a British fleet is interesting both as history and drama. Mr. Dutton tells it well and gives a well-rounded picture of Perry's personality.

New Deal In Washington

By Rodney Dutcher

WASHINGTON—Some day, perhaps before election, President Roosevelt will have to admit to the country that business activity has returned to normal, but that there are still six to eight million unemployed.

He will have to explain that the efficiency of private industry, expressing itself in a saving of labor costs, has largely brought about that condition. And doubtless add that until industry can think up some way of absorbing those millions, it will have to pay for their subsistence through taxes.

This problem—call it technological unemployment or the increased productivity per man per hour, which gained enormously during the depression—is one of the biggest stories in the country. The highest officials often discuss it privately, though only an occasional labor leader talks of it publicly.

Everybody knows that Roosevelt must eventually meet the issue with something more than an optimistic assumption that improving business conditions will absorb the surplus of labor.

The most scientific chart of unemployment yet devised by the government (it's kept secret for the time being) indicates that 800,000 more persons were unemployed in June 1935, than in June, 1934. True, this counts in some 300,000 of "new population available for employment" and about as many more displaced from road building and other public works, but—

HAMBONE'S MEDITATIONS

By Alley

City Briefs

Monroe friends have just been informed of the resignation of Rev. Claude L. Jones as pastor of the Central Christian church in Shreveport. His resignation was caused by his having accepted a call to Hot Springs, Ark.

The Claiborne Home Demonstration club met the past week at the home of Mrs. Bertha Mae Wallace. The meeting was in charge of Mrs. E. C. Gaskin, vice-president. Plans were formulated for the entering of a club booth at the Ouachita Valley fair to be held Oct. 1-6. Mrs. Joe Hendricks was named chairman of the committee on the arranging of the booth. A report of the recent state council meeting at Baton Rouge was given by Mrs. M. L. De Freese.

Several hundred persons appeared Saturday morning to take examinations under the civil service for clerk and carrier at the Monroe postoffice. This was the first time in approximately eight years since similar examinations were held here.

Regular classes will start Monday at the Northeast Center of Louisiana State university. Registration of students will be continued on Monday but those who now enter will be penalized by being charged a small fee for lateness in entering.

Rev. L. T. Hastings, pastor of the First Baptist church, has just entered on his eleventh year as pastor here. In this time the membership of the church has been greatly increased until today there are many more than 2,000 members, making it by far the largest church in point of membership, in this section of the state.

STAGE SET FOR LEGION RODEO SEPTEMBER 21-22

FERRIDAY, La., Sept. 21.—(Special—The stage is all set for the Gray McCearleys post rodeo, which will be staged by the Legionnaires September 21 and 22 and all indications point to a record crowd attending the events.

The rodeo will be held at the old Fairgrounds on the Ferriday-Jonesville highway and five events will be on the program daily. Entries will be made from over the nation and, as an added attraction, there will be wild bull riding and clowning by Ike Hamilton, the famous rodeo clown of West Monroe and his famous rodeo mule "Fannie."

WPA TO LAUNCH WORK ON 88 MISSISSIPPI PROJECTS

JACKSON, Miss., Sept. 21.—(AP)—The works progress administration today announced selection of 88 projects from several hundred approved by the WPA in Washington upon which work is to be launched in Mississippi next week.

At the same time, Miss Ethel Payne, director of women's activities of the WPA in Mississippi, announced that she had been formally notified of an allotment of $333,512 of federal funds with which to finance three statewide projects of her division.

CHILDREN HAVE OWN CHURCH

Children between the ages of three and 10 have organized a church in Dorchester, England. They have their own churchwarden and their own choir. A little girl plays the organ. They take turns in reading the lesson. Tiny chairs and hassocks are placed in position every Sunday, and there is an air of complete reverence during the services. Birthdays are observed and each member is presented a birthday cake.

Immediately these questions would arise:

1. Would the league fail in its attempt to bring the hostilities to a swift end?
2. Would Italy withdraw from the league?
3. If Italy did withdraw would the league's prestige survive such a blow?
4. How far would Great Britain go in advocating sanctions to restrain Italy?
5. How far would France and other nations follow the British lead?
6. What would Britain do if France failed to fall in step for action to punish Italy?
7. Would Italy threaten British interests in the Mediterranean and Africa in reply to sanctions and what is Britain prepared to do acting alone to protect those interests?
8. Would the Italian and the British armadas, drawn up in dangerous proximity in the Mediterranean, be launched at each others throats by an incident such as the sinking of the Maine?
9. What effect would the sanctions have on Italy?
10. What would Germany do in the event of an Italo-British war?

Military circles in Rome asserted that Italy's opening move in Ethiopia would be to attack Aduwa—perhaps without a declaration of war. Many high army officers, doubt, however, that there will be a major battle there, having seen indications that the Ethiopians recognize the weakness of this far outpost.

They also recognize the great desire of the Italians to capture it to wipe out the humiliation of the defeat of 1896 and may therefore surrender this unimportant post without a struggle.

With Aduwa captured, Mussolini must decide whether to order his 250,000 troops massed in East Africa onward to Addis Ababa or to withdraw and draw up terms for peace. Scarcely anyone of official authority doubts that Mussolini will proceed.

Granting that, few strategists agree on how long the war will last.

MUSSOLINI REJECTS PEACE PROPOSAL

LONDON, Sept. 21.—(AP)—Benito Mussolini turned down the peace plan of the League of Nations Saturday but Geneva saw a possible silver lining behind this dark cloud on the European horizon.

Despite this refusal, a spokesman for the Italian delegation to the League of Nations said, Mussolini is disposed to negotiate the grave issue.

In saying "no" to Geneva the Italian cabinet left the way open for further deliberations and another offer. Its refusal was couched in friendly language and the communique had none of the bristling phrases which have characterized previous announcements from the Fascist capital.

Although naturally disappointed, no great surprise was expressed at the action by officials in London or Addis Ababa.

Mussolini's cabinet gave as a reason that the proposal does "not offer a minimum basis sufficient for a conclusive realization which finally and effectively would take into account Italy's vital rights and interests."

Another cabinet session was called for Tuesday when it is hoped fresh overtures may have been received from Geneva.

Emperor Haile Selassie told the Associated Press in Addis Ababa that if Il Duce's action meant hostilities, Ethiopia is ready to offer stout resistance.

With the end of the rainy season expected next week, many Ethiopians believe Italy's drive will begin shortly afterward.

Great Britain, although officially asserting "We have no quarrel with Italy," went forward with its speedy defense preparations in the Mediterranean. That sea now has the greatest concentration of war vessels under the Union Jack since 1918.

Officials admitted the moves were "defensive" and let it be known Britain will act without delay should her interests be threatened by war in Africa.

France's cabinet, meeting in special session, disclosed a huge boost to the budget for armaments. Premier Laval called the meeting off when informed of Italy's action and hastened back to his office.

Markets generally were quieter, but still reflected nervousness over the situation. Nearly $50,000,000 in gold has been shipped to America within a week, an unofficial survey disclosed.

ITALIAN CABINET TO MEET TUESDAY

ROME, Sept. 21.—(AP)—Italy's Duce-dominated cabinet today turned down the League of Nation's peace plan—but its rejection was couched in language so friendly that many believed the door was open for further negotiations.

The rejection was made on the ground that the Geneva proposals "do not offer a minimum basis sufficient for a conclusive realization which finally and effectively would take into account Italy's vital rights and interests."

Il Duce, who alone holds eight cabinet portfolios, made a full, up-to-the-minute report of the political and military situation, the communique stated.

Then he explained the league committee's report.

The cabinet examined the proposals attentively but found it could not accept them.

Another meeting of the ministers was called for Tuesday "to follow developments in the political situation and to complete the order of the day with regard to administrative affairs," the communique announced.

In government circles it was said the meeting was called for Tuesday because, it was hoped, the five-power committee's proposal will be so modified by that time as to permit Italy to reconsider them.

On Tuesday, therefore, there was a possibility a different kind of answer might be given to a peace-seeking world.

As the cabinet met, naval informants said Italy's "Malta"—the island of Panterraria—had been placed in a state of siege which will enable Italy to cut the Mediterranean into two seas, separating the British fleet in the west from that in the east, in case of hostilities.

The island, with a population just under 10,000, is 70 miles southwest of Sicily and 15 miles from Tunis. It is situated, therefore, in practically the middle of the narrowest portion of the Mediterranean, namely, between Tunis and Sicily.

Thus it commands a channel through which ships must pass to go from one end of the Mediterranean to the other.

In naval circles it was said Panterraria has been heavily fortified and in consequence of a recent order now is in a state of the highest military efficiency.

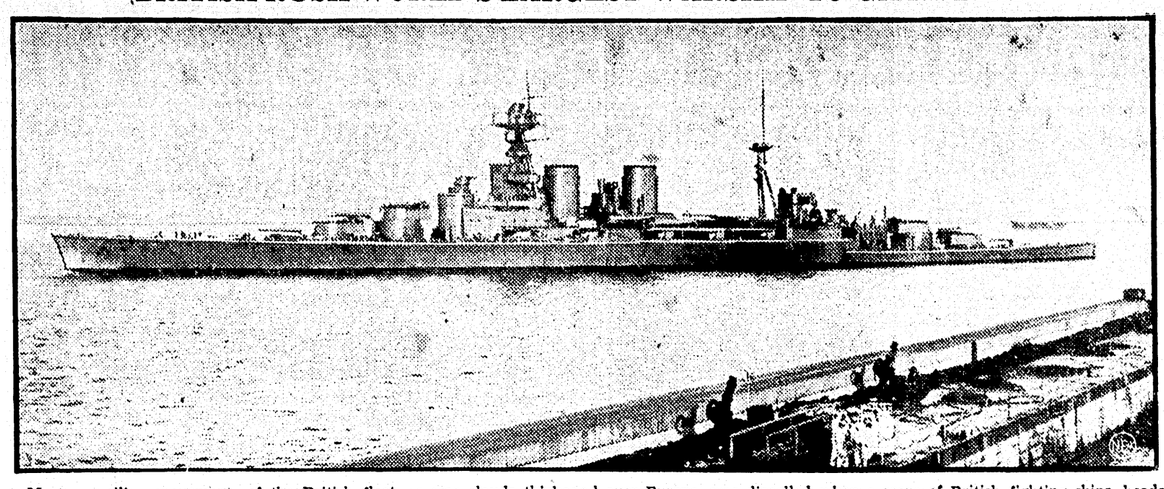

In keeping with the cabinet's rejection of the peace plan, five ships left Naples for east Africa with 6,717 men.

They were the Toscana, the Gange, the Aurora, the Securitas and the Pozzuoli. Motorized artillery supplies also were on board.

The Italian press declared Great Britain already has "adopted sanctions against Italy" and warned that Italy will be bound to respond whenever Mussolini sees fit.

BRITISH RUSH WORLD'S LARGEST WARSHIP TO GIBRALTAR

Mystery veiling movements of the British fleet, as war clouds thickened over Europe, was dispelled when a score of British fighting ships, headed by the Hood, world's largest warship, arrived at Gibraltar. As the British squadron reached the Mediterranean entrance, Mussolini ordered Italian naval forces split, one division taking up a strategic position in the Mediterranean. The Hood, shown here as it appeared on a previous visit to Gibraltar, is a "one-vessel navy," of 46,200 tons with full load, carrying 1,341 officers and crew. Costing $30,000,000, it mounts eight 15-inch and twelve 5.5-inch guns, 27 smaller guns, and six torpedo tubes. It is designed for 31 knots and can make 32 even in bad weather.

heat of battle clears, representatives of the administration will attempt to pull Noe out of the campaign and present a solid front to the opposition.

While the Long factions were battling in the caucus Congressman Cleveland Dear announced as a candidate for governor on the anti-Long ticket on a platform of restoring "local self government to Louisiana, bringing about peace and harmony with the national administration and repealing the dictatorial legislation that wiped out local self government." The anti-Longs only announced the candidate for governor with a complete slate expected within a few days.

In the midst of the announcing, A. Leonard Allen of Winn parish, brother of Gov. Allen, announced as a candidate for congress from the eighth district now held by Cleveland Dear.

Selection of the Long machine ticket came after 24 hours of wrangling among the leaders from the parishes with Governor Allen striving frantically to bring harmony among the warring groups. He finally sacrificed Noe and made up a slate including Earl Long, brother of Huey Long, for lieutenant-governor, Allen Ellender for the regular term for United States senator for the term beginning in January 1937, Wade Martin for Long's unexpired term, A. P. Tugwell, chairman of the state highway commission, for state treasurer, and the remainder of the incumbents in state office for reelection.

This ticket was regarded by political leaders as a direct slap at Noe, who defied the caucus by announcing his candidacy for governor several days ago with the Rev. Smith at his back.

The caucus also agreed that Governor Allen would be selected as the Democratic national committeeman and chairman of the state Democratic central committee, positions held by Huey Long.

Selection of the ticket was fraught with excitement and drama as the candidates clamored for position on the ticket. Finally a ticket was chosen shortly after three o'clock and Governor Allen issued an announcement. But before the announcement was published it was ordered killed after the Rev. Mr. Smith had walked into Gov. Allen's office and asked for a conference. Governor Allen went to Smith's room and at 7:30 p.m., he announced that the original ticket stood, Mr. Smith sought in vain to have Mr. Noe placed on the ticket.

George W. Wallace, close associate and adviser to Huey Long said:

"I have nothing to say except that I am for the slate 100 per cent."

Governor Allen's statement in announcing the ticket said:

"To the people of Louisiana:

"Because of a profound respect for the memory of my friend and the friend of the people, Senator Huey P. Long, I thought it proper that at least a short time elapse after his regrettable death before his friends should discuss politics. That consideration being now removed I deem it my duty to announce my position and that of the state organization relative to candidates for the approaching Democratic primary.

"I wish to make it clear that I have not hand-picked any candidate or set of candidates, nor has it ever been my intention to do so. Fortunately, for some time prior to his death there was no doubt in the mind of Senator Long as to who his candidate for Governor would be. Nor was there any doubt as to his choice for the other state offices with the exception of state treasurer, a non-re-elective post, and, of course, the office of United States senator for which he planned to run for re-election.

"The state ticket was E. A. Conway, secretary of state; Gaston L. Porterie, attorney-general; Mrs. Lucille May Grace Dent, registrar of the state land office; T. H. Harris, state superintendent of education; Harry D. Wilson, commissioner of agriculture; in other words those same state officers who have served the people faithfully and merited their confidence and support.

"On Sunday evening September 8, a few hours before he was shot I had a lengthy conference with Senator Long. The discussion centered around the governorship and on this occasion, as he had done on many prior occasions, Senator Long reiterated his wish that Judge Richard W. Leche be our candidate for governor. At these previous conferences Senator Long had asked me if I thought that Judge Leche would agree to run. I told him I did not think so because the judge had frequently expressed his love for the judiciary. The senator, however, pointed out that Judge Leche served for more than two years as my gubernatorial secretary and was thoroughly acquainted with the duties and responsibilities of the governor's office, that he had made thousands of friends all over the state and that his ability and training fitted him ideally for the office.

"Chairman A. P. Tugwell joined in the conference of that Sunday afternoon and later Lieutenant-Governor James A. Noe. Senator Long's last wishes as regarding the gubernatorial situation were that Judge Leche be our candidate. This fact was confirmed in a statement issued Friday night by Lieutenant-Governor Noe himself.

"During the past several days I have interviewed leaders from all parts of the state in my efforts to ascertain the wishes of those men and women of Louisiana who during the past decade have been the ones to whom Huey Long always turned for his political advice and counsel.

"I have conferred with our leaders in every one of the 64 parishes and I have found unanimous opinion and belief in their minds as to whom the state administration should support for governor.

"They want the administration to support the man that Senator Long wanted; it is the wish of the people that we do this.

"Therefore, as head of the Louisiana Democratic association and as chief executive of the state of Louisiana I hereby voice the wish of Senator Long and his friends. We will support Judge Richard W. Leche for governor. Our task will be to carry on the work of our great leader, Huey P. Long, both as regards the plans he had for the continued progressive strides forward in Louisiana and a relentless and vigorous continuation of nation-wide share our wealth movement.

"It is only fitting and proper that in our endeavor to carry on the Huey Long program that we announce a 100 per cent Huey Long ticket, the ticket headed by Judge Richard Leche—the only Huey Long ticket in the field.

"(Signed) O. K. ALLEN."

The Rev. Mr. Smith's statement follows:

"To the members of the Share-Our-Wealth society:

"In deciding to support the Huey Long Share-Our-Wealth ticket to be headed by Judge Richard W. Leche and Allen Ellender I do so because of their assurance that their campaign would be strictly according to the spirit and traditions of Huey P. Long and the platform of the Share-Our-Wealth society.

"I am especially pleased that one of the most outstanding members of the Share-Our-Wealth society, the Honorable Wade O. Martin, is to serve the unexpired term of Senator Huey P. Long.

"I shall always respect Mr. James A. Noe as a friend and as a citizen, but there comes a time in every man's life when he must choose between the personal ambitions of a man and the life of an organization."

Wade O. Martin's statement follows:

"For the good of the Long-Allen administration and for the assured future of the Share-Our-Wealth societies, I have decided to fill the unexpired term of my devoted friend, Huey P. Long.

"I will support the full ticket headed by Judge Richard W. Leche and Allen Ellender in the forthcoming election."

NOE 'EXPLODES'

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 21.—(AP)—The Rev. Gerald L. K. Smith, organizer for the "share-our-wealth" clubs, will have an extra speaker tomorrow at his rally at Monroe, Jimmy Noe, lieutenant governor, said tonight.

Noe took the jump on the Long-Governor O. K. Allen machine caucus and announced his candidacy for governor with the backing of Smith and his share-our-wealth society.

But tonight after the caucus had kicked Noe off the ticket and Smith had endorsed the official ticket, Noe exploded outright.

"I'm going to Monroe ahead of Dr. Smith and speak to those people," Mr. Noe said. "That is my home town."

DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE TO CHALLENGE COAL MEN

WASHINGTON, Sept. 21.—(AP)—The department of justice said today it would send a special staff of lawyers to Louisville next week to represent it in the challenge of the Guffey coal act in federal district court there.

What strategy the government will follow in answer to the coal men's recent maneuver, aimed at an immediate test of the coal act's constitutionality, was not disclosed.

The department declined to reveal the names of attorneys who would go to Louisville.

Knees Swollen To Twice Normal Size With Rheumatism

Mr. Hobbs Was Miserable for Years Before He Knew of Gly-Cas; New Remedy's Action Almost Miraculous; Entire System Regulated, Eats and Sleeps Good, Like New.

It is a striking fact that in many instances of awful suffering in which all kinds of medicines and treatments had failed, this amazing new Gly-Cas discovery has given results which are astounding. Many hundreds of Monroe residents have found this new remedy to be just the medicine they should have had years before to conquer their stubborn cases and restore them to good and glorious health.

"Gly-Cas without a doubt is the greatest medicine of the modern day," declared Mr. J. H. Hobbs, 210 South River Front, West Monroe, lifelong local resident and well known gentleman of this entire section, recently in talking with the Gly-Cas Man at the Phoenix Drug Co., 348 DeSiard St., this city. "I had lost confidence in all medicines before I began Gly-Cas. For nine years I had been in a miserable condition with rheumatism settled in my knees which swelled to twice their normal size and all my joints seemed to stiffen until I could hardly get about at all. The pain I endured was awful, a good night's sleep was impossible, was worn out all the time and had no energy to do anything. Constipation had allowed my system to become clogged with poisons which affected my stomach and kidneys. I got little enjoyment with this continual suffering day after day and no chance for relief—as medicine after medicine failed and it seemed I was throwing my money away even to try such remedies—but finally I began Gly-Cas, gave it an opportunity to help me—and my health has now been completely restored."

"It was almost miraculous how quickly and thoroughly Gly-Cas reached my case after the repeated failure of so many medicines," continued Mr. Hobbs. "My stomach and kidneys were regulated almost at once, and that dreadful swelling in my knees and the rheumatism over my entire body has been so greatly improved that I am practically a well man again. I am able to do my work with ease, seldom bothered in any way, my former pep and energy has been restored and I am feeling fine. Gly-Cas is truly one medicine that gives the DESIRED results—even when all else fails."

The Gly-Cas Man is daily meeting crowds of local people at the Phoenix Drug Co., 348 DeSiard St., where he is introducing and explaining the action of this valuable new medical discovery. Price $1.00 box—6 boxes for $5.00. Postage paid on receipt of price. —(Adv.)

Mystery veiling movements of the British fleet, as war clouds thickened over Europe, was dispelled when a score of British fighting ships, headed by the Hood, world's largest warship, arrived at Gibraltar. As the British squadron reached the Mediterranean entrance, Mussolini ordered Italian naval forces split, one division taking up a strategic position in the Mediterranean. The Hood, shown here as it appeared on a previous visit to Gibraltar, is a "one-vessel navy," of 46,200 tons with full load, carrying 1,341 officers and crew. Costing $30,000,000, it mounts eight 15-inch and twelve 5.5-inch guns, 27 smaller guns, and six torpedo tubes. It is designed for 31 knots and can make 32 even in bad weather.

heat of battle clears, representatives of the administration will attempt to pull Noe out of the campaign and present a solid front to the opposition.

While the Long factions were battling in the caucus Congressman Cleveland Dear announced as a candidate for governor on the anti-Long ticket on a platform of restoring "local self government to Louisiana, bringing about peace and harmony with the national administration and repealing the dictatorial legislation that wiped out local self government." The anti-Longs only announced the candidate for governor with a complete slate expected within a few days.

NOE 'EXPLODES'

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 21.—(AP)—The Rev. Gerald L. K. Smith, organizer for the "share-our-wealth" clubs, will have an extra speaker tomorrow at his rally at Monroe, Jimmy Noe, lieutenant governor, said tonight.

Noe took the jump on the Long-Governor O. K. Allen machine caucus and announced his candidacy for governor with the backing of Smith and his share-our-wealth society.

But tonight after the caucus had kicked Noe off the ticket and Smith had endorsed the official ticket, Noe exploded outright.

"I'm going to Monroe ahead of Dr. Smith and speak to those people," Mr. Noe said. "That is my home town."

In the midst of the announcing, A. Leonard Allen of Winn parish, brother of Gov. Allen, announced as a candidate for congress from the eighth district now held by Cleveland Dear.

Selection of the Long machine ticket came after 24 hours of wrangling among the leaders from the parishes with Governor Allen striving frantically to bring harmony among the warring groups. He finally sacrificed Noe and made up a slate including Earl Long, brother of Huey Long, for lieutenant-governor, Allen Ellender for the regular term for United States senator for the term beginning in January 1937, Wade Martin for Long's unexpired term, A. P. Tugwell, chairman of the state highway commission, for state treasurer, and the remainder of the incumbents in state office for reelection.

This ticket was regarded by political leaders as a direct slap at Noe, who defied the caucus by announcing his candidacy for governor several days ago with the Rev. Smith at his back.

The caucus also agreed that Governor Allen would be selected as the Democratic national committeeman and chairman of the state Democratic central committee, positions held by Huey Long.

Selection of the ticket was fraught with excitement and drama as the candidates clamored for position on the ticket. Finally a ticket was chosen shortly after three o'clock and Governor Allen issued an announcement. But before the announcement was published it was ordered killed after the Rev. Mr. Smith had walked into Gov. Allen's office and asked for a conference. Governor Allen went to Smith's room and at 7:30 p.m., he announced that the original ticket stood, Mr. Smith sought in vain to have Mr. Noe placed on the ticket.

George W. Wallace, close associate and adviser to Huey Long said:

"I have nothing to say except that I am for the slate 100 per cent."

Governor Allen's statement in announcing the ticket said:

"To the people of Louisiana:

"Because of a profound respect for the memory of my friend and the friend of the people, Senator Huey P. Long, I thought it proper that at least a short time elapse after his regrettable death before his friends should discuss politics. That consideration being now removed I deem it my duty to announce my position and that of the state organization relative to candidates for the approaching Democratic primary.

"I wish to make it clear that I have not hand-picked any candidate or set of candidates, nor has it ever been my intention to do so. Fortunately, for some time prior to his death there was no doubt in the mind of Senator Long as to who his candidate for Governor would be. Nor was there any doubt as to his choice for the other state offices with the exception of state treasurer, a non-re-elective post, and, of course, the office of United States senator for which he planned to run for re-election.

"The state ticket was E. A. Conway, secretary of state; Gaston L. Porterie, attorney-general; Mrs. Lucille May Grace Dent, registrar of the state land office; T. H. Harris, state superintendent of education; Harry D. Wilson, commissioner of agriculture; in other words those same state officers who have served the people faithfully and merited their confidence and support.

"On Sunday evening September 8, a few hours before he was shot I had a lengthy conference with Senator Long. The discussion centered around the governorship and on this occasion, as he had done on many prior occasions, Senator Long reiterated his wish that Judge Richard W. Leche be our candidate for governor. At these previous conferences Senator Long had asked me if I thought that Judge Leche would agree to run. I told him I did not think so because the judge had frequently expressed his love for the judiciary. The senator, however, pointed out that Judge Leche served for more than two years as my gubernatorial secretary and was thoroughly acquainted with the duties and responsibilities of the governor's office, that he had made thousands of friends all over the state and that his ability and training fitted him ideally for the office.

"Chairman A. P. Tugwell joined in the conference of that Sunday afternoon and later Lieutenant-Governor James A. Noe. Senator Long's last wishes as regarding the gubernatorial situation were that Judge Leche be our candidate. This fact was confirmed in a statement issued Friday night by Lieutenant-Governor Noe himself.

"During the past several days I have interviewed leaders from all parts of the state in my efforts to ascertain the wishes of those men and women of Louisiana who during the past decade have been the ones to whom Huey Long always turned for his political advice and counsel.

"I have conferred with our leaders in every one of the 64 parishes and I have found unanimous opinion and belief in their minds as to whom the state administration should support for governor.

"They want the administration to support the man that Senator Long wanted; it is the wish of the people that we do this.

"Therefore, as head of the Louisiana Democratic association and as chief executive of the state of Louisiana I hereby voice the wish of Senator Long and his friends. We will support Judge Richard W. Leche for governor. Our task will be to carry on the work of our great leader, Huey P. Long, both as regards the plans he had for the continued progressive strides forward in Louisiana and a relentless and vigorous continuation of nation-wide share our wealth movement.

"It is only fitting and proper that in our endeavor to carry on the Huey Long program that we announce a 100 per cent Huey Long ticket, the ticket headed by Judge Richard Leche—the only Huey Long ticket in the field.

"(Signed) O. K. ALLEN."

The Rev. Mr. Smith's statement follows:

"In deciding to support the Huey Long Share-Our-Wealth ticket to be headed by Judge Richard W. Leche and Allen Ellender I do so because of their assurance that their campaign would be strictly according to the spirit and traditions of Huey P. Long and the platform of the Share-Our-Wealth society.

"I am especially pleased that one of the most outstanding members of the Share-Our-Wealth society, the Honorable Wade O. Martin, is to serve the unexpired term of Senator Huey P. Long.

"I shall always respect Mr. James A. Noe as a friend and as a citizen, but there comes a time in every man's life when he must choose between the personal ambitions of a man and the life of an organization."

Wade O. Martin's statement follows:

"For the good of the Long-Allen administration and for the assured future of the Share-Our-Wealth societies, I have decided to fill the unexpired term of my devoted friend, Huey P. Long.

"I will support the full ticket headed by Judge Richard W. Leche and Allen Ellender in the forthcoming election."

DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE TO CHALLENGE COAL MEN

WASHINGTON, Sept. 21.—(AP)—The department of justice said today it would send a special staff of lawyers to Louisville next week to represent it in the challenge of the Guffey coal act in federal district court there.

What strategy the government will follow in answer to the coal men's recent maneuver, aimed at an immediate test of the coal act's constitutionality, was not disclosed.

The department declined to reveal the names of attorneys who would go to Louisville.

Mr. Hobbs Was Miserable for Years Before He Knew of Gly-Cas; New Remedy's Action Almost Miraculous; Entire System Regulated, Eats and Sleeps Good, Like New.

It is a striking fact that in many instances of awful suffering in which all kinds of medicines and treatments had failed, this amazing new Gly-Cas discovery has given results which are astounding. Many hundreds of Monroe residents have found this new remedy to be just the medicine they should have had years before to conquer their stubborn cases and restore them to good and glorious health.

"Gly-Cas without a doubt is the greatest medicine of the modern day," declared Mr. J. H. Hobbs, 210 South River Front, West Monroe, lifelong local resident and well known gentleman of this entire section, recently in talking with the Gly-Cas Man at the Phoenix Drug Co., 348 DeSiard St., this city, "I had lost confidence in all medicines before I began Gly-Cas. For nine years I had been in a miserable condition with rheumatism settled in my knees which swelled to twice their normal size and all my joints seemed to stiffen until I could hardly get about at all. The pain I endured was awful, a good night's sleep was impossible, was worn out all the time and had no energy to do anything. Constipation had allowed my system to become clogged with poisons which affected my stomach and kidneys. I got little enjoyment with this continual suffering day after day and no chance for relief—as medicine after medicine failed and it seemed I was throwing my money away even to try such remedies—but finally I began Gly-Cas, gave it an opportunity to help me—and my health has now been completely restored."

"It was almost miraculous how quickly and thoroughly Gly-Cas reached my case after the repeated failure of so many medicines," continued Mr. Hobbs. "My stomach and kidneys were regulated almost at once, and that dreadful swelling in my knees and the rheumatism over my entire body has been so greatly improved that I am practically a well man again. I am able to do my work with ease, seldom bothered in any way, my former pep and energy has been restored and I am feeling fine. Gly-Cas is truly one medicine that gives the DESIRED results—even when all else fails."

The Gly-Cas Man is daily meeting crowds of local people at the Phoenix Drug Co., 348 DeSiard St., where he is introducing and explaining the action of this valuable new medical discovery. Price $1.00 box—6 boxes for $5.00. Postage paid on receipt of price. —(Adv.)

Come on in and see the new 1936 RCA Victors at Radio Headquarters . . . See the new Magic Eye . . . the New Magic Brain . . . New Metal Tubes . . . They're all incorporated in these new sets. Get domestic programs . . . and foreign programs from 140 to 60,000 kilocycles. Police, aviation, and amateur phone. Automatic volume, new selector dial, 2 speed tuning . . . tone control, etc.

THE 'Magic Eye'
How it brings you perfect tuning!

The "Magic Eye", an electric "beam" . . . which looks much like a human eye . . . tells when you are precisely in tune. No more blurred reception or "off-center" tone. Turn the set on, a dark colored shadow appears on the "Magic Eye." Dial, and it gets larger or smaller as if focusing on an object. When the station is tuned in for its most perfect reception, the shadow becomes a narrow line. You have tuned in with your eyes . . . more sharply than any human ear could.

Cotton

New Orleans

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 21.—(AP)—Losses of 8 to 9 points were marked up today against cotton futures here as selling, consisted largely of hedge offerings, came into the market.

Active options were lower from the first call when they failed to respond to good foreign markets and a point-by-point decline during the two hours of trading found October ending at 10.45, December at 10.48 and May at 10.85.

Some realizing sales and profit taking on the recent advantage also appeared in the market. When coupled with week-end liquidation these factors proved too much for the market and prices began to slip off.

Price fixing by the trade, one of the sustaining factors of recent dealings, was lacking today and the market was afforded little support from any quarter.

Cotton futures closed steady at net declines of 8 to 9 points.

AVERAGE MIDDLING PRICE

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 21.—(AP)—The average price of middling spot cotton at 10 southern markets today was 10.46 cents a pound; the government subsidy on cotton sold today will be 1.54 cents a pound.

New York

NEW YORK, Sept. 21.—(AP)—The rejection of the league's peace proposal by the Italian cabinet seemed to have a somewhat unsettling effect on cotton today.

December declined to 10.51, or 10 points net lower and 27 points below the high price of yesterday, with the market closing barely steady at net declines of 6 to 11 points.

New York Stocks

By Victor Eubank
(Associated Press Financial Writer)

New York, Sept. 21.—Mild rallying tendencies appeared in today's brief stock market session, but there was still sufficient selling to keep the list somewhat off balance.

Traders appeared to have recovered partially from their every war fright of yesterday and nibbling at selected issues was noted. The close was moderately irregular. Transfers approximated 650,000 shares.

Despite the rejection by the Mussolini cabinet of the League of Nation's peace proposals in the Italo-Ethiopian controversy, Wall Street saw hopes of a compromise and some short covering was based on this thesis. In addition, a few bargain hunters appeared in the boardrooms with the idea of shaving profits on at least a temporary technical rebound.

Commodities that were run up on the prospects of hostilities starting soon were inclined to back up as ideas of a new conflagration were revised. Wheat and corn slipped during most of the day along with cotton. Secondary bonds developed a little better tone and foreign exchanges, generally, were a bit firmer in terms of the dollar.

Shares about unchanged to slightly improved included Montgomery Ward, General Electric, Westinghouse, Western Union, Consolidated Gas, National Dairy, Electric Auto-Lite, Anaconda, Kennecott, Union Pacific, N. Y. Central, Santa Fe and Great Northern. Among losers of about a point each were Air Reduction, Allied Chemical and U. S. Smelting. Such stocks as General Motors, Chrysler, Case, U. S. Steel and Bethlehem moved a shade in either direction.

Offerings from abroad were still a factor in the range of securities prices. But commission houses with foreign connections said that liquidation from these sources appeared to have lessened considerably.

In line with this, it was pointed out that the situation now, so far as foreign holdings in the United States are concerned, is much different than in 1914. Then most of the proceeds of sales was shipped back to Europe. Funds derived from recent transactions, however, were understood to have been allowed to remain in New York. From this, optimistic brokers deduced that when, as and if, a substantial rebound gets under way, many commitments will be reinstated.

MARKETS AT A GLANCE

NEW YORK, Sept. 21.—(AP)—Stocks irregular; selling abates; scattered recoveries appear. Bonds mixed; secondary issues resistant. Curb uneven; specialties supported. Foreign exchanges improved; gold currencies higher. Cotton lower; local and southern hedge selling. Sugar, coffee, closed.

Chicago Grain

CHICAGO, Sept .21.—(AP)—In an active but unexcited market, grain prices went downhill early today.

Announcement of Italy's rejection of the League of Nation's peace plan for Ethiopia had been heralded long before today's trading began, but evoked no unusual outburst of buying orders.

Opening 1-8 to 1 3-8 cents a bushel lower, December 99-99 1-2, the Chicago wheat market then held near to the initial range. Corn started 1-8-1-2 off, December 58 1-8 to 1-4, and afterward sagged further.

Wheat closed unsettled, 5-8 to 1 3-8 under yesterday's finish, Dec. 99 1-2 to 1-4, corn 1-2 off to 3-8 up, Dec. 58 3-4 to 7-8, oats at 1-4 decline to 1-2 advance, and provisions varying from 5 cents setback to an equal gain.

TREASURY ISSUES WORN COINS

To prevent the melting of coins during the rapid rise in the price of silver in the Straits Settlements recently the treasury in Singapore issued fivecent pieces of 1917-1918 mintage. They contain less silver than new coins and therefore were not worth melting. The worn coins are rapidly returning to the treasury, and officials say the ruse averted a further rise in silver prices.

INDUSTRIAL--REVIEW OF THE TWIN CITIES

Boyce-Kendall Garage Is Agent For "Aerobuilt" Motor In Monroe

With the coming of the hunting season next month, and with good fishing still here, a new "aerobuilt" outboard motor of the 1935 model will be an added convenience. Boyce-Kendall garage at 111 North Third street has the agency for them in Monroe.

This new Johnson motor is lightly constructed and is very durable. It will withstand all hard use. It weighs only 37 pounds and has a displacement of only 7.6 cubic feet. It develops 3.7 N. O., a certified brake horsepower at 4,000 revolutions per minute, and it has the advanced features of aeronautical construction.

Several distinct models are available from which to choose, and Mr. Boyce states that they are able to give excellent service to all customers.

In the automotive line Boyce-Kendall is well equipped to do all kinds of mechanical repairs. The Bee-Line system is used to correct shimmy, hard steering and tire wear. It accurately straightens and aligns front axles on all makes of automobiles making it no longer necessary to remove and heat the axle to properly straighten it.

All kinds of body work is done in a completely equipped body department, Duco painting is a specialty.

In charge of the radiator department is "Shorty" Jones who has had ten years of experience in this line of work. Radiators are cleaned and repaired at a nominal cost.

A superior wrecker service is operated completing the equipment for the garage. When your car is brought to Boyce-Kendall it can be completely refinished and overhauled without leaving the garage.

DAIRY DEALERS GIVE MILK HINTS

Milk Is Pasteurized For Added Safety By Cooperative Dairies

Milk is a food that no one should do without, because it contains so many elements of a healthful diet. It is of the greatest importance that growing children have all the milk that they can drink because all of the elements that the body requires are found in milk. It should not be regarded as a beverage, but as a food. It has many uses beside serving in drink form.

Pasteurizing makes milk safe. All of the milk of the Cooperative Dairies is both pasteurized and filtered, making it not only perfectly safe, but absolutely clean.

It is very important that you know where your milk is produced. Make a visit to your dairy and see the sanitary way in which the milk is handled. Through pasteurizing all the danger is removed that might occur from carelessness of the dairy help. Pasteurizing insures your health.

A visit to your dairy and then to the plant at 2305 South Grand street will show you just how carefully and safely all the products are handled by the Dairy Association.

A few of the precautions that should be taken were given by the association. Buy pasteurized milk in bottles; before opening the bottle wash it off under a faucet and wipe with a clean cloth; if only part of the milk is used, do not replace the cap but invert a tumbler over the bottle; always keep your milk clean, cold and covered; when you have dairy problems to solve, phone 2600 or 2601 and Cooperative Dairies will gladly help you solve them.

Milk, cream, butter milk, cream cheese, butter, and chocolate milk can be supplied right from the wagons of the Dairy Association. Their wagons are routed on your street everyday. Each driver is their salesman and he is more than glad to serve and help you in any way.

WHAT A FIGHT!

Young Corbett III, Fresno southpaw and former welterweight champion, has had some tough fights in his ring career, but none of them was any more exciting than his fight with a striped bass that won him first prize in the Ario Vista, Calif., bass derby, attended by 30,000 spectators. Here Corbett proudly displays the 20-pound 2-ounce fish.

VOICES KNOWN AFTER 25 YEARS

Meeting for the first time since their boyhood 25 years ago, two blind men recognized each other's voice when they met recently in Bradford Blind Institute in Bradford, England. Before any names were mentioned one said, "Surely I know that voice. It's Jim Robertson, isn't it?" "It is an' all," replied the other, "all that's left of him. And I bet that's John Hardacre." Both had lost their sight since their last boyhood meeting.

Lake Tana in Ethiopia is 47 miles long by 44 wide and covers approximately 1,100 square miles.

Ford V-8 Speeds Up Deliveries And Cuts Transportation Costs

The motor truck has opened up recently vast new markets for perishable foods. By cutting transportation costs and speeding up deliveries, light, fast units like the Ford V-8 also have reduced the prices of such foods to the consumer, and taken them out of the luxury class.

There was a time within the memories of many of us, when, only a few miles back from the sea, fresh seafoods just weren't to be had for love or money; when even the very rich couldn't have strawberries in January, and if a city-dweller had to have a cucumber out of season, it came from a local hothouse and cost an amazing price.

Now fast transportation, combined with improved refrigeration, is bringing fresh, perishable foods—fish from the Atlantic, Pacific, and the Gulf of Mexico, meats from Chicago, Kansas City, Cincinnati, and Denver, fruit from the Imperial valley, from Florida, and the gulf coast, milk and dairy products from distant plants, vegetables from the southeast and southwest—to consumers many hundreds of miles away.

Railroads and the ice industry pioneered this traffic, but now motor trucks, equipped with special insulated bodies, some mounted on trailers and semi-trailers and chilled by refrigerating machinery, are expanding the trade at a great pace, extending it to every nook and corner of the country, to towns not served by railroads.

The abilities of the motor truck to start on a trip immediately after it is loaded, travel fast to its destination, deliver its perishable freight in good condition, at minimum cost of transportation has enabled the highway freighters to get an ever-increasing share of this business. Good roads, improved truck engines, the discovery of new means of insulation and lighter, stronger steel alloys, and the development of mechanical refrigeration have all contributed to the progress of perishable freight trucking.

In developing this business and in order to keep costs as low as possible, light, powerful, fast, low-cost units, like the Ford V-8, costing a minimum to operate, are being used.

Here are some examples of these operations:

A fleet of 12 Ford V-8s traveled a total distance of 437,652 miles trucking Florida citrus fruits at a cost of 3.949 a mile, exclusive of drivers' pay.

Equipped with a refrigerated cargo body mounted on a semi-trailer, a Ford V-8 chassis pulled payloads of five tons of fruit 76,000 miles, approximately eight miles to the gallon of gasoline.

Hauling sixty 125-pound boxes of shrimp packed in two tons of ice, three Ford V-8 trucks in Florida average 11 miles to the gallon of gasoline.

A Ford V-8 tanker hauls 1,850 gallons of ice cream mix, weighing 15 tons, 97 miles twice daily from Ovid, Mich., to Detroit, at a speed of 30 m.p.h., eight miles to the gallon of gasoline.

ARMATURE WORKS IS WELL EQUIPPED

Rewinding And Repair Of Industrial Motors Is A Specialty

It is one of the best equipped plants of its kind in the state of Louisiana. There are larger plants in New Orleans, but there are none of its size in other cities in the state, and not even the larger plants in New Orleans are better equipped to turn out the efficient work than the Monroe Armature Works.

The firm caters largely to industrial electric work, although they repair any kind of motor, large or small. Repairs on electric motors, motor rewinding, control apparatus, supplies and power equipment are a specialty of the concern. The plant does not solicit house wiring and automobile electric work.

Only thoroughly skilled men are employed and the highest class of work is turned out. Mr. Harrison has operated the local plant for eight years, and in all, he has had 15 years of experience in the electrical field.

GUERRIERO GIVES ELECTRIC SERVICE

Estimates Are Given On Any Size Job, And 10-Minute Service Is Featured

A feature that has proved popular with the people of Monroe is the ten minute service on electrical repair work that is featured by F. L. Guerriero Electric Shop. Any time during the day or night when an electrician is needed a call will quickly bring someone to fix it.

Mr. Guerriero is in a position to give figures on any size electrical job. He has completed many large jobs such as the M. S. Biedenharn on the Loop road, and the Roger White home. Mr. Guerriero can be reached by calling 1451.

During the winter when people are shut in to a certain extent it is an added convenience to have a lamp located where it is most needed. A wall or floor plug can be installed at a very reasonable charge and it will more than pay for itself by the comfort that it gives. Let Mr. Guerriero call and advise you where it is best to locate these electrical fixtures.

The shop has always been known for high quality work, and Mr. Guerriero personally supervised all contracts that are given to him. He is well acquainted in Monroe and is highly regarded in the electrical business.

At present he employs two other experienced assistants.

In the engineering field the Monroe Armature Works rewind motors for new speeds and changes motors to operate under new conditions. They are thoroughly capable of handling such jobs as their many clients will testify.

All kinds of parts for motors, generators, switches and supplies are carried. Any item used in their work may be found there.

Often the Monroe Armature Works is called upon to overhaul, rewind and condition enormous motors and the public is invited to observe these operations. The address is 2019 DeSiard and the phone is 98. Owners of Industrial motors will find the charges of this concern very reasonable.

Cotton

New Orleans

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 21.—(AP)—Losses of 8 to 9 points were marked up today against cotton futures here as selling, consisted largely of hedge offerings, came into the market.

Active options were lower from the first call when they failed to respond to good foreign markets and a point-by-point decline during the two hours of trading found October ending at 10.45, December at 10.48 and May at 10.65.

Some realizing sales and profit taking on the recent advantage also appeared in the market. When coupled with week-end liquidation these factors proved too much for the market and prices began to slip off.

Price fixing by the trade, one of the sustaining factors of recent dealings, was lacking today and the market was afforded little support from any quarter.

Cotton futures closed steady at net declines of 8 to 9 points.

AVERAGE MIDDLING PRICE

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 21.—(AP)—The average price of middling spot cotton at 10 southern markets today was 10.46 cents a pound; the government subsidy on cotton sold today will be 1.54 cents a pound.

New York

NEW YORK, Sept. 21.—(AP)—The rejection of the league's peace proposal by the Italian cabinet seemed to have a somewhat unsettling effect on cotton today.

December declined to 10.51, or 10 points net lower and 27 points below the high price of yesterday, with the market closing barely steady at net declines of 6 to 11 points.

By Victor Eubank
(Associated Press Financial Writer)

New York, Sept. 21.—Mild rallying tendencies appeared in today's brief stock market session, but there was still sufficient selling to keep the list somewhat off balance.

Traders appeared to have recovered partially from their every war fright of yesterday and nibbling at selected issues was noted. The close was moderately irregular. Transfers approximated 650,000 shares.

Despite the rejection by the Mussolini cabinet of the League of Nation's peace proposals in the Italo-Ethiopian controversy, Wall Street saw hopes of a compromise and some short covering was based on this thesis. In addition, a few bargain hunters appeared in the boardrooms with the idea of shaving profits on at least a temporary technical rebound.

Commodities that were run up on the prospects of hostilities starting soon were inclined to back up as ideas of a new conflagration were revised. Wheat and corn slipped during most of the day along with cotton. Secondary bonds developed a little better tone and foreign exchanges, generally, were a bit firmer in terms of the dollar.

Shares about unchanged to slightly improved included Montgomery Ward, General Electric, Westinghouse, Western Union, Consolidated Gas, National Dairy, Electric Auto-Lite, Anaconda, Kennecott, Union Pacific, N. Y. Central, Santa Fe and Great Northern. Among losers of about a point each were Air Reduction, Allied Chemical and U. S. Smelting. Such stocks as General Motors, Chrysler, Case, U. S. Steel and Bethlehem moved a shade in either direction.

Offerings from abroad were still a factor in the range of securities prices. But commission houses with foreign connections said that liquidation from these sources appeared to have lessened considerably.

In line with this, it was pointed out that the situation now, so far as foreign holdings in the United States are concerned, is much different than in 1914. Then most of the proceeds of sales was shipped back to Europe. Funds derived from recent transactions, however, were understood to have been allowed to remain in New York. From this, optimistic brokers deduced that when, as and if, a substantial rebound gets under way, many commitments will be reinstated.

MARKETS AT A GLANCE

Curb uneven; specialties supported. Foreign exchanges improved; gold currencies higher. Cotton lower; local and southern hedge selling. Sugar, coffee, closed.

Chicago Grain

CHICAGO, Sept 21.—(AP)—In an active but unexcited market, grain prices went downhill early today.

Announcement of Italy's rejection of the League of Nation's peace plan for Ethiopia had been heralded long before today's trading began, but evoked no unusual outburst of buying orders.

Opening 1-8 to 1 3-8 cents a bushel lower, December 99-99 1-2, the Chicago wheat market then held near to the initial range. Corn started 1-8-1-2 off, December 58 1-8 to 1-4, and afterward sagged further.

Wheat closed unsettled, 5-8 to 1 3-8 under yesterday's finish, Dec. 99 1-2 to 1-4, corn 1-2 off to 3-8 up, Dec. 58 3-4 to 7-8, oats at 1-4 decline to 1-2 advance, and provisions varying from 5 cents setback to an equal gain.

TREASURY ISSUES WORN COINS

To prevent the melting of coins during the rapid rise in the price of silver in the Straits Settlements recently the treasury in Singapore issued five-cent pieces of 1917-1918 mintage. They contain less silver than new coins and therefore were not worth melting. The worn coins are rapidly returning to the treasury, and officials say the ruse averted a further rise in silver prices.

INDUSTRIAL--REVIEW OF THE TWIN CITIES

Boyce-Kendall Garage Is Agent For "Aerobuilt" Motor In Monroe

With the coming of the hunting season next month, and with good fishing still here, a new "aerobuilt" outboard motor of the 1935 model will be an added convenience. Boyce-Kendall garage at 111 North Third street has the agency for them in Monroe.

This new Johnson motor is lightly constructed and is very durable. It will withstand all hard use. It weighs only 37 pounds and has a displacement of only 7.6 cubic feet. It develops 3.7 N. O., a certified brake horsepower at 4,000 revolutions per minute, and it has the advanced features of aeronautical construction.

Several distinct models are available from which to choose, and Mr. Boyce states that they are able to give excellent service to all customers.

In the automotive line Boyce-Kendall is well equipped to do all kinds of mechanical repairs. The Bee-Line system is used to correct shimmy, hard steering and tire wear. It accurately straightens and aligns front axles on all makes of automobiles making it no longer necessary to remove and heat the axle to properly straighten it.

All kinds of body work is done in a completely equipped body department. Duco painting is a specialty.

In charge of the radiator department is "Shorty" Jones who has had ten years of experience in this line of work. Radiators are cleaned and repaired at a nominal cost.

A superior wrecker service is operated completing the equipment for the garage. When your car is brought to Boyce-Kendall it can be completely refinished and overhauled without leaving the garage.

DAIRY DEALERS GIVE MILK HINTS

Milk Is Pasteurized For Added Safety By Cooperative Dairies

Milk is a food that no one should do without, because it contains so many elements of a healthful diet. It is of the greatest importance that growing children have all the milk that they can drink because all of the elements that the body requires are found in milk. It should not be regarded as a beverage, but as a food. It has many uses beside serving in drink form.

Pasteurizing makes milk safe. All of the milk of the Cooperative Dairies is both pasteurized and filtered, making it not only perfectly safe, but absolutely clean.

It is very important that you know where your milk is produced. Make a visit to your dairy and see the sanitary way in which the milk is handled. Through pasteurizing all the danger is removed that might occur from carelessness of the dairy help. Pasteurizing insures your health.

A visit to your dairy and then to the plant at 2305 South Grand street will show you just how carefully and safely all the products are handled by the Dairy Association.

A few of the precautions that should be taken were given by the association. Buy pasteurized milk in bottles; before opening the bottle wash it off under a faucet and wipe with a clean cloth; if only part of the milk is used, do not replace the cap but invert a tumbler over the bottle; always keep your milk clean, cold and covered; when you have dairy problems to solve, phone 2600 or 2601 and Cooperative Dairies will gladly help you solve them.

Milk, cream, butter milk, cream cheese, butter, and chocolate milk can be supplied right from the wagons of the Dairy Association. Their wagons are routed on your street everyday. Each driver is their salesman and he is more than glad to serve and help you in any way.

Meeting for the first time since their boyhood 25 years ago, two blind men recognized each other's voice when they met recently in Bradford Blind Institute in Bradford, England. Before any names were mentioned one said, "Surely I know that voice. It's Jim Robertson, isn't it?" "It is an' all," replied the other, "all that's left of him. And I bet that's John Hardacre." Both had lost their sight since their last boyhood meeting.

Lake Tana in Ethiopia is 47 miles long by 44 wide and covers approximately 1,100 square miles.

WHAT A FIGHT!

Young Corbett III, Fresno southpaw and former welterweight champion, has had some tough fights in his ring career, but none of them was any more exciting than his fight with a striped bass that won him first prize in the Ario Vista, Calif., bass derby, attended by 30,000 spectators. Here Corbett proudly displays the 20-pound 2-ounce fish.

TRUCKS DELIVER PERISHABLE FOOD

Ford V-8 Speeds Up Deliveries And Cuts Transportation Costs

The motor truck has opened up recently vast new markets for perishable foods. By cutting transportation costs and speeding up deliveries, light, fast units like the Ford V-8 also have reduced the prices of such foods to the consumer, and taken them out of the luxury class.

There was a time within the memories of many of us, when, only a few miles back from the sea, fresh seafoods just weren't to be had for love or money; when even the very rich couldn't have strawberries in January, and if a city-dweller had to have a cucumber out of season, it came from a local hothouse and cost an amazing price.

Now fast transportation, combined with improved refrigeration, is bringing fresh, perishable foods—fish from the Atlantic, Pacific, and the Gulf of Mexico, meats from Chicago, Kansas City, Cincinnati, and Denver, fruit from the Imperial valley, from Florida, and the gulf coast, milk and dairy products from distant plants, vegetables from the southeast and southwest—to consumers many hundreds of miles away.

Railroads and the ice industry pioneered this traffic, but now motor trucks, equipped with special insulated bodies, some mounted on trailers and semi-trailers and chilled by refrigerating machinery, are expanding the trade at a great pace, extending it to every nook and corner of the country, to towns not served by railroads.

The abilities of the motor truck to start on a trip immediately after it is loaded, travel fast to its destination, deliver its perishable freight in good condition, at minimum cost of transportation has enabled the highway freighters to get an ever-increasing share of this business. Good roads, improved truck engines, the discovery of new means of insulation and lighter, stronger steel alloys, and the development of mechanical refrigeration have all contributed to the progress of perishable freight trucking.

In developing this business and in order to keep costs as low as possible, light, powerful, fast, low-cost units, like the Ford V-8, costing a minimum to operate, are being used.

Here are some examples of these operations:

A fleet of 12 Ford V-8s traveled a total distance of 437,652 miles trucking Florida citrus fruits at a cost of 3.949 a mile, exclusive of drivers' pay.

Equipped with a refrigerated cargo body mounted on a semi-trailer, a Ford V-8 chassis pulled payloads of five tons of fruit 76,000 miles, approximately eight miles to the gallon of gasoline.

Hauling sixty 125-pound boxes of shrimp packed in two tons of ice, three Ford V-8 trucks in Florida average 11 miles to the gallon of gasoline.

A Ford V-8 tanker hauls 1,850 gallons of ice cream mix, weighing 15 tons, 97 miles twice daily from Ovid, Mich., to Detroit, at a speed of 30 m.p.h., eight miles to the gallon of gasoline.

ARMATURE WORKS IS WELL EQUIPPED

Rewinding And Repair Of Industrial Motors Is A Specialty

It is one of the best equipped plants of its kind in the state of Louisiana. There are larger plants in New Orleans, but there are none of its size in other cities in the state, and not even the larger plants in New Orleans are better equipped to turn out the efficient work than the Monroe Armature Works.

The firm caters largely to industrial electric work, although they repair any kind of motor, large or small. Repairs on electric motors, motor rewinding, control apparatus, supplies and power equipment are a specialty of the concern. The plant does not solicit house wiring and automobile electric work.

Only thoroughly skilled men are employed and the highest class of work is turned out. Mr. Harrison has operated the local plant for eight years, and in all, he has had 15 years of experience in the electrical field. At present he employs two other experienced assistants.

In the engineering field the Monroe Armature Works rewind motors for new speeds and changes motors to operate under new conditions. They are thoroughly capable of handling such jobs as their many clients will testify.

All kinds of parts for motors, generators, switches and supplies are carried. Any item used in their work may be found there.

Often the Monroe Armature Works is called upon to overhaul, rewind and condition enormous motors and the public is invited to observe these operations. The address is 2019 DeSiard and the phone is 98. Owners of Industrial motors will find the charges of this concern very reasonable.

GUERRIERO GIVES ELECTRIC SERVICE

Estimates Are Given On Any Size Job, And 10-Minute Service Is Featured

A feature that has proved popular with the people of Monroe is the ten minute service on electrical repair work that is featured by F. L. Guerriero Electric Shop. Any time during the day or night when an electrician is needed a call will quickly bring someone to fix it.

Mr. Guerriero is in a position to give figures on any size electrical job. He has completed many large jobs such as the M. S. Biedenharn on the Loop road, and the Roger White home. Mr. Guerriero can be reached by calling 1451.

During the winter when people are shut in to a certain extent it is an added convenience to have a lamp located where it is most needed. A wall or floor plug can be installed at a very reasonable charge and it will more than pay for itself by the comfort that it gives. Let Mr. Guerriero call and advise you where it is best to locate these electrical fixtures.

The shop has always been known for high quality work, and Mr. Guerriero personally supervised all contracts that are given to him. He is well acquainted in Monroe and is highly regarded in the electrical business.

DETROIT TIGERS CLINCH AMERICAN LEAGUE FLAG

Elden Auker Hurls Victory In Nightcap; Bridges Bags Opening Game

DETROIT, Sept. 21.—(AP)—The Detroit Tigers, behind brilliant pitching by two of their four mound aces, mathematically riveted a second consecutive American league pennant to their home flagpole today by sweeping a double-header with the St. Louis Browns, 6-2 and 2-0.

Elden Auker

Should Detroit lose all its remaining seven games, the second place New York Yankees, who beat Boston today, could not catch them by sweeping their eight remaining games. If that happened, Detroit would have 92 won and 59 lost; New York, 91 won and 59 lost.

To Elden Auker, the tall Kansan, went the honor of clinching the flag for the Bengals. The "submarine ball" artist shut out the Browns, allowing only six hits. Pete Fox scored both Detroit runs, crossing the plate in the third and again in the fifth on singles by Walker and Gehringer.

In the opener Detroit won behind Tommy Bridges, who struck out eight and allowed only seven safe blows to win his 21st game of the season. A crowd of 31,000 saw Manager Mickey Cochrane's club clinch the bunting, but outside of a few thrown hats there was no demonstration.

Detroit annexed its second straight title mainly through the pitching of Bridges, Auker, Lynwood (Schoolboy) Rowe and the veteran Alvin Crowder. These four pitchers won 73 of the 92 games which Detroit has in the win column, Bridges has a mark of 21 won and 9 lost; Auker, 18 and 6; Rowe, 18 and 12, and Crowder 16 and 9.

It was a happy crowd of Tigers who left the field after the second game. Cochrane was elated, personally satisfied he had proved his club a well-balanced aggregation which was not just lucky to win the pennant last season.

Detroit, in last place in April and floundering badly, began its drive for the league lead in June, and in July caught and then passed the Yankees. Under Cochrane's handling the pitching improved, and one of the main reasons Cochrane had success with his hurlers was that he was able to work them regularly, in turn. After passing New York, Detroit made a runaway of the race.

PREXY UPHOLDS PLAYOFF RULING

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Sept. 21.—(AP)—Fay Murray, president of Nashville's Southern association club, said tonight the league's directorate had upheld a ruling of President John D. Martin that if it is necessary to play off a tie game in the Shaughnessy competition between Atlanta and Nashville the site will be determined by tossing a coin.

Earl Mann, president of the Atlanta club, had contended that the game should be played in Atlanta Monday. The final decision brought sharp criticism from Mann who declared it was "the most unjust action in the history of the league."

Atlanta and Nashville tied the second of their five-game series in the Georgia city Thursday. Atlanta won the first game there and the third here. If Atlanta wins here tomorrow afternoon, no playoff of the tie will be necessary. A Nashville victory, however, would demand it.

When Atlanta and Nashville failed to come to an agreement over deciding the place of the playoff, the Crackers appeal to Judge Martin who ruled in favor of tossing a coin. Mann then appealed to the league directors.

"We came over here with the half way understanding that we would playoff the tie game in Atlanta Monday," he said tonight. "When we got here Nashville officials insisted that a coin be tossed to determine the site of the playoff in case Nashville wins Sunday.

"I have been against the Shaughnessy system since it was urged for adoption. Atlanta has been fair with everyone. It seems as other towns in the league insist on being unfair to Atlanta."

Of the decision Murray said:

"That was the original agreement and we want to live up to it."

JACKETS SMOTHERED BY TEXAS CHRISTIAN

FORT WORTH, Texas, Sept. 21.—(AP)—With a dazzling display of ball handling and an alert defense, Texas Christian opened its football campaign here Saturday afternoon by smothering Howard-Payne college 41 to 0.

It was the first defeat suffered by the Yellow Jackets, champions of the Texas conference, who are favored to repeat, since Nov. 11, 1933, and the worst suffered by the Brownwood school in five years.

T. C. U. scored in every period, once in the first, once in the second, twice in the third and twice in the fourth.

The Frogs scored three of the six touchdowns with their own offensive weapons, and three by cashing in on the Jackets desperate but foolish passing attack. Coaches Dutch Meyer and Bear Wolf left their first string team on the field only seven minutes of the fray—long enough to pile up six first downs and score in the first quarter and add a quick touchdown at the beginning of the third.

RAZORBACKS DEFEAT FROSH IN PRACTICE

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark., Sept. 21.—(AP)—The University of Arkansas varsity squad defeated the freshmen today 51 to 0 in the first practice game of the pre-schedule season.

The aerial game of the Razorbacks, improved by steady drill, was deadly. The combination of Wynne to Jeffries clicked.

Touchdowns were made by Jeffries, Keen, Holt, Johnson, Wynne and Rucker while Holt and Brown provided extra points.

Lateral passing was quick, often, and accurate, an unusual number being completed. Few receivers had to stop before they reached the goal line.

Pride Of Ozarks Gives Brilliant Exhibition To Save Game In Ninth

CHICAGO, Sept. 21.—(AP)—For ten thrill packed minutes, the sensational Chicago Cubs winning streak hung by a thread today, but the pride of Ozarks Lonnie Warneke came to the rescue to weave it into the 17th straight victory by stopping the Pittsburgh Pirates and giving the men of Grimm a 4 to 3 conquest.

Lon Warneke

Stopped dead in their tracks for eight innings under the spell of Roy Henshaw's southpaw slants, which had limited them to one run and only four scattered hits, the Pirates staged a ninth inning uprising that chased the diminutive Cub lefty and forced Warneke to give one of the most brilliant relief exhibitions in baseball to halt their drive.

None of the 38,624 spectators stirred much when Woddy Jensen opened with a hit that Billy Herman couldn't quite handle, but the explosion was quick and almost disastrous. Dan Hafey singled over second and Lloyd Waner dropped another high single down the first base line, scoring Jensen and sending Hafey to third. Arky Vaughan, hitless all day, then responded by hitting deep to Herman, landing safe at first and scoring Hafey when Phil Cavarretta failed to get back to first. It was the fourth successive hit and two runs were in and still nobody out. The score was 4 to 3.

It was then that Warneke came to the rescue as the tense crowd, joyous as the Cubs had belted the revenge-bent Guy Bush for four runs and eight hits in seven innings, groaned. But Warneke had just what it took.

Floyd Young, first batter to face the tall Arkansan, topped a vicious swing. The ball rolled weakly to Warneke and he whirled around with a perfect throw to force Waner at third for the first out.

Harry Lavagetto was next, and the prospects were dark as it was Lavagetto who had cracked out three of the four hits off the tiny Henshaw in eight innings. But the law of averages and a sweeping curve forced him to roll to Bill Jurges, who threw to Herman to force Young at second. It was a dead set-up for a double play, but Herman pulled Cavarretta off the bag with a high throw and Lavagetto was safe, prolonging the suspense. Gus Suhr walked, filling the bases, and Red Lucas, "Big Poison" for years to Cub pitchers, batted for Catcher Tom Padden. As the crowd stood in a frenzy of excitement, Warneke worked the count on Lucas to 3 and 2 and then forced him to tap weakly to Herman, who made an easy put out at first, ending the rally and a masterful rescue that netted Warneke a tumultuous ovation.

The Cubs were held to two scattered hits by Bush, the man they traded down the river last winter, for four innings, but they found the range on the "Mississippi Mud Cat" in the fifth.

IRISH WILL BE TOUGH BABIES THIS FALL

UNION DEFEATED BY COMMODORES

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Sept. 21.—(AP)—A crew of fleet and husky sophomores, scoring 3 of the five touchdowns, led the Vanderbilt Commodores to a 34 to 0 victory over Union university Bull Dogs here today before an estimated attendance of 4,000.

The senior linemen and backs did valuable yeoman service but it was such youngsters as Sam Agee, fullback, and Jimmy Huggins, and Jimmy Carson, quarterbacks, who furnished the fireworks as Ray Morrison's boys displayed a flashy but somewhat belated scoring attack.

After a scoreless first half, the Gold and Black got underway with a driving offensive that produced a touchdown by tow-headed Bobby Oliver. Dixon's shuttle pass to Oliver netted 12 yards and placed the ball in scoring position and Oliver followed with a three-yard smash off-tackle for the tally.

Agee accounted for two more touchdowns in the third period. Dixon slipped through the line for 15 yards on Union's 22-yard line, and then took the ball to the 12-yard line where Agee smacked straight through the center of the line and literally stomped the Union secondary to score standing up.

A couple of minutes after the next kickoff, Agee plucked Pechonick's pass out of the air on the 29-yard line and raced over the goal line standing up behind beautiful interference.

Carson and Huggins thrilled the early season rooters with flashes of brilliant running in the final period, Carson scoring after both played a big part in advancing the ball down the field. Both were credited with several 12-yard and 15-yard runs and once Huggins ran a punt back 45 yards but fumbled when tackled, Union recovering to end that particular threat.

SKEET CLUB PROGRAM IS SCHEDULED TODAY

WINNSBORO, La., Sept. 21.—(Special)—An all-day program for skeet club members of Louisiana and Mississippi has been arranged by the Winnsboro Skeet club for Sunday on the local club's shooting grounds.

Practice shooting will begin at 8 o'clock in the morning, and shooting for record will continue through the afternoon. Dinner will be served at noon to the contestants and their families.

Several silver cups and cash prizes are to be awarded winners of the contests.

Five Candidates For Position Weigh Over 200 Pounds Each

If football teams depend upon good tackles for success, the Northeast Center of L. S. U.'s football stock is due for a rise this year as the Indians have five tackles, "Blimp" Manning, "Big Dog" Williamson, "Bully" White, "Sandy" Sanderford, and "Big" Wroten weighing over the two-hundred pound mark.

Four of these burly Indian footballers are experienced compaigners in college grid warfare and have not been giving nor asking for any quarter in the daily fight for the two starting berths against Monticello A. & M. college here next Friday night. Wroten is the only one without playing experience but was on hand during spring training this year and picked up some knowledge of the Malone style of play.

Manning, who tips the scales at 235 pounds and was a regular last season, holds the upper hand in the struggle for one of the posts and Williamson, a transfer student, who entered the local college at mid-term last year, is being favored for the other tackle position. White and Sanderford will come in for their share of consideration by Coaches Malone and Egan before the seven starting linemen are named.

For the guard position, the Indian coaches will have three sets of fast and aggressive guards, averaging about 198 pounds. Coaches Malone and Egan have Bob James, a 198 pound varsity man, and Otho Cagle, a 187 pound transfer student, working together on one team, "Squatty" Young and "Pal" May, both varsity men, teamed together on the second team, and Charles Fields and Henderson Cagle, reserves last season, running together in the No. 3 team lineup.

A first-year man, Homer King, will probably get the starting call at center in the opening game as a reward for his aggressive tactics in training camp scrimmages. He is the big boy of the Indian squad, standing six-foot-four in height and weighs well over the two-hundred pound mark. However, if King's work at the pivot does not come up to expectations, the Redskins will have "Plug" Spillar to depend upon. Spillar is a consistent ball player and can be depended upon in the pinches. He lettered last year as a guard but was shifted to center this season because of shortage in material for this position.

Fighting for starting berths at the terminals on the Purple and Gold eleven are two varsity men, two reserves from last year, and a pair of "newcomers." Boyd Arnold and "Chick" Tinsley are the returning varsity men and are certain to see action in the opener against the Arkansas Aggies. The other four candidates for end, Troy Hendricks, Clyde French, W. A. Rushing and Clyde Nash and are causing the two varsity men a lot of worry over their positions they held down last year.

The Indians' backfield material is not quite in proportion to the weight of the front line of defense but what it lacks in weight, it makes up in speed. Last season's backfield of Frank Mosley at quarterback, Frankie Bono and "Boly" Lemak, wingbacks, and "Ace" Guin returned intact for this season's campaign along with "Red" Reynolds, Kenner Day, Mickey Jefferies, and Ed Cashon, all of whom saw action with the Indians during the 1934 campaign.

MEMORIAL STADIUM, GREENSBORO, N. C., Sept. 21.—(AP)—Duke unleased a powerful last half offensive here tonight to open its football season with a 26-to-7 victory over Wake Forest as each team showed tricky offenses featuring lateral passes.

Twelve thousand persons watched the game which launched the state championship race. Coach Jim Weaver's battling Deacons held a good edge in the first half, threatening to score near the end and missing a field goal attempt.

But the last half was a Duke story. Two plays after the kickoff, Ace Parker slipped through the Deacon right tackle for 26 yards and a touchdown. Four plays later Dick Taliaferro blocked Tex Edens' punt and Joe Brunansky covered for Duke on Wake's three. Parker rammed over guard for the touchdown.

A sustained, 80-yard march with Parker, Ward and Alexander all taking part led to the third touchdown, Parker scoring again. Duke's relief team, which played in the second and fourth periods, contributed the last score when Silver Smith ran back a kickoff 95 yards for a touchdown. Ward made one placement good for the extra point and Stumpy Gardner got one. Each missed once.

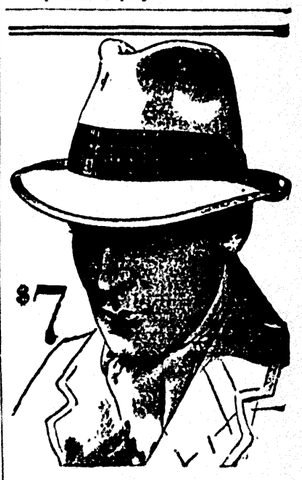

Wake Forest's touchdown came on a play which netted 41 yards, Walton Kitchin fired a long forward to Jim Dooney and the end tossed a lateral to Dallas Morris, who scored. Morris added the point.

SERIES SCHEDULE TO BE UNCHANGED

DETROIT, Sept. 21.—(AP)—Kenesaw M. Landis, high commissioner of baseball, said today there will be no change in the world series schedule to avoid the possibility of playing on October 7 because it is Yom Kippur, the Hebrew day of atonement.

The baseball commissioner made this declaration when he learned that Miss Esther Duchin of Detroit, had started a movement to petition Landis to declare October 7 an open date in the event a sixth game is played in the world series.

Miss Duchin said that many Jews would not attend a game on that date and that Hank Greenberg, Detroit's slugging first baseman and an orthodox Jew, might be embarrassed if required to play then.

DETROIT, Sept. 21.—(AP)—The Detroit Tigers, behind brilliant pitching by two of their four mound aces, mathematically riveted a second consecutive American league pennant to their home flagpole today by sweeping a double-header with the St. Louis Browns, 6-2 and 2-0.

Elden Auker

Should Detroit lose all its remaining seven games, the second place New York Yankees, who beat Boston today, could not catch them by sweeping their eight remaining games. If that happened, Detroit would have 92 won and 59 lost; New York, 91 won and 59 lost.

To Elden Auker, the tall Kansan, went the honor of clinching the flag for the Bengals. The "submarine ball" artist shut out the Browns, allowing only six hits. Pete Fox scored both Detroit runs, crossing the plate in the third and again in the fifth on singles by Walker and Gehringer.

In the opener Detroit won behind Tommy Bridges, who struck out eight and allowed only seven safe blows to win his 21st game of the season. A crowd of 31,000 saw Manager Mickey Cochrane's club clinch the bunting, but outside of a few thrown hats there was no demonstration.

Detroit annexed its second straight title mainly through the pitching of Bridges, Auker, Lynwood (Schoolboy) Rowe and the veteran Alvin Crowder. These four pitchers won 73 of the 92 games which Detroit has in the win column, Bridges has a mark of 21 won and 9 lost; Auker, 18 and 6; Rowe, 18 and 12, and Crowder 16 and 9.

It was a happy crowd of Tigers who left the field after the second game. Cochrane was elated, personally satisfied he had proved his club a well-balanced aggregation which was not just lucky to win the pennant last season.

Detroit, in last place in April and floundering badly, began its drive for the league lead in June, and in July caught and then passed the Yankees. Under Cochrane's handling the pitching improved, and one of the main reasons Cochrane had success with his hurlers was that he was able to work them regularly, in turn. After passing New York, Detroit made a runaway of the race.

PREXY UPHOLDS PLAYOFF RULING

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Sept. 21.—(AP)—Fay Murray, president of Nashville's Southern association club, said tonight the league's directorate had upheld a ruling of President John D. Martin that if it is necessary to play off a tie game in the Shaughnessy competition between Atlanta and Nashville the site will be determined by tossing a coin.

Earl Mann, president of the Atlanta club, had contended that the game should be played in Atlanta Monday. The final decision brought sharp criticism from Mann who declared it was "the most unjust action in the history of the league."

Atlanta and Nashville tied the second of their five-game series in the Georgia city Thursday. Atlanta won the first game there and the third here. If Atlanta wins here tomorrow afternoon, no playoff of the tie will be necessary. A Nashville victory, however, would demand it.

When Atlanta and Nashville failed to come to an agreement over deciding the place of the playoff, the Crackers appeal to Judge Martin who ruled in favor of tossing a coin. Mann then appealed to the league directors.

"We came over here with the half way understanding that we would playoff the tie game in Atlanta Monday," he said tonight. "When we got here Nashville officials insisted that a coin be tossed to determine the site of the playoff in case Nashville wins Sunday.

"I have been against the Shaughnessy system since it was urged for adoption. Atlanta has been fair with everyone. It seems as other towns in the league insist on being unfair to Atlanta."

Of the decision Murray said:

"That was the original agreement and we want to live up to it."

JACKETS SMOTHERED BY TEXAS CHRISTIAN

FORT WORTH, Texas, Sept. 21.—(AP)—With a dazzling display of ball handling and an alert defense, Texas Christian opened its football campaign here Saturday afternoon by smothering Howard-Payne college 41 to 0.

It was the first defeat suffered by the Yellow Jackets, champions of the Texas conference, who are favored to repeat, since Nov. 11, 1933, and the worst suffered by the Brownwood school in five years.

T. C. U. scored in every period, once in the first, once in the second, twice in the third and twice in the fourth.

The Frogs scored three of the six touchdowns with their own offensive weapons, and three by cashing in on the Jackets desperate but foolish passing attack. Coaches Dutch Meyer and Bear Wolf left their first string team on the field only seven minutes of the fray—long enough to pile up six first downs and score in the first quarter and add a quick touchdown at the beginning of the third.

RAZORBACKS DEFEAT FROSH IN PRACTICE

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark., Sept. 21.—(AP)—The University of Arkansas varsity squad defeated the freshmen today 51 to 0 in the first practice game of the pre-schedule season.

The aerial game of the Razorbacks, improved by steady drill, was deadly. The combination of Wynne to Jeffries clicked.

Touchdowns were made by Jeffries, Keen, Holt, Johnson, Wynne and Rucker while Holt and Brown provided extra points.

Lateral passing was quick, often, and accurate, an unusual number being completed. Few receivers had to stop before they reached the goal line.

Pride Of Ozarks Gives Brilliant Exhibition To Save Game In Ninth

CHICAGO, Sept. 21.—(AP)—For ten thrill packed minutes, the sensational Chicago Cubs winning streak hung by a thread today, but the pride of Ozarks, Lonnie Warneke, came to the rescue to weave it into the 17th straight victory by stopping the Pittsburgh Pirates and giving the men of Grimm a 4 to 3 conquest.

Lon Warneke

Stopped dead in their tracks for eight innings under the spell of Roy Henshaw's southpaw slants, which had limited them to one run and only four scattered hits, the Pirates staged a ninth inning uprising that chased the diminutive Cub lefty and forced Warneke to give one of the most brilliant relief exhibitions in baseball to halt their drive.

None of the 38,624 spectators stirred much when Woddy Jensen opened with a hit that Billy Herman couldn't quite handle, but the explosion was quick and almost disastrous. Dan Hafey singled over second and Lloyd Waner dropped another high single down the first base line, scoring Jensen and sending Hafey to third. Arky Vaughan, hitless all day, then responded by hitting deep to Herman, landing safe at first and scoring Hafey when Phil Cavarretta failed to get back to first. It was the fourth successive hit and two runs were in and still nobody out. The score was 4 to 3.

It was then that Warneke came to the rescue as the tense crowd, joyous as the Cubs had belted the revenge-bent Guy Bush for four runs and eight hits in seven innings, groaned. But Warneke had just what it took.

Floyd Young, first batter to face the tall Arkansan, topped a vicious swing. The ball rolled weakly to Warneke and he whirled around with a perfect throw to force Waner at third for the first out.

Harry Lavagetto was next, and the prospects were dark as it was Lavagetto who had cracked out three of the four hits off the tiny Henshaw in eight innings. But the law of averages and a sweeping curve forced him to roll to Bill Jurges, who threw to Herman to force Young at second. It was a dead set-up for a double play, but Herman pulled Cavarretta off the bag with a high throw and Lavagetto was safe, prolonging the suspense. Gus Suhr walked, filling the bases, and Red Lucas, "Big Poison" for years to Cub pitchers, batted for Catcher Tom Padden. As the crowd stood in a frenzy of excitement, Warneke worked the count on Lucas to 3 and 2 and then forced him to tap weakly to Herman, who made an easy put out at first, ending the rally and a masterful rescue that netted Warneke a tumultuous ovation.

The Cubs were held to two scattered hits by Bush, the man they traded down the river last winter, for four innings, but they found the range on the "Mississippi Mud Cat" in the fifth.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Sept. 21.—(AP)—A crew of fleet and husky sophomores, scoring 3 of the five touchdowns, led the Vanderbilt Commodores to a 34 to 0 victory over Union university Bull Dogs here today before an estimated attendance of 4,000.

The senior linemen and backs did valuable yeoman service but it was such youngsters as Sam Agee, fullback, and Jimmy Huggins, and Jimmy Carson, quarterbacks, who furnished the fireworks as Ray Morrison's boys displayed a flashy but somewhat belated scoring attack.

After a scoreless first half, the Gold and Black got underway with a driving offensive that produced a touchdown by tow-headed Bobby Oliver. Dixon's shuttle pass to Oliver netted 12 yards and placed the ball in scoring position and Oliver followed with a three-yard smash off-tackle for the tally.

Agee accounted for two more touchdowns in the third period. Dixon slipped through the line for 15 yards on Union's 22-yard line, and then took the ball to the 12-yard line where Agee smacked straight through the center of the line and literally stomped the Union secondary to score standing up.

A couple of minutes after the next kickoff, Agee plucked Pechonick's pass out of the air on the 29-yard line and raced over the goal line standing up behind beautiful interference.

Carson and Huggins thrilled the early season rooters with flashes of brilliant running in the final period, Carson scoring after both played a big part in advancing the ball down the field. Both were credited with several 12-yard and 15-yard runs and once Huggins ran a punt back 45 yards but fumbled when tackled, Union recovering to end that particular threat.

SKEET CLUB PROGRAM IS SCHEDULED TODAY

WINNSBORO, La., Sept. 21.—(Special)—An all-day program for skeet club members of Louisiana and Mississippi has been arranged by the Winnsboro Skeet club for Sunday on the local club's shooting grounds.

Practice shooting will begin at 8 o'clock in the morning, and shooting for record will continue through the afternoon. Dinner will be served at noon to the contestants and their families.

Several silver cups and cash prizes are to be awarded winners of the contests.

Keen competition is expected.

Five Candidates For Position Weigh Over 200 Pounds Each

If football teams depend upon good tackles for success, the Northeast Center of L. S. U.'s football stock is due for a rise this year as the Indians have five tackles, "Blimp" Manning, "Big Dog" Williamson, "Bully" White, "Sandy" Sanderford, and "Big" Wroten weighing over the two-hundred pound mark.

Four of these burly Indian footballers are experienced compaigners in college grid warfare and have not been giving nor asking for any quarter in the daily fight for the two starting berths against Monticello A. & M. college here next Friday night. Wroten is the only one without playing experience but was on hand during spring training this year and picked up some knowledge of the Malone style of play.

Manning, who tips the scales at 235 pounds and was a regular last season, holds the upper hand in the struggle for one of the posts and Williamson, a transfer student, who entered the local college at mid-term last year, is being favored for the other tackle position. White and Sanderford will come in for their share of consideration by Coaches Malone and Egan before the seven starting linemen are named.

For the guard position, the Indian coaches will have three sets of fast and aggressive guards, averaging about 198 pounds. Coaches Malone and Egan have Bob James, a 198 pound varsity man, and Otho Cagle, a 187 pound transfer student, working together on one team, "Squatty" Young and "Pal" May, both varsity men, teamed together on the second team, and Charles Fields and Henderson Cagle, reserves last season, running together in the No. 3 team lineup.

A first-year man, Homer King, will probably get the starting call at center in the opening game as a reward for his aggressive tactics in training camp scrimmages. He is the big boy of the Indian squad, standing six-foot-four in height and weighs well over the two-hundred pound mark. However, if King's work at the pivot does not come up to expectations, the Redskins will have "Plug" Spillar to depend upon. Spillar is a consistent ball player and can be depended upon in the pinches. He lettered last year as a guard but was shifted to center this season because of shortage in material for this position.

Fighting for starting berths at the terminals on the Purple and Gold eleven are two varsity men, two reserves from last year, and a pair of "newcomers." Boyd Arnold and "Chick" Tinsley are the returning varsity men and are certain to see action in the opener against the Arkansas Aggies. The other four candidates for end, Troy Hendricks, Clyde French, W. A. Rushing and Clyde Nash and are causing the two varsity men a lot of worry over their positions they held down last year.

The Indians' backfield material is not quite in proportion to the weight of the front line of defense but what it lacks in weight, it makes up in speed. Last season's backfield of Frank Mosley at quarterback, Frankie Bono and "Boly" Lemak, wingbacks, and "Ace" Guin returned intact for this season's campaign along with "Red" Reynolds, Kenner Day, Mickey Jefferies, and Ed Cashon, all of whom saw action with the Indians during the 1934 campaign.

MEMORIAL STADIUM, GREENSBORO, N. C., Sept. 21.—(AP)—Duke unleased a powerful last half offensive here tonight to open its football season with a 26-to-7 victory over Wake Forest as each team showed tricky offenses featuring lateral passes.

Twelve thousand persons watched the game which launched the state championship race. Coach Jim Weaver's battling Deacons held a good edge in the first half, threatening to score near the end and missing a field goal attempt.

But the last half was a Duke story. Two plays after the kickoff, Ace Parker slipped through the Deacon right tackle for 26 yards and a touchdown. Four plays later Dick Taliaferro blocked Tex Edens' punt and Joe Brunansky covered for Duke on Wake's three. Parker rammed over guard for the touchdown.

A sustained, 80-yard march with Parker, Ward and Alexander all taking part led to the third touchdown, Parker scoring again. Duke's relief team, which played in the second and fourth periods, contributed the last score when Silver Smith ran back a kickoff 95 yards for a touchdown. Ward made one placement good for the extra point and Stumpy Gardner got one. Each missed once.

Wake Forest's touchdown came on a play which netted 41 yards, Walton Kitchin fired a long forward to Jim Dooney and the end tossed a lateral to Dallas Morris, who scored. Morris added the point.

SERIES SCHEDULE TO BE UNCHANGED

DETROIT, Sept. 21.—(AP)—Kenesaw M. Landis, high commissioner of baseball, said today there will be no change in the world series schedule to avoid the possibility of playing on October 7 because it is Yom Kippur, the Hebrew day of atonement.

The baseball commissioner made this declaration when he learned that Miss Esther Duchin of Detroit, had started a movement to petition Landis to declare October 7 an open date in the event a sixth game is played in the world series.

Miss Duchin said that many Jews would not attend a game on that date and that Hank Greenberg, Detroit's slugging first baseman and an orthodox Jew, might be embarrassed if required to play then.

Bomber Tops Off Three Weeks Training In Fine Physical Condition

FIGHT PARTY

The Morning World and News-Star will present a loudspeaker broadcast of the Max Baer-Joe Louis fight Tuesday night, announcing a blow-by-blow description of the battle. Leased wires of the Associated Press will bring a vivid account of the battle direct to the newspapers' offices from the Yankee stadium in New York. Fans of northeast Louisiana are invited to attend the party. Further details will be announced in the papers Monday and Tuesday.

Braving a chill afternoon with a threat of rain in the air, the former heavyweight champion boxed three rounds with Abe Feldman, the only sparring partner left in the camp, and at the end had Abe, a main bout heavyweight, more than ready to call it a day.

There was nothing like a knockdown, but neither was there anything like the performance Baer has staged for the past few days, when Feldman looked like a title contender and Max the sparring partner. Baer, his face covered with a shaggy beard, was deadly in earnest, and though he took his usual quota of left jabs and hooks to the face, right crosses to the chin, he also doled out heavy punishment with the big gloves.

Baer will box only two rounds tomorrow, his final prep. He appeared in marvelous physical condition, weighing about 210 pounds.

Ill-humored, his face set, Baer ragged the visiting experts in his dressing room, apologizing bitingly when he referred to himself as a "fighter."

"Excuse me," he said. "After the Braddock thing, I'm not supposed to be a fighter. Perhaps I can make you gentlemen change your minds Tuesday night."

He starts drying out tomorrow, aiming to get down to 208 pounds by ring time, and his disposition will get correspondingly worse. He doesn't intend to shave until after the fight.

"That's when Louis plans to get married, eh?" he said today. "That guy don't care how he looks on his bridal night."

POMPTON LAKES, N. J., Sept. 21.—(AP)—A keen, eager and confident Joe Louis wound up his training today for his 15-round heavyweight engagement with Max Baer in New York next Tuesday night.

The sensational Detroiter topped off what has been a more or less easy three weeks' work by boxing seven desultory rounds with four of his five sparring mates. He took on Leonard Dixon of Philadelphia, Paul Cavalier of Paterson, N. J., Farmer Bob Moody of Freeport, Pa., and Roy Williams of Chicago, in order.

"I have never examined a calmer fighter," said Dr. Walker. "Really, I would say his fight with Max Baer is the least of his worries.

"I found Joe in excellent shape. His blood pressure is low—which means a long life. After the examination, his pulse shot up five points, then just as quickly dropped back to normal."

General John J. Phelan, chairman of the athletic commission, who accompanied Dr. Walker to camp and watched Louis go through his paces, also said he was impressed by the colored lad's fitness and utter lack of concern.

For the most part, today's workout was one of the tamest of the nine Louis has taken since pitching camp three weeks ago. Against both Dixon and Cavalier he obviously pulled his punches. He did not loosen up until the sixth round when his opponent was Farmer Bob Moody.

Obeying a nod from Trainer Jack Blackburn, Louis tore into Moody in the sixth, battered him with rights and lefts to the head and body and opened a bad cut on the Pennsylvanian's nose. It was the only excitement of the afternoon.

From now on until he motors into New York Tuesday morning to be weighed in, Louis will take things easy. A short run on the road and a little loosening up will constitute the remainder of his training program.

HOW WILL THE BOMBER BUMP THE BUMPS?

Max Baer rounded into shape much more quickly and easier than expected for his scheduled battle with Joe Louis next Tuesday evening. The north woods revived his spirits and restored some of the energy wasted on dance floors and cabarets during the past two years.

When Ancil Hoffman decided on a training camp thirty-five miles from the nearest railroad station, it was thought the abrupt change from the noise and bright lights would do more harm than good. Confining a playboy's love for the bright lights strictly to visits from his family and friends with the occasional music of the radio, was considered the proper thing to ruin a fighter's mental makeup and grate on his nerves. Hoffman was forced to do something drastic, as anyone who saw Baer's slovenly efforts against James J. Braddock will admit. It was a case of kill or cure, so Hoffman described a bitter tonic for his charge.

The Californian knuckled to the grind for six weeks. He showed no signs of kicking the traces. Not once did he sneak away for a few hours away from the camp for a whirl over the dance floor or for a highball. Baer's pugilistic career is in front of him, strange as it seems. Unless he turns back the challenge of the Detroit negro it means a return to his California ranch or a quiet little cottage away from the idolatry and acclaim of the crowd. The way of a defeated champion is short. That of a failing come-back is shorter still. Baer knows it and is not ready to call it quits. He loves the roar of the crowd too much for that and wants to be part of it as long as he can.

The best thing Baer's good-weather friends did was to turn their backs on him and call him several kinds of a bum. Had they sugared their words with excuses for his defeat they would have exaggerated the belief he entertains as to his infallibility with the padded mittens. The ugly terms used to describe his work against Braddock put iron in his spine and made him more determined to become the first heavyweight champion to lose and regain the title.

Max Baer has worked hard and earnestly. There is no doubt about it. Those who have followed the rise and fall of champions seriously doubt the Californian has salved the damage incurred by his playboy tactics in six short weeks. They point out that Baer is facing a young man seems to have arrived at the peak of his manhood and physical condition at a time when Max has everything to lose and that no amount of penitence will help him.

Louis is the most sensational fighter to come up in a decade. This is no exaggeration of his ability even though the feats of Jack Dempsey and Gene Tunney are still in mind. Students of the game rate Louis on a par with Peter Jackson and Jack Johnson, the greatest negro heavyweights of all time. One or two fights do not place the stamp of approval on a fighter. It is what is accomplished over a period of time and the improvement shown in each performance.

We have in Joe Louis a young man who is but 14 months out of the amateur ranks contesting the right of a former champion to a place in the sun. The young negro went down to defeat twice as an amateur and visited the floor seven times in his early pro career. He not only erased these defeats, but survived the knockdowns to finish up the victor. A fighter who can do that and continue winning over all types and grades of fighters must be given a chance to win over a fighter of Baer's undoubted ability.

The only difference apparent to observers is that Max Baer has gone back while Joe Louis has forged ahead more rapidly than even Baer did when the latter was making his climb to the top.

Louis' In-Fighting More Potent

Baer is a fighter in the strict meaning of the word. He did not have to drill hard to learn how to jab and follow up with a right. What he did learn from experience was how to pace himself and move around without expending too much energy.

Larruper Trains Hard, Not Once Slipping Away To Bright Lights

Louis was taught the fundamentals of the game as an amateur and once grounded in them his natural ability asserted itself so that he has been undefeated as a professional. He combines remarkable skill as a boxer with a devastating punch. He does not have to lay back and wait for an opening. He moves forward, and a fighter like Baer is unable to curb his anxiety to get over the first good wallop. A sharp counter-fighter like Louis expects just such a move and is naturally prepared.

If Baer elects to lay back, something which is very doubtful, and then reach for the jaw with a swinging blow, the onward moving negro will be too close to be hit effectively. In close, Joe's punches are much more damaging than Baer's.

The finishing blow, no matter who scores it, may be a wollop to the jaw. The writer thinks body blows will pave the way for the finisher. Neither man has been hit forcibly to the body. It will be a new experience for both men. The one who recuperates more quickly will be the winner.

Louis has the edge in hitting and physical condition and it will not be surprising if Max Baer suffers the first knockout of his career Tuesday evening at the Yankee stadium.

PELICANS DEFEAT CHICKS AND WIN PLAYOFF SERIES

Messenger Pitches And Bats New Orleans To Victory Over Memphis

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 21.—(AP)—Andy Messenger, the "Ole Man" of the New Orleans Pelicans, pitched and batted the Memphis Chicks right out of the Southern association Shaughnessy playoff here today, 7 to 5, before 3,000 victory-mad baseball fans.

The win, the third in a row for the Pelicans, sends them into the final playoff with the winner of the Atlanta-Nashville series.

The 38-year-old pitching veteran's performance today will long be remembered by Crescent City fans. He took up the mound burden in the first inning after the Chicks had pushed across five counters for what appeared an insurmountable lead.

Undiscouraged by the situation, Old Andy went to work and pitched one of the greatest games of his life. He held the Chicks at bay for the rest of the way, but frequently was called on to give all he had to slip out of bad spots.

With men on the sacks he was invincible. In the fourth, sixth, seventh and eighth innings the first Memphis player to face Messenger reached first, but they could advance no farther than third.

It proved too much for Del Wetherell, who started on the mound for the Pels and was jerked, after retiring but two men, in favor of Messenger.

Besides his brilliant hurling, Andy contributed three hits, two of which figured prominently in the Birds' runs. New Orleans scored four times in the second in a burst featured by Roy Weatherly's long home run over the right field fence with two aboard, tied the count in the seventh and shoved over the winning tallies in the eighth.

Jim Henry hurled seven innings for the Chicks, going out for a pinch hitter in the visitors' half of the eighth. Nelson, who relieved him, was charged with the defeat.

OWLS WILL SEND VETERAN ELEVEN AGAINST TIGERS

BATON ROUGE, La., Sept. 21.—(Special)—Coach Bernie Moore, of Louisiana State university, will frown tomorrow and probably through the coming several days, as he studies notes of his scouts who today saw Rice Institute's Owls in action against St. Mary's in San Antonio, Texas.

On next Saturday night, in Tiger stadium here, Coach Jimmy Kitts, of Rice, will start a senior team against L. S. U. in what promises to be one of the most sensational games ever staged in Tiger Stadium. Of Rice's starting eleven, eight are seniors. The other three are juniors.

Rice's backfield properly may be said to be divided into two parts, this division achieving for the Owls a neat balance. Part 1 is composed of Witt and Friedman, blockers extraordinary, who help clear the way for the speedsters, Wallace and McCauley, comprising Part 2.

The Owls have two clever running guards in Bale and Brandon. These men are fast coming out of the line, on occasions when Rice plays are directed at the enemy wings, and both are adepts in teaming with Witt and Friedman in blocking.

Rice utilizes both Miller and Mays in interference, particularly on flank runs from punt formation. Both are fast, Miller being especially so for such a big man. Both, too, are expert in the matter of the fundamental techniques of the various blocks they are called upon to execute.

Nicholls, Rice's successor to last year's star, Capt. Percy Arthur, is hailed in Houston as even a better center than was Arthur, a large assertion, but one which Rice's coaches expect will be substantiated in the L. S. U. battle next Saturday night.

In reserve strength, the Owls are mighty strong, being especially equipped with extra tackles.

ORLEANS SLATES SPORTS CARNIVAL

National Athletes Accept Bids To Enter Mid-Week Track Meeting

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 21.—(AP)—Glenn Cunningham, famed world champion miler from Kansas; Sam Allen, Oklahoma Baptist star hurdler, and Chick Hornbostel, half-mile specialist, are among nationally known stars to accept bids to compete in the mid-winter sports carnival track meet here December 28, L. L. di Benedetto, secretary of the Southern A. A. U., announced today.

The invitation meet, part of a sports carnival which is to include the annual Sugar Bowl football game as well as golf and tennis tournaments, will attract the cream of the cinder talent and bids for a ranking high among the mid-winter track meets, Bendetto said.

Cunningham, the brilliant racer who has stood off the threats of every important contender in the world at one time or another, is assured of stiff competition in the mile event.

Glen Dawson of Tulsa, has already mailed in his signed invitation and a half-dozen other capable contenders are expected to accept entries to the mile to vie with the record holder.

Gene Venzke, the Pennsylvania star who became famous as Cunningham's pacer in dozens of major meets during the past few years, will not enter the mile event, but will compete in the half-mile.

Venzke is slated to press the fleet-footed Hornbostel, who made headlines as a competitor for the University of Indiana but who now is at Harvard.

Bendetto said almost "every important hurdler" in the world would compete against Sam Allen, the timber-topper whose spring work in the National Intercollegiate and National A. A. U. meets proved so spectacular.

Al Moreau, former Louisiana star high hurdler who twice equalled the world's record on a European tour this summer, and Al Morris, former world champion hurdler, have accepted bids to the meet and the present titlist, Percy Beard of the New York Athletic club, is among the hurdlers asked to compete.

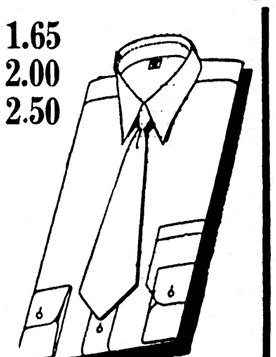

Athletes from Rice, Tulane, Louisiana State, North Carolina, Mississippi State, Alabama, Georgia, Southwestern Louisiana institute and Loyola (New Orleans) will go up against champions in nearly every event.

Wilmer Allison And John Van Ryn Defeat French Net Stars

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 21.—(AP)—In the most sensational match of the Pacific southwest championship, Wilmer Allison and John Van Ryn, national doubles titleholders, advanced to the finals today with a triumph over Christian Boussus and Jacques Brugnon of France. A capacity crowd of 4,000 persons attended.

Quarter-final play in the women's singles Miss Freda James of England beat Miss Gracyn Wheeler of Santa Monica, 9-7, 3-6, 7-5.

Donald Budge of Oakland, Calif., advanced to the semi-finals of the men's singles, eliminating Gerald Bartosh of Los Angeles, 5-7, 6-1, 6-4.

Because of the schedule difficulties, Roderich Menzel, lone remaining foreigner in the men's singles, and John Van Ryn did not meet today in their quarter-finals match. They will play tomorrow.

MONTREAL GETS EDGE IN TITULAR SERIES

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Sept. 21.—(AP)—A big fourth inning featured by Hal King's homer with two aboard gave the Montreal Royals a 6 to 4 victory over Syracuse before 4,000 fans in the final game of the year here today. The win gave Montreal a 3 to 2 edge in the International league's final series for the Governor's cup.

The sixth game in the four-out-of-seven series will be played tomorrow at Montreal, with the Royals needing one more victory to annex the trophy, while Syracuse must take two.

ALEXANDRIA, La., Sept. 21.—(Special)—The Bolton high school Bears last night defeated the Trojans of Tallulah 6 to 0 in a fast game here.

Bolton scored early in the second quarter and the visitors were unable to overcome the lead. The touchdown was made on a pass from Watson, halfback, to Pardue, end.

The Bears made seven first downs to the Trojans' three.

The game was the season opener for both teams.

CHICAGO, Sept. 21.—Behind the phenomenal rise of the highly geared Chicago Cubs is the story of the transformation of their manager, Good Time Charley Grimm, from a banjo-playing, fun-loving first baseman to a hard-driving martinet. Grimm laughed himself into his present position.

That proved to be Grimm's biggest handicap when, with the abrupt dismissal of the great Rogers Hornsby on Aug. 2, 1932, Good Time Charley, the official club entertainer, suddenly found himself bedecked in the dictatorial robe.

With a club that the canny Hornsby had assembled and which was well on its way when Grimm assumed command, Good Time Charley glided to the National league pennant.

To Good Time Charley, life still was a lark.

"How long has this been going on?" he asked.

The New York Yankees swept the world series in four straight skirmishes, with Babe Ruth calling his shots, but trouble was just beginning for Good Time Charley.

Discipline Just Word In Dictionary To Charley

Chicago purchased Babe Herman from Cincinnati, but Kiki Cuyler broke his ankle, and the pitchers couldn't pitch, so the winner of 1932 finished third in 1933.

The Cubs gave the Phillies $125,000 and three nimble men in knickers for Chuck Klein, and started off with a brave rush, but once more the bowlers bogged down, and the outfit again wound up third in 1934.

When there was talk of a new deal at Wrigley Field in August of last year, young Philip K. Wrigley backed Grimm and it was believed that he created the vice presidency, which the erstwhile Good Time Charley now holds, in the hope that his foreman would buck up as a disciplinarian.

But transforming Grimm, star comic and mellow bass of Pittsburgh and Chicago quartets, into an exacting taskmaster was like making Jimmy Durante officer of the day. Grimm, with his keen sense of humor, couldn't take himself seriously, let alone lay down the law to a flock of frolicsome athletes.

Old-timers remembered Grimm as the lead voice of that famous four, Grimm, Rabbit Maranville, George Whitted and Cotton Tierney. Customers arrived at Forbes Field at 1 p.m. to hear them vocalize through batting and fielding practice. The ball game was secondary.

Grimm Does Anything For Surprise Or Laugh

There were two ways of looking at the Pirates of 1921, who blew the flag to the New York Giants after having a 7 1-2 game lead on Aug. 5. All season John McGraw contended that the Buccaneers couldn't harmonize their way to the gonfalon, but Casey Stengel pointed out that no outfit came closer to warbling its way into a world series.

Grimm simply couldn't take life in earnest. He felt too good all the while. Besides being a banjo player of no mean ability, he was equally dexterous at making music on the piano, harmonica, trombone, drums, mandolin, xylophone, guitar and whatnot He went further. He invented his own noise-making contraption.

This not being enough to temper his gay spirit, Grimm was an amateur magician. He invested thousands of dollars in magic paraphernalia, and would pour water into a silk topper and return wine at the slightest pretext. Anything for a surprise or laugh.

Grimm spent much time painting. McGraw told a story which casted a whimsical doubt on the once Good Time Charley's artistic ability. The late guide of the Giants claimed that Grimm painted a picture of a sunrise and that the players mistook it for a likeness of Coach Jimmy Burke. Grimm said it wasn't so; that it really was a portrait of Burke, but that the gladiators had mistaken it for a sunrise.

Grimm put in a half dozen campaigns with the Pirates, and he and Maranville were credited with singing them out of another pennant in 1924. It was an expensive tune for Barney Dreyfuss, so Good Time Charley, the Rabbit, and their musical instruments were traded to the Cubs that fall.

FORT SMITH, Ark., Sept. 21.—(AP)—Charles (Chick) Evans, Chicago star, steadied in the pinches today to lead the way into the semi-finals of the sixth annual Hardscrabble Country club invitation golf tournament with a 2 and 1 conquest of David (Spec) Goldman, of Dallas, Texas.

Evans was joined by Horace Lacey of Little Rock and Howard Creel, Pueblo, Colo., portside, as all but one of the second round matches were concluded. The one contest not completed, due to darkness, was between Gus Moreland, Peoria, Ill., former member of the Walker cup team, and Ben I. Mayo, Fort Smith, who will finish early tomorrow. They quit all square, on the first extra hole.

Semi-finals are scheduled for tomorrow morning with the finals in the afternoon. All of the matches except the finals are over the 18-hole route.

WINNSBORO WILDCATS ENGAGE JENA FRIDAY IN OPENING CONTEST

WINNSBORO, La., Sept. 21.—(Special)—The Winnsboro high school Wildcats are rounding into shape for their opening game of the season to be played here next Friday with the Jena Giants.

Last year players forming the nucleus of the team are Chesney, Lord, Wiley, Robinson, Ellsin, Farmer, Jennings and Montgomery. Among the new players are: Funderburk, Brownell and Williams. Funderburk is reported as a most promising candidate for the team. Practice for the first two weeks was confined largely to blocking, charging, tackling, signal drill and dummy scrimmage. As the candidates are reaching good physical condition, heavy work is in store for next week.

The schedule is as follows: Jena, Sept. 27, at home; Clarks, Oct. 4, at home; Forest, Oct. 11, at home; Columbia, Oct. 18, there; Oak Grove, Oct. 25, there; Rayville, Nov. 1, there; Mangham, Nov. 8, there; Winnfield, Nov. 15, there; Farmerville, Nov. 22, at home; Wisner, Thanksgiving game, at home.

A season ticket drive is now in progress, sponsored by the Winnsboro Lions club. The goal for the ticket sale is 200.

JENA TEAM PREPARES FOR OPENING CLASH

JENA, La., Sept. 21.—(Special)—The Jena Giants are going through steady, strenuous work-outs in preparation for their game on September 27 at Winnsboro.

Probable line-up of the Giants for the game will be: Benton, Lees, Jones, ends; Bradford, Poole, tackles; Chapman, Ganey, Smith, Ford, guards; Owens, center; Doshier, quarterback; Francis, Anders, M. J. Haynes, half backs; Truman Hadges, fullback; reserve linemen; Whiddon, Floyd, Davis, Barker, Murphy, Fortson, Sumrall and Auld; reserve backs: Bill Hodges, Allen, Welch, Orville, Haynes.

Captain M. J. Haynes and Alternate Captain Woodie Doshier are ready to go and Coach Hartner "Bud" Gahraron is confident of a good season.

Bomber Tops Off Three Weeks Training In Fine Physical Condition

FIGHT PARTY

The Morning World and News-Star will present a loudspeaker broadcast of the Max Baer-Joe Louis fight Tuesday night, announcing a blow-by-blow description of the battle. Leased wires of the Associated Press will bring a vivid account of the battle direct to the newspapers' offices from the Yankee stadium in New York. Fans of northeast Louisiana are invited to attend the party. Further details will be announced in the papers Monday and Tuesday.

Braving a chill afternoon with a threat of rain in the air, the former heavyweight champion boxed three rounds with Abe Feldman, the only sparring partner left in the camp, and at the end had Abe, a main bout heavyweight, more than ready to call it a day.

There was nothing like a knockdown, but neither was there anything like the performance Baer has staged for the past few days, when Feldman looked like a title contender and Max the sparring partner. Baer, his face covered with a shaggy beard, was deadly in earnest, and though he took his usual quota of left jabs and hooks to the face, right crosses to the chin, he also doled out heavy punishment with the big gloves.

Baer will box only two rounds tomorrow, his final prep. He appeared in marvelous physical condition, weighing about 210 pounds.

Ill-humored, his face set, Baer ragged the visiting experts in his dressing room, apologizing bitingly when he referred to himself as a "fighter."

"Excuse me," he said. "After the Braddock thing, I'm not supposed to be a fighter. Perhaps I can make you gentlemen change your minds Tuesday night."

He starts drying out tomorrow, aiming to get down to 208 pounds by ring time, and his disposition will get correspondingly worse. He doesn't intend to shave until after the fight.

"That's when Louis plans to get married, eh?" he said today. "That guy don't care how he looks on his bridal night."

POMPTON LAKES, N. J., Sept. 21.—(AP)—A keen, eager and confident Joe Louis wound up his training today for his 15-round heavyweight engagement with Max Baer in New York next Tuesday night.

The sensational Detroiter topped off what has been a more or less easy three weeks' work by boxing seven desultory rounds with four of his five sparring mates. He took on Leonard Dixon of Philadelphia, Paul Cavalier of Paterson, N. J., Farmer Bob Moody of Freeport, Pa., and Roy Williams of Chicago, in order.

"I have never examined a calmer fighter," said Dr. Walker. "Really, I would say his fight with Max Baer is the least of his worries.

"I found Joe in excellent shape. His blood pressure is low—which means a long life. After the examination, his pulse shot up five points, then just as quickly dropped back to normal."

General John J. Phelan, chairman of the athletic commission, who accompanied Dr. Walker to camp and watched Louis go through his paces, also said he was impressed by the colored lad's fitness and utter lack of concern.

For the most part, today's workout was one of the tamest of the nine Louis has taken since pitching camp three weeks ago. Against both Dixon and Cavalier he obviously pulled his punches. He did not loosen up until the sixth round when his opponent was Farmer Bob Moody.

Obeying a nod from Trainer Jack Blackburn, Louis tore into Moody in the sixth, battered him with rights and lefts to the head and body and opened a bad cut on the Pennsylvanian's nose. It was the only excitement of the afternoon.

From now on until he motors into New York Tuesday morning to be weighed in, Louis will take things easy. A short run on the road and a little loosening up will constitute the remainder of his training program.

HOW WILL THE BOMBER BUMP THE BUMPS?

Max Baer rounded into shape much more quickly and easier than expected for his scheduled battle with Joe Louis next Tuesday evening. The north woods revived his spirits and restored some of the energy wasted on dance floors and cabarets during the past two years.

When Ancil Hoffman decided on a training camp thirty-five miles from the nearest railroad station, it was thought the abrupt change from the noise and bright lights would do more harm than good. Confining a playboy's love for the bright lights strictly to visits from his family and friends with the occasional music of the radio, was considered the proper thing to ruin a fighter's mental makeup and grate on his nerves. Hoffman was forced to do something drastic, as anyone who saw Baer's slovenly efforts against James J. Braddock will admit. It was a case of kill or cure, so Hoffman described a bitter tonic for his charge.

The Californian knuckled to the grind for six weeks. He showed no signs of kicking the traces. Not once did he sneak away for a few hours away from the camp for a whirl over the dance floor or for a highball. Baer's pugilistic career is in front of him, strange as it seems. Unless he turns back the challenge of the Detroit negro it means a return to his California ranch or a quiet little cottage away from the idolatry and acclaim of the crowd. The way of a defeated champion is short. That of a failing come-back is shorter still. Baer knows it and is not ready to call it quits. He loves the roar of the crowd too much for that and wants to be part of it as long as he can.

The best thing Baer's good-weather friends did was to turn their backs on him and call him several kinds of a bum. Had they sugared their words with excuses for his defeat they would have exaggerated the belief he entertains as to his infallibility with the padded mittens. The ugly terms used to describe his work against Braddock put iron in his spine and made him more determined to become the first heavyweight champion to lose and regain the title.

Max Baer has worked hard and earnestly. There is no doubt about it. Those who have followed the rise and fall of champions seriously doubt the Californian has salved the damage incurred by his playboy tactics in six short weeks. They point out that aer is facing a young man seems to have arrived at the peak of his manhood and physical condition at a time when Max has everything to lose and that no amount of penitence will help him.

Louis is the most sensational fighter to come up in a decade. This is no exaggeration of his ability even though the feats of Jack Dempsey and Gene Tunney are still in mind. Students of the game rate Louis on a par with Peter Jackson and Jack Johnson, the greatest negro heavyweights of all time. One or two fights do not place the stamp of approval on a fighter. It is what is accomplished over a period of time and the improvement shown in each performance.

We have in Joe Louis a young man who is but 14 months out of the amateur ranks contesting the right of a former champion to a place in the sun. The young negro went down to defeat twice as an amateur and visited the floor seven times in his early pro career. He not only erased these defeats, but survived the knockdowns to finish up the victor. A fighter who can do that and continue winning over all types and grades of fighters must be given a chance to win over a fighter of Baer's undoubted ability.

The only difference apparent to observers is that Max Baer has gone back while Joe Louis has forged ahead more rapidly than even Baer did when the latter was making his climb to the top.

Louis' In-Fighting More Potent

Baer is a fighter in the strict meaning of the word. He did not have to drill hard to learn how to jab and follow up with a right. What he did learn from experience was how to pace himself and move around without expending too much energy.

Larruper Trains Hard, Not Once Slipping Away To Bright Lights

Louis was taught the fundamentals of the game as an amateur and once grounded in them his natural ability asserted itself so that he has been undefeated as a professional. He combines remarkable skill as a boxer with a devastating punch. He does not have to lay back and wait for an opening. He moves forward, and a fighter like Baer is unable to curb his anxiety to get over the first good wallop. A sharp counter-fighter like Louis expects just such a move and is naturally prepared.

If Baer elects to lay back, something which is very doubtful, and then reach for the jaw with a swinging blow, the onward moving negro will be too close to be hit effectively. In close, Joe's punches are much more damaging than Baer's.

The finishing blow, no matter who scores it, may be a wallop to the jaw. The writer thinks body blows will pave the way for the finisher. Neither man has been hit forcibly to the body. It will be a new experience for both men. The one who recuperates more quickly will be the winner.

Louis has the edge in hitting and physical condition and it will not be surprising if Max Baer suffers the first knockout of his career Tuesday evening at the Yankee stadium.

PELICANS DEFEAT CHICKS AND WIN PLAYOFF SERIES

Messenger Pitches And Bats New Orleans To Victory Over Memphis

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 21.—(AP)—Andy Messenger, the "Ole Man" of the New Orleans Pelicans, pitched and batted the Memphis Chicks right out of the Southern association Shaughnessy playoff here today, 7 to 5, before 3,000 victory-mad baseball fans.

The win, the third in a row for the Pelicans, sends them into the final playoff with the winner of the Atlanta-Nashville series.

The 38-year-old pitching veteran's performance today will long be remembered by Crescent City fans. He took up the mound burden in the first inning after the Chicks had pushed across five counters for what appeared an insurmountable lead.

Undiscouraged by the situation, Old Andy went to work and pitched one of the greatest games of his life. He held the Chicks at bay for the rest of the way, but frequently was called on to give all he had to slip out of bad spots.

With men on the sacks he was invincible. In the fourth, sixth, seventh and eighth innings the first Memphis player to face Messenger reached first, but they could advance no farther than third.

It proved too much for Del Wetherell, who started on the mound for the Pels and was jerked, after retiring but two men, in favor of Messenger.

Besides his brilliant hurling, Andy contributed three hits, two of which figured prominently in the Birds' runs. New Orleans scored four times in the second in a burst featured by Roy Weatherly's long home run over the right field fence with two aboard, tied the count in the seventh and shoved over the winning tallies in the eighth.

Jim Henry hurled seven innings for the Chicks, going out for a pinch hitter in the visitors' half of the eighth. Nelson, who relieved him, was charged with the defeat.

WINNSBORO WILDCATS ENGAGE JENA FRIDAY IN OPENING CONTEST

WINNSBORO, La., Sept. 21.—(Special)—The Winnsboro high school Wildcats are rounding into shape for their opening game of the season to be played here next Friday with the Jena Giants.

Last year players forming the nucleus of the team are Chesney, Lord, Wiley, Robinson, Ellsin, Farmer, Jennings and Montgomery. Among the new players are: Funderburk, Brownell and Williams. Funderburk is reported as a most promising candidate for the team. Practice for the first two weeks was confined largely to blocking, charging, tackling, signal drill and dummy scrimmage. As the candidates are reaching good physical condition, heavy work is in store for next week.

The schedule is as follows: Jena, Sept. 27, at home; Clarks, Oct. 4, at home; Forest, Oct. 11, at home; Columbia, Oct. 18, there; Oak Grove, Oct. 25, there; Rayville, Nov. 1, there; Mangham, Nov. 8, there; Winnfield, Nov. 15, there; Farmerville, Nov. 22, at home; Wisner, Thanksgiving game, at home.

A season ticket drive is now in progress, sponsored by the Winnsboro Lions club. The goal for the ticket sale is 200.

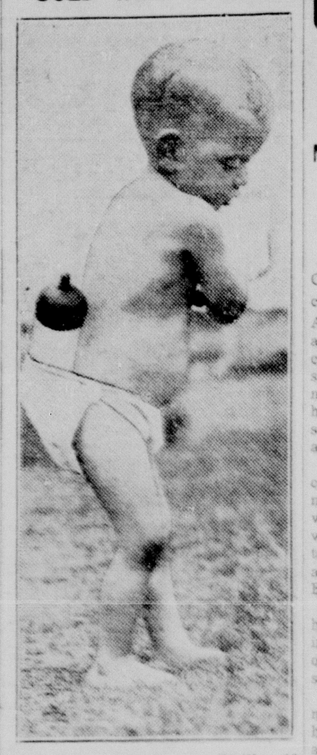

JENA TEAM PREPARES FOR OPENING CLASH

JENA, La., Sept. 21.—(Special)—The Jena Giants are going through steady, strenuous work-outs in preparation for their game on September 27 at Winnsboro.

Probable line-up of the Giants for the game will be: Benton, Lees, Jones, ends; Bradford, Poole, tackles; Chapman, Ganey, Smith, Ford, guards; Owens, center; Doshier, quarterback; Francis, Anders, M. J. Haynes, half backs; Truman Hadges, fullback; reserve linemen: Whiddon, Floyd, Davis, Barker, Murphy, Forison, Sumrall and Auld; reserve backs: Bill Hodges, Allen, Welch, Orville, Haynes.

Captain M. J. Haynes and Alternate Captain Woodie Doshier are ready to go and Coach Hartner "Bud" Gahraron is confident of a good season.

GOLF WINS A FAN

Rain or shine, Jimmy Patillo, 19 months old, of Atlanta, Ga., must have his round of golf. With special clubs and dressed in keeping with these hot days, the youngster plays daily on a course near his home. And lest hunger interrupt his game, Jimmy always carries his lunch on his hip. He had just made a 25-foot drive down the fairway when the cameraman snapped this picture. (Associated Press Photo).

OWLS WILL SEND VETERAN ELEVEN AGAINST TIGERS

BATON ROUGE, La., Sept. 21.—(Special)—Coach Bernie Moore, of Louisiana State university, will frown tomorrow and probably through the coming several days, as he studies notes of his scouts who today saw Rice Institute's Owls in action against St. Mary's in San Antonio, Texas.

On next Saturday night, in Tiger stadium here, Coach Jimmy Kitts, of Rice, will start a senior team against L. S. U. in what promises to be one of the most sensational games ever staged in Tiger Stadium. Of Rice's starting eleven, eight are seniors. The other three are juniors.

Rice's backfield properly may be said to be divided into two parts, this division achieving for the Owls a neat balance. Part 1 is composed of Witt and Friedman, blockers extraordinary, who help clear the way for the speedsters, Wallace and McCauley, comprising Part 2.

The Owls have two clever running guards in Bale and Brandon. These men are fast coming out of the line, on occasions when Rice plays are directed at the enemy wings, and both are adepts in teaming with Witt and Friedman in blocking.

Rice utilizes both Miller and Mays in interference, particularly on flank runs from punt formation. Both are fast, Miller being especially so for such a big man. Both, too, are expert in the matter of the fundamental techniques of the various blocks they are called upon to execute.

Nicholls, Rice's successor to last year's star, Capt. Percy Arthur, is hailed in Houston as even a better center than was Arthur, a large assertion, but one which Rice's coaches expect will be substantiated in the L. S. U. battle next Saturday night.

In reserve strength, the Owls are mighty strong, being especially equipped with extra tackles.

ORLEANS SLATES SPORTS CARNIVAL

National Athletes Accept Bids To Enter Mid-Week Track Meeting

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 21.—(AP)—Glenn Cunningham, famed world champion miler from Kansas; Sam Allen, Oklahoma Baptist star hurdler, and Chick Hornbostel, half-mile specialist, are among nationally known stars to accept bids to compete in the mid-winter sports carnival track meet here December 28, L. L. di Benedetto, secretary of the Southern A. A. U., announced today.

The invitation meet, part of a sports carnival which is to include the annual Sugar Bowl football game as well as golf and tennis tournaments, will attract the cream of the cinder talent and bids for a ranking high among the mid-winter track meets, Bendetto said.

Cunningham, the brilliant racer who has stood off the threats of every important contender in the world at one time or another, is assured of stiff competition in the mile event.

Glen Dawson of Tulsa, has already mailed in his signed invitation and a half-dozen other capable contenders are expected to accept entries to the mile to vie with the record holder.

Gene Venzke, the Pennsylvania star who became famous as Cunningham's pacer in dozens of major meets during the past few years, will not enter the mile event, but will compete in the half-mile.

Venzke is slated to press the fleet-footed Hornbostel, who made headlines as a competitor for the University of Indiana but who now is at Harvard.

Bendetto said almost "every important hurdler" in the world would compete against Sam Allen, the timber-topper whose spring work in the National Intercollegiate and National A. A. U. meets proved so spectacular.

Al Moreau, former Louisiana star high hurdler who twice equalled the world's record on a European tour this summer, and Al Morris, former world champion hurdler, have accepted bids to the meet and the present titlist, Percy Beard of the New York Athletic club, is among the hurdlers asked to compete.

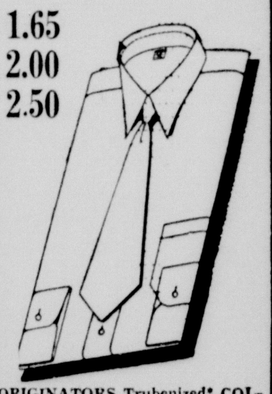

Athletes from Rice, Tulane, Louisiana State, North Carolina, Mississippi State, Alabama, Georgia, Southwestern Louisiana institute and Loyola (New Orleans) will go up against champions in nearly every event.

KELLY TO MEET METHENEY IN STADIUM MAIN EVENT

LOCAL FAVORITE IS MATCHED WITH BIG MISSOURIAN

Ernest Kelly, probably the most popular wrestler to appear in Monroe since the game was revived here several years ago, will come back to Roosevelt stadium Wednesday night. He will appear in the main event with Hank Metheney, the roughhouse Missourian.

Another star of the mat world, John "Firpo" Wilcox, 228-pound Indian who has defeated "Toots" Mondt, Rudy Dusek, George Vassell, Howard Cantowine and other headliners, will appear on the card. He will wrestle an opponent to be selected, in the semi-final match. Promoter Charlie Bruscato is endeavoring to sign for the match a wrestler capable of giving Wilcox a hard battle.

The Kelly-Metheney bout will pit science against the rough and tumble tactics of an opponent weighing 10 pounds more than Kelly, who tips the beam at 212 pounds.

The former University of Tennessee football star will be brought here by the promoter in an effort to obtain a grappler who may defeat Metheney by pinning his shoulders to the mat in two falls out of three. In previous bouts here, a referee's decision has lost matches for Metheney because of his repeated fouling.

Metheney, when he agreed to meet Kelly here Wednesday night, told Bruscato that "I'll give Kelly the same dose I gave Dr. Van Horn last week. And if I get disqualified by that referee (Bill Reilly, of Shreveport) I'll give him some of my medicine, too."

Dr. Van Horn was badly battered by Metheney on last Wednesday night's card, but the medico won the bout when Metheney was disqualified.

Wilcox, the semi-final performer, appeared here about five years ago in a match with Rudy Dusek at the arena then located at the municipal natatorium. The match went the limit to a draw.

Next Wednesday night's bouts at Roosevelt stadium will be decided as usual on the basis of two falls out of three, the opening bout having a one-hour time limit and the main event a two-hour time limit.

Bill Reilly, former professional fighter and wrestler, will referee both bouts.

NEW WATER WAGON GIFT FROM CITY TO LOCAL TEAMS

The old style water-boy of the gridiron, who dashed out upon the field with a bucket of water and a wet towel between the quarters and at "time outs," is a thing of the past on Monroe football fields.

A new style water wagon, that rivals those of many colleges, has been constructed by the water department of the city of Monroe for the use of the four local football teams, those of Northeast Center of L. S. U., Neville high school, Ouachita parish high school and St. Matthew's parochial school.

The wagon, manipulated by two husky negroes, made its first appearance Friday night when Ouachita met Crossett, Ark., and surpassed anything of its nature ever seen on the local gridiron in this part of the state.

It is all metal in construction with the exception of its rubber-tired wheels, and has a capacity of 32 gallons. Compressed air feeds the water through drinking spouts.

It is so constructed, with extra parts, that the front of the wagon is paneled to permit a change of emblems, according to what home town team is being represented.

When Center's Redmen are in action, the likeness of an Indian will be portrayed on the head of the water wagon. The panel may be removed and replaced by the Tiger of Neville, the Lion of Ouachita, or the Shamrock of St. Matthew's when those teams are playing.

Coaches of the local teams have expressed admiration for the mechanical ability of members of the water department and extended sincere thanks for the gift.

NEGRO NINE LEAVES FOR GAME IN CADDO

The Monroe Monarchs will leave here this morning for Shreveport where they will play a doubleheader baseball game this afternoon with the Shreveport Tigers. Charlie Bruscato, who recently became manager of the local negro team, will accompany the Monarchs to Shreveport.

Smith will probably start on the mound for the Monarchs, "Big" Dudley will probably start on the mound for the Tigers.

The Monarchs have won 68 games and lost 18 this season. The Tigers have won 34 out of 39.

OKLAHOMA CITY WINS THIRD SERIES GAME

OKLAHOMA CITY, Sept. 21.—(AP) Oklahoma City took a 2-to-1 lead in here tonight by winning 3 to 2 from the Shaughnessy final playoff series Beaumont. The winning run was scored in the final inning. Evans went the route for Oklahoma City. The teams will meet again tomorrow for the fourth game of the series.

Score by innings:

Beaumont	000	000	020—2 8 1

BOUNCING BRUIN MASCOT IS LUCKY

Paul Dominick, all 115 pounds of him, is the reason the Chicago Cubs are headed for the National league pennant. The 15-year-old mascot of the Bruins has been sitting on the Cubs' bench ever since they started their sensational dash to the top, and here he is sitting on the protesting knee of Manager Charley Grimm. The club plans to take the mascot on its road trip as it finishes the season.

phia Athletics 5 to 4, in the second game of a doubleheader today after dropping the first, 4 to 1.

Continuing his experimentation with Rookie talent, Manager Bucky Harris of the Nats sent left-handed Dick Lanahan to the mound in the opener. He lasted 8 1-3 innings after yielding nine hits and as many walks. Rookies Lewis and Mihalic were at third base and shortstop respectively.

Henry Coppola, youthful Washington right hander, was touched for 11 hits in the second game but was effective with men on bases.

INDIANS BEAT CHISOX

CLEVELAND, Sept. 21.—(AP)—Hal Trosky, Cleveland Indian first baseman, hit his 24th home run of the season today in leading an eleven-hit batting attack to defeat the Chicago White Sox, 7 to 3.

YANKS TRIM CHISOX

BOSTON, Sept. 21.—(AP)—The Yankees did their best to stay in the pennant race today when they trimmed the Red Sox 5 to 2 in the series opener as Johnny Murphy pitched seven-hit ball for his ninth victory of the season.

A three-run splurge against Jack Wilson in the fifth broke a tie score and won for the Yanks.

REDS CRUSH CARDS

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 21.—(AP)—The Cincinnati Reds delivered a smashing blow to the St. Louis Cardinals' pennant hopes today, defeating the Red Birds, 9 to 7, as the Chicago Cubs continued their long winning streak.

Cincinnati, erstwhile St. Louis "cousins," were all but that as they outfought the Cardinals to win, climaxing their assault with a three-run rally in the ninth.

Manager Frank Frisch started Paul Dean, but "Daffy" was off form and yielded 11 hits and six runs before he was taken out for a pinch-hitter in the seventh inning. Ed Heusser was pounded for the three winning Cincinnati runs.

The Cardinals did not go down to defeat easily. In the eighth inning, they staged a three-run rally to tie the count at six-all. A ninth-inning drive fell short after one run had crossed the plate.

Two home runs by Herman and one by Lombardi were the big factors in the Cincinnati victory, although Riggs' triple with two on in the ninth was the decisive blow.

Manager Frank Frisch had a field day at bat, leading the Cardinals' 14-hit attack on Tony Freitas and Paul Derringer with four singles.

GIANTS, DODGERS, SPLIT

NEW YORK, Sept. 21.—(AP)—The Giants, back from a western trip that put them out of the pennant race in all but the mathematical possibilities table, broke even with the Dodgers in a doubleheader today. They won the opener 3 to 2 in eleven innings and then took a 13 to 6 shellacking.

Harry Gumbert, rookie from Baltimore, went the full route in the first encounter, giving only seven hits and outlasting Watson Clark and Johnny Babich. Travis Jackson drove in all the Giant runs, hitting a homer with one on in the fourth and driving home Phil Weintraub with a single in the eleventh.

The Dodgers cut loose against Roy Parmelee in the second inning of the afterpiece, driving him from the hill in his ninth successive attempt to hurl a full game and scoring eight runs before Allyn Stout checked the rally. Van Mungo pitched the whole game, giving nine blows including homers by Bartell, Cuccinello and Myatt.

LOCAL FAVORITE IS MATCHED WITH BIG MISSOURIAN

Ernest Kelly, probably the most popular wrestler to appear in Monroe since the game was revived here several years ago, will come back to Roosevelt stadium Wednesday night. He will appear in the main event with Hank Metheney, the roughhouse Missourian.

Another star of the mat world, John "Firpo" Wilcox, 228-pound Indian who has defeated "Toots" Mondt, Rudy Dusek, George Vassell, Howard Cantowine and other headliners, will appear on the card. He will wrestle an opponent to be selected, in the semi-final match. Promoter Charlie Bruscato is endeavoring to sign for the match a wrestler capable of giving Wilcox a hard battle.

The Kelly-Metheney bout will pit science against the rough and tumble tactics of an opponent weighing 10 pounds more than Kelly, who tips the beam at 212 pounds.

The former University of Tennessee football star will be brought here by the promoter in an effort to obtain a grappler who may defeat Metheney by pinning his shoulders to the mat in two falls out of three. In previous bouts here, a referee's decision has lost matches for Metheney because of his repeated fouling.

Metheney, when he agreed to meet Kelly here Wednesday night, told Bruscato that "I'll give Kelly the same dose I gave Dr. Van Horn last week. And if I get disqualified by that referee (Bill Reilly, of Shreveport) I'll give him some of my medicine, too."

Dr. Van Horn was badly battered by Metheney on last Wednesday night's card, but the medico won the bout when Metheney was disqualified.

Wilcox, the semi-final performer, appeared here about five years ago in a match with Rudy Dusek at the arena then located at the municipal natatorium. The match went the limit to a draw.

Next Wednesday night's bouts at Roosevelt stadium will be decided as usual on the basis of two falls out of three, the opening bout having a one-hour time limit and the main event a two-hour time limit.

Bill Reilly, former professional fighter and wrestler, will referee both bouts.

NEW WATER WAGON GIFT FROM CITY TO LOCAL TEAMS

The old style water-boy of the gridiron, who dashed out upon the field with a bucket of water and a wet towel between the quarters and at "time outs," is a thing of the past on Monroe football fields.

A new style water wagon, that rivals those of many colleges, has been constructed by the water department of the city of Monroe for the use of the four local football teams, those of Northeast Center of L. S. U., Neville high school, Ouachita parish high school and St. Matthew's parochial school.

The wagon, manipulated by two husky negroes, made its first appearance Friday night when Ouachita met Crossett, Ark., and surpassed anything of its nature ever seen on the local gridiron in this part of the state.

It is all metal in construction with the exception of its rubber-tired wheels, and has a capacity of 32 gallons. Compressed air feeds the water through drinking spouts.

It is so constructed, with extra parts, that the front of the wagon is paneled to permit a change of emblems, according to what home town team is being represented.

When Center's Redmen are in action, the likeness of an Indian will be portrayed on the head of the water wagon. The panel may be removed and replaced by the Tiger of Neville, the Lion of Ouachita, or the Shamrock of St. Matthew's when those teams are playing.

Coaches of the local teams have expressed admiration for the mechanical ability of members of the water department and extended sincere thanks for the gift.

NEGRO NINE LEAVES FOR GAME IN CADDO

The Monroe Monarchs will leave here this morning for Shreveport where they will play a doubleheader baseball game this afternoon with the Shreveport Tigers. Charlie Bruscato, who recently became manager of the local negro team, will accompany the Monarchs to Shreveport.

Smith will probably start on the mound for the Monarchs. "Big" Dudley will probably start on the mound for the Tigers.

The Monarchs have won 68 games ... lost 18 this season. The Tigers have won 34 out of 39.

OKLAHOMA CITY WINS THIRD SERIES GAME

OKLAHOMA CITY, Sept. 21.—(AP)—Oklahoma City took a 2-to-1 lead in here tonight by winning 3 to 2 from the Shaughnessy final playoff series Beaumont. The winning run was scored in the final inning. Evans went the route for Oklahoma City. The teams will meet again tomorrow for the fourth game of the series.

Score by innings:

Beaumont	000	000	020	2	8	1

Batteries: Larkin, Phillips and Tebbetts; Evans and Fitzpatrick.

BOUNCING BRUIN MASCOT IS LUCKY

Paul Dominick, all 115 pounds of him, is the reason the Chicago Cubs are headed for the National league pennant. The 15-year-old mascot of the Bruins has been sitting on the Cubs' bench ever since they started their sensational dash to the top, and here he is sitting on the protesting knee of Manager Charley Grimm. The club plans to take the mascot on its road trip as it finishes the season.

phia Athletics 5 to 4, in the second game of a doubleheader today after dropping the first, 4 to 1.

Continuing his experimentation with Rookie talent, Manager Bucky Harris of the Nats sent left-handed Dick Lanahan to the mound in the opener. He lasted 8 1-3 innings after yielding nine hits and as many walks. Rookies Lewis and Mihalic were at third base and shortstop respectively.

Henry Coppola, youthful Washington right hander, was touched for 11 hits in the second game but was effective with men on bases.

YANKS TRIM CHISOX

BOSTON, Sept. 21.—(AP)—The Yankees did their best to stay in the pennant race today when they trimmed the Red Sox 5 to 2 in the series opener as Johnny Murphy pitched seven-hit ball for his ninth victory of the season.

A three-run splurge against Jack Wilson in the fifth broke a tie score and won for the Yanks.

Other winners were:

REDS CRUSH CARDS

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 21.—(AP)—The Cincinnati Reds delivered a smashing blow to the St. Louis Cardinals' pennant hopes today, defeating the Red Birds, 9 to 7, as the Chicago Cubs continued their long winning streak.

Cincinnati, erstwhile St. Louis "cousins," were all but that as they outfought the Cardinals to win, climaxing their assault with a three-run rally in the ninth.

Manager Frank Frisch started Paul Dean, but "Daffy" was off form and yielded 11 hits and six runs before he was taken out for a pinch-hitter in the seventh inning. Ed Heusser was pounded for the three winning Cincinnati runs.

The Cardinals did not go down to defeat easily. In the eighth inning, they staged a three-run rally to tie the count at six-all. A ninth-inning drive fell short after one run had crossed the plate.

Two home runs by Herman and one by Lombardi were the big factors in the Cincinnati victory, although Riggs' triple with two on in the ninth was the decisive blow.

Manager Frank Frisch had a field day at bat, leading the Cardinals' 14-hit attack on Tony Freitas and Paul Derringer with four singles.

GIANTS, DODGERS, SPLIT

NEW YORK, Sept. 21.—(AP)—The Giants, back from a western trip that put them out of the pennant race in all but the mathematical possibilities table, broke even with the Dodgers in a doubleheader today. They won the opener 3 to 2 in eleven innings and then took a 13 to 6 shellacking.

Harry Gumbert, rookie from Baltimore, went the full route in the first encounter, giving only seven hits and outlasting Watson Clark and Johnny Babich. Travis Jackson drove in all the Giant runs, hitting a homer with one on in the fourth and driving home Phil Weintraub witn a single in the eleventh.

The Dodgers cut loose against Roy Parmelee in the second inning of the afterpiece, driving him from the hill in his ninth successive attempt to hurl a full game and scoring eight runs before Allyn Stout checked the rally. Van Mungo pitched the whole game, giving nine blows including homers by Bartell, Cuccinello and Myatt.

Climbs To Within One Point Of Vosmik; Vaughan Slumps In National

NEW YORK, Sept. 21.—(AP)—The rise of one important big league figure and the fall of another furnished the hitting high spots of the major league during the semi-final week of the 1935 season.

Jimmie Foxx of the Athletics, bidding for the American league crown, came close to his objective as he continued his brilliant spurt for another ten point gain in the stretch which started a week ago. Floyd (Arky) Vaughan, whose aim has been to lead the National league with a .400 mark or better, ran into a serious slump that seemed to have wiped out his chances.

Vaughan, close to .400 all season, hit safely only three times in 19 official points to .387. Vaughan's lead was trips to the plate and dropped ten unchallenged as his nearest rival, Joe Medwick of St. Louis, dropped six points to .357 and was in danger of losing his place to Chicago's Gabby Hartnett.

Foxx hit a .500 clip through the week with 15 blows in 30 times up, moved from fifth place among the American league leaders to second, one point behind Joe Vosmik of Cleveland.

TECH TIDINGS

By Ruston Sports Correspondent

RUSTON, La., Sept. 21.—(Special)—As a cotton classifier would say, they are going to "staple" the varsity football players at Louisiana Tech this coming week.

The grading process is on the rehearsal card to reduce the group of 40 candidates to a more-easily coached aggregation.

Beginning Monday, Coach Eddie McLane and his associates will begin to cull the roster and separate the "sheep from the goats." The chances are, the Tech mentor believes, that about 28 of the better grade of gridders will finally constitute the cream, and the remaining dozen will be the rest of the bottle.

The objective of the tutors from that point will be to concentrate their instructive attention upon the upper 28 men, with the hope that they can do more good with a few than with too many. After the weeding out is done, the good gridmen will be given a blue shirt a piece, while the not-so-good will be issued red attire. The blues will work together, and the reds will do the same, and occasionally the twain shall meet for scrimmage.

The coaches are pleased to observe that most of the Techmen are getting heavier and harder every day, but they frown when the subject of blocking comes up. Too many of the boys are still too shy on their ability in this feature of the game.

Secretly supervised scrimmages with the Louisiana State university varsity men at Baton Rouge Friday and Saturday nights gave the Techsters some big-time experience in pigskin warfare. The Techmen went down to the Tigers' den, upon invitation of L. S. U. athletics officials, to show the university's gridmen a thing or two about the Notre Dame way of playing football. The Bengals wanted this practice primarily to prepare themselves for their coming meetings with Rice and the University of Texas. Similarly, the Tech tribe welcomed the tangle with the Tigers as valuable training for some of their approaching engagements, particularly games with Tennessee Tech here on Friday night, October 4, and Southwestern Louisiana Institute here on October 11.

Bright lights which have been flooding the football field Tech attest to the accomplishments of seven Ruston business men. They are the members of "The Light Brigade," who conducted a grid season ticket selling campaign, the success of which was prerequisite for the inauguration of night football games at Tech.

Jack Ritchie, dubbed as the "brigadiergeneral" of the light-seeking corps, appointed the other six members of the group, who included Ted Wilson, J. B. Milam, Robert Upchurch, F. E. Willis, Drew Hays and N. E. Dupont.

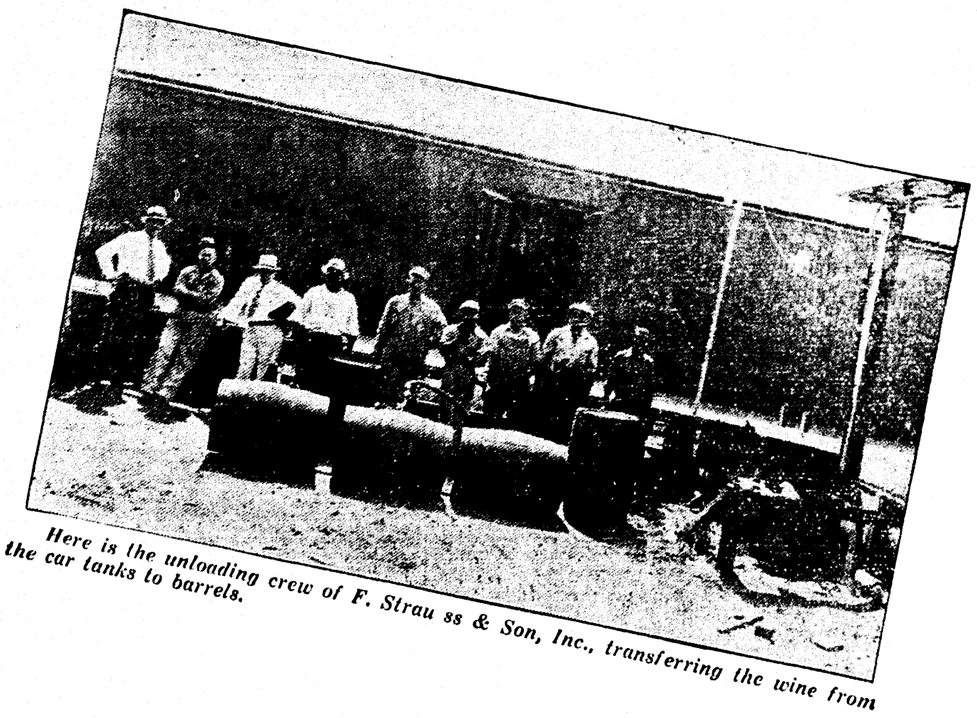

They not only sold the required number of tickets before the stadium was completed but they have seen the lights burning before the stadium is finished. Work on the stadium is steadily progressing, however, and the structure will be ready for use when the Tech men open their season here on Friday night, October 4, with Tennessee Tech.

RUSTON, La., Sept. 21.—(Special)—As a cotton classifier would say, they are going to "staple" the varsity football players at Louisiana Tech this coming week.

The grading process is on the rehearsal card to reduce the group of 40 candidates to a more-easily coached aggregation.

Beginning Monday, Coach Eddie McLane and his associates will begin to cull the roster and separate the "sheep from the goats." The chances are, the Tech mentor believes, that about 28 of the better grade of gridders will finally constitute the cream, and the remaining dozen will be the rest of the bottle.

The objective of the tutors from that point will be to concentrate their instructive attention upon the upper 28 men, with the hope that they can do more good with a few than with too many. After the weeding out is done, the good gridmen will be given a blue shirt a piece, while the not-so-good will be issued red attire. The blues will work together, and the reds will do the same, and occasionally the twain shall meet for scrimmage.

The coaches are pleased to observe that most of the Techmen are getting heavier and harder every day, but they frown when the subject of blocking comes up. Too many of the boys are still too shy on their ability in this feature of the game.

Secretly supervised scrimmages with the Louisiana State university varsity men at Baton Rouge Friday and Saturday nights gave the Techsters some big-time experience in pigskin warfare. The Techmen went down to the Tigers' den, upon invitation of L. S. U. athletics officials, to show the university's gridmen a thing or two about the Notre Dame way of playing football. The Bengals wanted this practice primarily to prepare themselves for their coming meetings with Rice and the University of Texas. Similarly, the Tech tribe welcomed the tangle with the Tigers as valuable training for some of their approaching engagements, particularly games with Tennessee Tech here on Friday night, October 4, and Southwestern Louisiana institute here on October 11.

Bright lights which have been flooding the football field Tech attest to the accomplishments of seven Ruston business men. They are the members of "The Light Brigade," who conducted a grid season ticket selling campaign, the success of which was prerequisite for the inauguration of night football games at Tech.

Jack Ritchie, dubbed as the "brigadiergeneral" of the light-seeking corps, appointed the other six members of the group, who included Ted Wilson, J. B. Milam, Robert Upchurch, F. E. Willis, Drew Hays and N. E. Dupont.

They not only sold the required number of tickets before the stadium was completed but they have seen the lights burning before the stadium is finished. Work on the stadium is steadily progressing, however, and the structure will be ready for use when the Tech men open their season here on Friday night, October 4, with Tennessee Tech.

SOLID CARLOAD of CALIFORNIA WINES

Final Arrangements Are Made To Open Show On Oct. 1 In West Monroe

With the opening of the Ouachita Valley fair only slightly more than a week away, final arrangements are being completed for the making of the exhibition the best ever held here, according to George Dierlamm, manager.

Auto bumper placards and highly colored window lithographs are well distributed throughout northeast Louisiana proclaiming the opening of the fair on October 1 for a six-day exhibition.

Tents are arranged for at the fair grounds to house the large number of exhibits. The grounds are being graded, new roads put through and ample parking space is being prepared for the accommodation of thousands of cars.

One of the largest amusement companies that tour the south has been signed up and will come here directly from an engagement at Homer, Mr. Dierlamm said.

Premiums and ribbons for more than 300 products are offered, which include nearly all products that are produced on the farm.

SCOT JAIL USELESS, SOLD

Useless for years, the Flintshire county jail near Mold, Scotland, has been sold to R. S. Kelly, a Mold attorney, and clerk to the local magistrates. Included in the sale are the governor's residence and warder's house. The jail, which cost $150,000 to build, was closed because of the scarcity of prisoners. Afterwards it was a monastery and military detention barracks.

AGRICULTURAL CLASS ENROLLMENT INCREASES

JENA, La., Sept. 21.—(Special)—The enrollment in the agriculture department of the Jena high school has increased from 25 students last year to 53 this year. This is the second year that vocational agriculture has been offered in the Jena school. The 53 boys in the class all live on farms and carry on a supervised farm practice program at their homes. K. E. Osterberger is instructor of the class.

ROAD BUILDING PLAN PROPOSED

JACKSON, Miss., Sept. 21.—(AP)—The Citizens Highway association of Mississippi will present a gigantic plan of road building which would provide hardsurfacing of all U. S. marked routes in the state, before the state association of county boards of supervisors meeting here Monday and Tuesday.

The road program proposed by the highway association, a group composed of representatives from each congressional district in the state, will be presented by W. T. Wynn of Greenville, chairman of a special committee of the highway association, to evolve a program of road building.

The program would involve a total expenditure of $41,092,107, to be financed largely through federal funds. It would provide completion of paving of the following U. S. numbered routes: 61, 49E, 49W, 45, 11, 72, 78, 82, 80, 51 and 90.

The proposal includes the use of six and one half million dollars which the association says has already been allotted the highway commission under the work-relief program. This sum is to be augmented by a $30,000,000 loan and grant from the public works administration.

CRADDOCK GIVES TRANSIENT TALK

Walter Craddock, district transient director, was the chief speaker at the monthly luncheon of the Council of Social agencies, at the First Christian church Friday noon. He outlined the work that he is required to perform in closing up the activities of the transient bureau here.

He stated that Friday night all transient bureaus were closed in the United States as concerns the reception of newcomers. Those who now remain are divided into three classes. These are the unattached men who are employable. These are to be sent to WPA work camps. The second division are those who are employable but who have families. They are to be transferred to the FERA for assignment to WPA projects here.

The last class are those who for some reason are unemployable. Efforts will be exerted to return them to their homes at the expense of the bureau if they can be assured of proper maintenance when they are returned.

Those who are left here will be turned over to the care of the community.

Tentative plans were mentioned as to the care of these persons, but this will all have to be worked out locally, Mr. Craddock said.

Final Arrangements Are Made To Open Show On Oct. 1 In West Monroe

With the opening of the Ouachita Valley fair only slightly more than a week away, final arrangements are being completed for the making of the exhibition the best ever held here, according to George Dierlamm, manager.

Auto bumper placards and highly colored window lithographs are well distributed throughout northeast Louisiana proclaiming the opening of the fair on October 1 for a six-day exhibition.

Tents are arranged for at the fair grounds to house the large number of exhibits. The grounds are being graded, new roads put through and ample parking space is being prepared for the accommodation of thousands of cars.

One of the largest amusement companies that tour the south has been signed up and will come here directly from an engagement at Homer, Mr. Dierlamm said.

Premiums and ribbons for more than 300 products are offered, which include nearly all products that are produced on the farm.

SCOT JAIL USELESS, SOLD

Useless for years, the Flintshire county jail near Mold, Scotland, has been sold to R. S. Kelly, a Mold attorney, and clerk to the local magistrates. Included in the sale are the governor's residence and warder's house. The jail, which cost $150,000 to build, was closed because of the scarcity of prisoners. Afterwards it was a monastery and military detention barracks.

AGRICULTURAL CLASS ENROLLMENT INCREASES

JENA, La., Sept. 21.—(Special)—The enrollment in the agriculture department of the Jena high school has increased from 25 students last year to 53 this year. This is the second year that vocational agriculture has been offered in the Jena school. The 53 boys in the class all live on farms and carry on a supervised farm practice program at their homes. K. E. Osterberger is instructor of the class.

ROAD BUILDING PLAN PROPOSED

JACKSON, Miss., Sept. 21.—(AP)—The Citizens Highway association of Mississippi will present a gigantic plan of road building which would provide hardsurfacing of all U. S. marked routes in the state, before the state association of county boards of supervisors meeting here Monday and Tuesday.

The road program proposed by the highway association, a group composed of representatives from each congressional district in the state, will be presented by W. T. Wynn of Greenville, chairman of a special committee of the highway association, to evolve a program of road building.

The program would involve a total expenditure of $41,092,107, to be financed largely through federal funds. It would provide completion of paving of the following U. S. numbered routes: 61, 49E, 49W, 45, 11, 72, 78, 82, 80, 51 and 90.

The proposal includes the use of six and one half million dollars which the association says has already been allotted the highway commission under the work-relief program. This sum is to be augmented by a $30,000,000 loan and grant from the public works administration.

Walter Craddock, district transient director, was the chief speaker at the monthly luncheon of the Council of Social agencies, at the First Christian church Friday noon. He outlined the work that he is required to perform in closing up the activities of the transient bureau here.

He stated that Friday night all transient bureaus were closed in the United States as concerns the reception of newcomers. Those who now remain are divided into three classes. These are the unattached men who are employable. These are to be sent to WPA work camps. The second division are those who are employable but who have families. They are to be transferred to the FERA for assignment to WPA projects here.

The last class are those who for some reason are unemployable. Efforts will be exerted to return them to their homes at the expense of the bureau if they can be assured of proper maintenance when they are returned.

Those who are left here will be turned over to the care of the community.

Tentative plans were mentioned as to the care of these persons, but this will all have to be worked out locally, Mr. Craddock said.

GIRL ABANDONS BARRYMORE HUNT

Elaine Barrie Makes Airplane Reservations To Return To Her Home

KANSAS CITY, Sept. 21.—(AP)—Elaine Barrie, pretty 20-year-old admirer of John Barrymore, abandoned tonight her dash from New York—they quarreled there—in an effort to overtake the westbound 53-year-old screen lover who eluded her here.

Tired but smiling after her search, the dark-eyed girl made reservations to fly back east.

A wild dash through the outskirts of Kansas City by taxi from one train to another by the stubble-bearded Barrymore enabled him to continue toward California without meeting Miss Barrie.

"I love him dearly and I know he loves me, so it is bound to come out all right but when I do not know," Miss Barrie said, slumped wearily across a bed in her hotel suite.

Their trails almost crossed here. Barrymore and two male companions left a train from Chicago in North Kansas City, dashed by taxicab to Holliday, Kas., and boarded the Santa Fe railroad's California Limited there, going into seclusion in a locked compartment.

Miss Barrie, believing he was somewhere in Kansas City, sped frantically by cab to a radio station and broadcast a personal appeal to Barrymore—she calls him "Caliban"—to get in contact with her immediately.

"John, dear, I know you need me now," she pleaded over a Kansas City broadcasting station.

"My messages to you have not been delivered."

Previously she had sped by plane from New York, overtaking Barrymore's train at Chicago. He dashed to a Chicago hotel without her seeing him. Thinking he took another train there later, she boarded it, got ahead of him and doubled back here after reaching Emporia, Kas.

"Ariel" is—or was before Barrymore walked out on his young protegee in New York—the film actor's pet name for Miss Barrie. Caliban and Ariel are in Shakespeare's "The Tempest."

In her hotel Miss Barrie spoke defiantly through heavily rouged lips. She denied it was a one-sided pursuit.

"I'm sick and tired of this impression going about that I am pursuing a man who does not want to see me. John Barrymore does not know that I am near. Those guarding him will not let him know it. If he knew I was here in Kansas City, he would turn heaven and earth to see me. John is an ill man, I have been trying to nurse him back to health for weeks.

"Yes, we did have a quarrel. But he didn't dash out of my apartment. His business manager came and escorted him away. I have not seen him since. I did make a statement through my attorney that 'the glamorous episode is ended' but that was a bit premature. I still love him.

"Will we be married? I really can't talk about that. It is so difficult to say anything definitely now."

In Hollywood, Barrymore's wife, the former Dolores Costello, who has been reading for weeks about her traveling husband's interest in brunette Elaine, said there was no hope of a reconciliation—if that's what John has in mind.

The actor was described by Elmer Adkinson, the taxicab driver who took him to Holliday, Kas., as a man with two day's growth of beard, "his hair tousled, his eyes bloodshot." Said the driver:

SHE'S A NATURAL

PHONE COMPANY SHOWING GAINS

Number Of Telephones Installed Increased By Nearly 600 Here

Indications of a return to normal business is furnished by the Southern Bell Telephone company, Manager J. W. Warren stated Saturday, when he announced that at the end of August there were a total of 5,590 telephones in use here. This represented a gain of nearly 600 telephones installed since August, 1933, when the number slumped to the lowest ebb since 1929.

Nearly all the supply of instruments on hand have been used up and he said that more will have to be ordered.

Another indication of good times is the fact that long distance telephone calls are increasing with appreciable volume, and it appears as if the fall season will show greater gains.

Mr. Warren said that for the first time in some years, he has become enthusiastic over the outlook for his company here. Similar gains are also reported throughout northeast Louisiana, showing that the pickup is not solely a local one.

PROCEEDINGS STARTED AGAINST ROOSEVELT, JR.

MALDEN, Mass., Sept. 21.—(AP)—The first step in a suit against Franklin Delano Roosevelt, Jr., son of the president, and a Harvard student, for damages growing out of an automobile collision in Boston last April was taken in district court today.

Hyman Barlow of Malden started proceedings by filing a writ claiming he was injured and his car damaged in a collision with young Roosevelt April 27.

ARMS REGULATION OFFICES OPENED

New Department Will Supervise Federal Munitions Control

WASHINGTON, Sept. 21.—(AP)—Establishment of an office of arms and munitions control to carry out provisions of the recently enacted neutrality legislation and supervise federal control of the munitions traffic was announced today by the state department.

Secretary Hull said the office would be under the direction of R. Walton Moore, assistant secretary, with Joseph C. Green as chief, and Charles W. Yost as assistant chief.

1. Registration of manufacturers, exporters and importers of articles proclaimed by the president to be arms, ammunition and implements of war, the export or import of which without a license would be in violation of any law of the United States.

2. Issuance of licenses for the exportation or importation of arms, ammunition and implements of war under such regulations as may be promulgated by the secretary of state.

3. Such supervision of international traffic in arms, ammunition and implements of war as falls within the jurisdiction of the secretary of state under treaties and statutes.

Green, the state department's munitions expert, has handled most of the questions involved over a period of years, and organization of the new division will concentrate all of the questions under his direction.

At the present time embargoes on munitions shipments are in force with respect to China, Nicaragua, Cuba, Honduras, Paraguay and Bolivia, and the new division will supervise the continuance of regulations concerning those countries.

The embargo against shipments to China has been in effect since March 4, 1922.

STATE EDUCATORS CONFER AT ALEX

Proposed Changes In Teachers' Organization Are Discussed

ALEXANDRIA, La., Sept. 21.—(AP)—Proposed changes in the organization of the Louisiana Teachers association were discussed here today in a statewide meeting attended by about 80 members.

The changes were proposed by C. E. Laborde of Marksville, superintendent of Avoyelles schools; P. H. Griffith of Baton Rouge, L. S. U., extension head; S. L. Crownover, Plaquemine high school principal; John M. Foote and J. W. Brouillette of Baton Rouge, of the state department of education, for presentation at the state convention here in November. They would include abolishment of the house of delegates and the substitution of a board of directors selected by congressional districts.

A basic salary schedule, which is to be presented to the convention, was discussed as was the organization of a permanent planning committee.

After lunch the group heard remarks from G. O. Houston, Baton Rouge, executive secretary of the association, and the following parish superintendents: Ashley W. Warlick, East Carroll; J. W. Faulk, E. S. Richardson, Webster, and H. M. Wells, Rapides.

L. P. Terrebone of New Iberia, president of the association, presided.

HUNDREDS IN SEARCH FOR MISSING INFANT

BEDFORD, Pa., Sept. 21—(AP)—Hundreds of searchers tramped far into the mountains today peering behind every bush and into every crevice for the two-year-old Paul Goechener.

The boy toddled away from his home yesterday morning. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Gouchener, said they were not alarmed until he failed to come home at night.

More than 700 citizens joined with state and county officers in a hunt over the desolate mountainside.

ADVERTISING MAN BEATEN TO DEATH IN PENNSYLVANIA

ALLENTOWN, Pa., Sept. 21.—(AP)—Charles E. Wetzel, advertising manager of the United Gas Improvement company of Philadelphia, was found beaten to death near the municipal incinerator on the Little Lehigh river today. His skull was crushed.

Police said the scene indicated Wetzel died in a fierce struggle. There was a gash over his left eye, his clothing was torn, and his hands were cut.

Coroner Alexander Peters expressed the opinion that Wetzel was attacked by tramps who needed money. Peters said Wetzel's automobile was missing and that this helped substantiate this theory.

James J. Casper, of Philadelphia, found the body partly submerged in the river. He was detained for further questioning.

Police were puzzled by the finding of Wetzel's hat, one shoe and a handkerchief behind a house four blocks from where his body was found. Residents of the vicinity told police they heard shouting and sounds of a scuffle near the river before daybreak.

Wetzel was believed en route to Philadelphia after visiting the offices of the Allentown-Bethlehem Gas company. He was identified by insurance receipts found in his pockets.

Wetzel was born in Danville, Pa., and had been advertising manager of United Gas Improvement since 1931.

Coroner Peters said an autopsy had been ordered.

DEATH OF GIRL IS DENIED BY ROGERS

Oil Fortune Heir Tells Jury That Singer Was Moody And Depressed

WEST CHESTER, Pa., Sept. 21.—(AP)—Henry Huddleston Rogers, Jr., Standard Oil fortune heir, put behind him today the ordeal or more than two hours questioning and a record of his firm denial that he had any part in the killing of Evelyn Hoey, "torch" singer of Broadway musicals.

Miss Hoey, he told a jury of six men and a packed courtroom last night, shot herself to death in his secluded Chester county farmhouse on the night of September 11 because "she was unhappy and depressed."

"She didn't sing, and thought she lost her voice. I think she felt she couldn't go back to that part of the theater," he said reflectively.

Rogers' testimony ended the second day of the inquest, and deputy Coroney Harvey Cox recessed the proceedings until Monday night. At that time he said he will call a finger-print expert, a doctor who conducted an autopsy, and Downingtown police.

Rogers testified Miss Hoey attempted to leap from the window of a New York hotel a few weeks ago while they were conversing. He pulled her back, he said, when all but an arm and leg were out of the window and she hurt her nose in the struggle.

"She was always moody when she was drinking," he said.

Rogers acknowledged his relations with the musical actress were intimate. He denied he wanted to "break off." He acknowledged doing considerable drinking at the farmhouse the afternoon and evening of the fatal day at the farmhouse and of talking sharply to her and refusing her request for an immediate departure to New York. He denied, however, there was a violent quarrel.

"I'd do anything in the world for her. I'd give my life for her," he testified with shaking head.

Dressed in black and facing his mother, Mrs. Mary Benjamin Rogers, he spoke calmly and with apparent confidence in an even, conversational tone. The jury was only a step or two from his chair. He raised his voice a trifle once when District Attorney William E. Parke asked point blank: "Did you shoot Miss Hoey?" and the answer "No" shot back.

County officials made public a telegram which Rogers testified Miss Hoey sent him in New York from his country home. It was dated September 9 and read: "If you go to the Casino you rat please request my theme song quote I Couldn't Believe My Eyes."

It was signed "Swansdownbrow."

Rogers said he telephoned her about it and she told him it was "a joke."

SCOTTSBORO CASE TO BE RE-OPENED

Re-Indictment Of Nine Negro Defendants To Be Sought Soon

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Sept. 21.—(AP)—Lieutenant-Governor Thomas E. Knight, Jr., special state counsel in the "Scottsboro case, said today that he would ask for a special session of the Jackson county grand jury "in about three weeks to reindict the nine negro defendants.

If the new indictments are returned, Knight said he would seek an early trial and a change of venue to Morgan county where the last trials were held. The negroes are charged with attacking two white girls on a freight train in March 1931.

Sentences of Haywood Patterson and Clarence Norris, the last two defendants tried, were reversed by the U. S. supreme coure on the grounds that the negroes were "systematically excluded from grand and trial jury service in the case because of their race and color.

The "cure this ruling, a legislative act recently was passed empowering jury commissioners to empty and refill all jury boxes, and Governor Bibb Graves in a public statement declared that the names of the negroes must be placed in the boxes to meet the supreme court decision.

Governor Graves has appointed two new members of the Jackson (Scottsboro) county jury board which will select the grand jurors to reinvestigate the "Scottsboro case.

The defendants are held in jail at Birmingham.

SEARCH FOR CRASHED AIRPLANE IS FUTILE

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla., Sept. 21.—(AP)—A filling station operator's belief he saw a plane struck to earth by lightning today sent searchers trampling through brushland in a hunt that produced only a large dead hawk.

Police abandoned the search after several fruitless hours, but others, including deputies sheriff, continued hunting for the plane which E. S. Hamilton, service station operator, believed he saw fall in the thunder storm.

The hawk had apparently been killed by the lightning.

LEGION VANGUARD REACHES ST. LOUIS

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 21.—(AP)—A vanguard of the American Legion marched on St. Louis today to head the attack in a new battle for the bonus.

The legionnaires' movement on the city for their annual national convention opening Monday already was assuming major proportions this morning, and legion officials estimated there would be between 70,000 and 90,000 visitors here by tonight. They predict more than 200,000 will be on hand for the opening.

First preliminary meetings were held yesterday. The resolutions assignment committee spent the day examining 736 resolutions presented for consideration of the convention by the 58 legion departments.

These showed that the bonus will again be a major concern of the convention.

Resolutions for bonus payment have been received from 45 of the 48 domestic departments, each representing a state. Last year the legion demanded immediate payment after 38 states had presented similar resolutions.

About half of the resolutions considered deal with rehabilitation of war veterans, their dependents, widows and orphans.

DEPOSITIONS SOUGHT IN KIDNAPPING CASE

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Sept. 21.—(AP)—Counsel for Thomas H. Robinson, Sr., Nashville, who will go on trial in federal district court here October 7 on a charge of complicity in the kidnaping of Mrs. Alice Speed Stoll, applied today for an order to take depositions of Secretary of State Cordell Hull and other prominent Tennesseeans.

Robinson, whose son, Thomas H. Robinson, Jr., has been hunted by federal agents as the actual kidnaper of the Louisville society matron, will be tried jointly with young Robinson's wife, Frances.

Counsel for the elder Robinson sought depositions of Hull, Joseph W. Byrns, speaker of the house of representatives; Governor Hill McAllister and former Governor Alfred H. Robinson of Tennessee as testimony to the defendant's good character.

Judge Elwood Hamilton indicated he would grant the request, saying he would enter an order later. U. S. District Attorney Bunk Gardner objected to the procedure, remarking that such a move had been "threatened" for six months and now was being made just two weeks before the trial.

SEARCH IS LAUNCHED FOR ESCAPED CONVICTS

COLUMBUS, Miss., Sept. 21.—(AP)—Two prisoners, using the jailor's keys, escaped late today from the Lowndes county jail here.

Officers launched a search for the men, Homer Taylor, who was being held to face a highway robbery charge and J. B. Anderson, accused of forgery. Taylor was described as having served sentences in California and Georgia.

Keys, which had been left in a corridor near the cell of the pair, were sneaked into the cell and used at a time when the building was clear.

ARMS REGULATION OFFICES OPENED

New Department Will Supervise Federal Munitions Control

WASHINGTON, Sept. 21.—(AP)—Establishment of an office of arms and munitions control to carry out provisions of the recently enacted neutrality legislation and supervise federal control of the munitions traffic was announced today by the state department.

Secretary Hull said the office would be under the direction of R. Walton Moore, assistant secretary, with Joseph C. Green as chief, and Charles W. Yost as assistant chief.

1. Registration of manufacturers, exporters and importers of articles proclaimed by the president to be arms, ammunition and implements of war, the export or import of which without a license would be in violation of any law of the United States.

2. Issuance of licenses for the exportation or importation of arms, ammunition and implements of war under such regulations as may be promulgated by the secretary of state.

3. Such supervision of international traffic in arms, ammunition and implements of war as falls within the jurisdiction of the secretary of state under treaties and statutes.

Green, the state department's munitions expert, has handled most of the questions involved over a period of years, and organization of the new division will concentrate all of the questions under his direction.

At the present time embargoes on munitions shipments are in force with respect to China, Nicaragua, Cuba, Honduras, Paraguay and Bolivia, and the new division will supervise the continuance of regulations concerning those countries.

The embargo against shipments to China has been in effect since March 4, 1922.

Oil Fortune Heir Tells Jury That Singer Was Moody And Depressed

WEST CHESTER, Pa., Sept. 21.—(AP)—Henry Huddleston Rogers, Jr., Standard Oil fortune heir, put behind him today the ordeal or more than two hours questioning and a record of his firm denial that he had any part in the killing of Evelyn Hoey, "torch" singer of Broadway musicals.

Miss Hoey, he told a jury of six men and a packed courtroom last night, shot herself to death in his secluded Chester county farmhouse on the night of September 11 because "she was unhappy and depressed."

County officials made public a telegram which Rogers testified Miss Hoey sent him in New York from his country home. It was dated September 9 and read: "If you go to the Casino you rat please request my theme song quote I Couldn't Believe My Eyes."

It was signed "Swansdownbrow."

Rogers said he telephoned her about it and she told him it was "a joke."

Re-Indictment Of Nine Negro Defendants To Be Sought Soon

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Sept. 21.—(AP)—Lieutenant-Governor Thomas E. Knight, Jr., special state counsel in the "Scottsboro case, said today that he would ask for a special session of the Jackson county grand jury "in about three weeks to reindict the nine negro defendants.

If the new indictments are returned, Knight said he would seek an early trial and a change of venue to Morgan county where the last trials were held. The negroes are charged with attacking two white girls on a freight train in March 1931.

Sentences of Haywood Patterson and Clarence Norris, the last two defendants tried, were reversed by the U. S. supreme coure on the grounds that the negroes were "systematically excluded from grand and trial jury service in the case because of their race and color.

The "cure this ruling, a legislative act recently was passed empowering jury commissioners to empty and refill all jury boxes, and Governor Bibb Graves in a public statement declared that the names of the negroes must be placed in the boxes to meet the supreme court decision.

Governor Graves has appointed two new members of the Jackson (Scottsboro) county jury board which will select the grand jurors to reinvestigate the "Scottsboro case.

The defendants are held in jail at Birmingham.

SEARCH FOR CRASHED AIRPLANE IS FUTILE

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla., Sept. 21.—(AP)—A filling station operator's belief he saw a plane struck to earth by lightning today sent searchers trampling through brushland in a hunt that produced only a large dead hawk.

Police abandoned the search after several fruitless hours, but others, including deputies sheriff, continued hunting for the plane which E. S. Hamilton, service station operator believed he saw fall in the thunder storm.

The hawk had apparently been killed by the lightning.

LEGION VANGUARD REACHES ST. LOUIS

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 21.—(AP)—A vanguard of the American Legion marched on St. Louis today to head the attack in a new battle for the bonus.

The legionnaires' movement on the city for their annual national convention opening Monday already was assuming major proportions this morning, and legion officials estimated there would be between 70,000 and 90,000 visitors here by tonight. They predict more than 200,000 will be on hand for the opening.

First preliminary meetings were held yesterday. The resolutions assignment committee spent the day examining 736 resolutions presented for consideration of the convention by the 58 legion departments.

These showed that the bonus will again be a major concern of the convention.

Resolutions for bonus payment have been received from 45 of the 48 domestic departments, each representing a state. Last year the legion demanded immediate payment after 38 states had presented similar resolutions.

About half of the resolutions considered deal with rehabilitation of war veterans, their dependents, widows and orphans.

DEPOSITIONS SOUGHT IN KIDNAPPING CASE

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Sept. 21.—(AP)—Counsel for Thomas H. Robinson, Sr., Nashville, who will go on trial in federal district court here October 7 on a charge of complicity in the kidnaping of Mrs. Alice Speed Stoll, applied today for an order to take depositions of Secretary of State Cordell Hull and other prominent Tennesseeans.

Robinson, whose son, Thomas H. Robinson, Jr., has been hunted by federal agents as the actual kidnaper of the Louisville society matron, will be tried jointly with young Robinson's wife, Frances.

Counsel for the elder Robinson sought depositions of Hull, Joseph W. Byrns, speaker of the house of representatives; Governor Hill McAllister and former Governor Alfred H. Robinson of Tennessee as testimony to the defendant's good character.

Judge Elwood Hamilton indicated he would grant the request, saying he would enter an order later. U. S. District Attorney Bunk Gardner objected to the procedure, remarking that such a move had been "threatened" for six months and now was being made just two weeks before the trial.

SEARCH IS LAUNCHED FOR ESCAPED CONVICTS

COLUMBUS, Miss., Sept. 21.—(AP)—Two prisoners, using the jailor's keys, escaped late today from the Lowndes county jail here.

Officers launched a search for the men, Homer Taylor, who was being held to face a highway robbery charge and J. B. Anderson, accused of forgery. Taylor was described as having served sentences in California and Georgia.

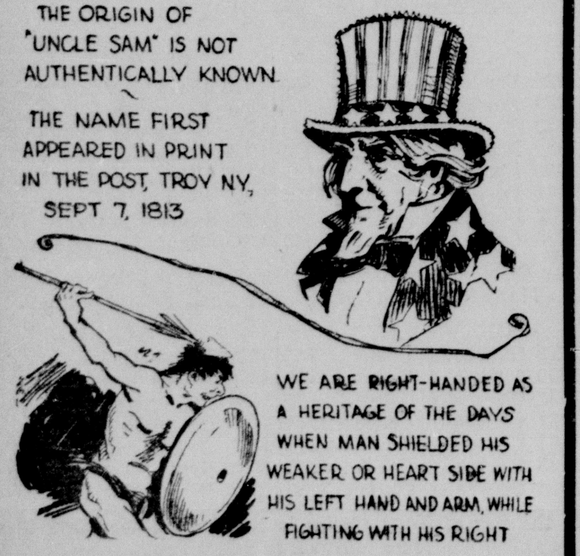

Keys, which had been left in a corridor near the cell of the pair, were sneaked into the cell and used at a time when the building was clear.

By Eve Bradford

Summer's fragrant reign is over. White mists draw their chilly veil and green monotony gives way to autumn's robust riot of color. The wind is soft and low and wafts to us the odor of dead leaves that whirl in little eddies around our feet. A filmy mist lies like a silver mantle over the river, where pleasure craft pass up and down, carrying happy families re-united after their summer vacations. The spider lilies, first harbinger of autumn, blaze through the misty air like a conflagration.

Glorious indeed is the clump of lilies encircling the old trees in the gardens of the Benjamin Dawkins' home. Most beautiful of all, however, are the lilies that spread a flaming carpet over the ground at the T. C. Rowland country home. Drive out there today, by all means, and see for yourself what autumn has done for us in the way of gorgeous coloring. Driving along this quiet countryside, where wood smoke rises blue and thin, your spirits will rise. The old uneasiness that autumn wakes will vanish completely and you will revel in the season devoid of heat and haste.

Although nature is clothing the world in autumnal garb, members of society continue to be comfortable in their summer clothes. However, some of the smartest clothes we have seen in many a day are noted here and there, where society meets over the bridge tables.

True Hudson was wearing a perfectly divine model the other afternoon. It was fashioned of heavy beige crepe with clip and wristlets of bright green beads.

Marguerite Hill, a picture of sartorial loveliness, was wearing some good-looking clothes during her visit in the city last week. A soft white wool suit with a bewitching bow under the chin and a white felt hat that shaded her face was most becoming. In her wardrobe trunk she had a gorgeous white fur, sport model coat, but, of course, the warm weather made its appearance impossible. Another model of pink lace, very long and very low as to decolletege in the back, was the kind of a dress that makes your escort look at you with his soul in his eyes and his heart in his mouth.

Enola Rogers flashed by in an open roadster the other day and we glimpsed a smart looking blue ensemble with perky bow of plaid taffeta at her throat and blue felt hat at a jaunty angle. She is such a good looking person and so delightfully genuine.

We went to call on last week's beautiful bride, Mrs. Amos Smelser (Frances Cole) and found her blonde beauty showing off to splendid advantage in a long, slim gown of black crepe.

Isn't it perfectly amazing the way romances are ticking off this fall? Watch out, boys. You had better sleep with one eye open and be ready to duck or you will be the next to get pricked with one of Danny Cupid's poisoned darts!

The tom-toms just rumbled a message, from the ranks of society, that two of their members will synchronize to Lohengrin's popular melody very soon now. And what do you think of Earl Stovall and Eileen Hemler walking around in our midst and pretending platonic friendship when they had been secretly wed for a month? There is still another young couple so far past the starting line that they just sit around and hold hands and gaze into each other's eyes.

Flash! What popular pair, according to Dame Rumor, have been married for a month or more but have not yet made a public announcement?

Ida and Patricia Kaplan pulled into town last week from the east, where they spent six blissful weeks dashing up and down the Atlantic seaboard. Ida, with her gift of eloquence, told us of the picturesque seacoast town of Gloucester, Mass., where they watched the white sails on the boundless blue and the fishermen returning home with their harvest of clams and variety of fish sufficient to tempt the most exacting epicurean. In Salem, they spent hours viewing the historic spots, and then on to other places of historic interest up and down the Atlantic coast. Contact with that invigorating salt air has made them both look perfectly splendid.

The snowy nappery will be spread in many a Monroe home when Dr. Carl Stroud brings home his wife for a visit. He will marry Fay King of Shreveport next month at the Little Church Around the Corner in New York. His parents and India Stubbs, Miss King's aunt, will be among those present from Monroe. Certainly is a case of the country boy making good in the big city. Carl is now associated with one of New York's largest hospitals.

Alladin, the smart little cruiser, bobs up and down in the river disconsolately since its owner, Robert Faulk, went off to Cornell university. His father, Clarence Faulk, has agreed, however, to keep the colors flying and the brass polished during his absence. Cornell was the school of Robert's choice, but with the advent of the boat he wishes that knowledge could be crammed closer to home. It certainly is interesting, just to sit on the shore and view Monroe's waterfront. Boats of ancient vintage flaunt their colors just as bravely as the shining new boats. The broad comfortable houseboats look so sure of themselves with their air of hospitality. The speed boats look restless and eager for action. Among the newest and fastest is the one purchased by M. C. McDonald. The Milling Bernstein's houseboat is the very essence of comfort. Scarcely a night passes that it is not seen drifting along with the occupants leaving behind them all cares that infest the day.

Clothes Problem Serious

When social life begins to hum with plans for the winter season, when school starts and clubs become active, it is usually a certain sign of fall, but this year it is difficult to be convinced that it is September and not June, with its the ever-increasing number of weddings.

October is the deadline for vacations and all womenhood must be at work on the problems of legislation, law enforcement, community interests and the many complexities of the day which go to make up their daily life.

The thought of dress has now become a serious problem with the warm days of September giving place any moment now to the chill winds of October. Many women have hung on to the last shreds of summer apparel, sacrificing smartness for comfort but the day of the printed crepe, filmy chiffon and dotted swiss is now definitely over.

Inspired by old Italians canvass, by glowing oil paintings of court beauties and dandies, in whose costumes rich fabrics combined with colors that match flaming sunsets in splendor, the newest fall fashions are gorgeous collections to inspect. Gowns display strange, rich colors. Cinnamon browns, mustard golds, deep green-bronzes, and royal purples in every fabulously lovely shade from amethyst to plum are just a few tones that will keep you using your best adjectives of appreciation.

It's the royal season of color. Bold, blazing creations make a living pageant or tapestry out of any social event that draws huge crowds of fashionably dressed women. Changeable two-toned velvets that flow from a draped decolletage to long flowing skirtline, opulent brocades that shimmer under lights, swishing taffetas—those that are stiff enough to stand alone—and the suave new favorites, soft, silken things that merely whisper when you move.

Or you may choose sleek, clinging, rich satins to use for the intricately draped costumes, or novelty silks with twinkling threads of cellophane or silver and gold metal threads shining in vertical or horizontal lines, depending upon the way your gown is cut and draped.

There's a noncrushable new velvet, fully guaranteed against any abuse; velvet that stays smooth and unwrinkled no matter how long you wear it. The velvets of old fashioned glory, velvets combined with metal, velvet brocades, velvets with dots, bumps, and small self patterns; velvets in two colors, velvet using three and even four contrasting or harmonizing colors to achieve an elegance never obtainable since the clothes-loving court ladies during the regime of the French Louis.

Silks also become doubly decorative. They have designs in color contrast, metallic stripes, checked patterns, or embroidered dots. Silk and velvet combines are lovelier than ever. One may find floral patterns of velvet against silk, stripes of velvet, dots and small geometric designs combined with either contrasting colored silk or self-colored silk backgrounds.

Monroe shops are filled with sumptuous creations using all these fall of '35 fabrics . . . afternoon costumes comprising a dress and a matching jacket; dinner gowns consisting of long, form revealing gown with extremely low cut necklines and a separate jacket that transforms this low gown into a costume for dinner. Satin rich velvets and gleaming, glittering costumes of colorful brocade make these breath-taking gowns.

Brown matelasse of an interesting pattern fashions this stunning fall dress. Matching gold buckles gleam at throat and waist. The sleeves are pointed and full. The brown velvet halo cap has a flirtatious net veil. The outfit is completed with brown kidskin shoes, smartly latticed over the toes.

Miss Eileen Hemler, Earl Stovall Married

Announcement of Wedding Solemnized August Twenty-Fourth In Marksville Is Made; Couple To Reside In Monroe

In the spotlight today is Miss Eileen Hemler and Mr. Earl F. Stovall, who are making public their marriage, solemnized in Marksville, La., on the twenty-fourth of August.

The announcement comes as a complete surprise to family and friends, all of whom are now extending their congratulations and sincere well wishes.

The bride, lovely daughter of Dr. and Mrs. L. R. Hemler, is a senior at L. P. I., Ruston, and will continue her studies through the winter. She is a member of Kappa Delta sorority.

Mr. Stovall, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Stovall of this city, attended the University of Oklahoma and Louisiana State university at Baton Rouge. He is president of the Arrow Drilling corporation.

Mr. and Mrs. Stovall, popular members of the younger set, will make their home for the time being with Mr. Stovall's parents on Rochelle avenue.

Robert-Barbero

Of interest to a wide circle of friends is the announcement of the marriage of Miss Margaret Barbero and Mr. Omer John Robert, Jr., September the fifteenth, at the Church of the Immaculate Conception, Lake Charles, at 11 o'clock in the morning.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, Mr. O. C. Barbero of Alto, wore a beautiful model of rust colored chiffon velvet with all accessories of the same shade. A corsage of talisman roses and valley liles was worn.

During the ceremony Schubert's "Ave Maria" was beautifully rendered by Mr. Francis Leveque, accompanied on the organ by Miss Lucille Smithers. Mendelssohn's wedding march was used for the recessional.

The bride is a graduate of St. Matthew's Parochial school, this city, and for the past two years has been in the employ of the Southern Bell Telephone company in Lake Charles.

Mr. Robert was graduated from the St. Joseph Commercial institute of Donaldsonville. He is manager of the Capitol store in Lake Charles.

Engagement Announced

Engaging the interest of society in this section of the state today is the announcement of the engagement and approaching marriage of Miss Lola Fayette King, beautiful young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Waldman King of Shreveport, and Dr. Carl White Stroud of New York City, son of Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Stroud of this city.

The wedding will take place in New York on the twenty-sixth of October at the Little Church Around the Corner. Mr. and Mrs. Stroud and Mrs. Guyton Palmer Stubbs of this city, aunt of Miss King, will attend the wedding.

Miss King, the granddaughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Fayette Johnson Alcocke of Shreveport and Judge and Mrs. William Woodson King of San Antonio, Texas, attended Randolph Macon college and received her bachelor of arts degree from Vassar. Miss King is now in her third year at Cornell university medical college, New York City. She is a member of Tri Delta sorority.

Dr. Stroud, born and reared in this city and a great favorite in younger social circles, is a grandson of Dr. and Mrs. A. D. Stroud of Henderson, Texas, and Mr. and Mrs. Walter S. White of Oak Ridge, La. He obtained his bachelor of science and medical degree from Tulane university. He served his internship at Union Memorial hospital in Baltimore and New York hospital. At the present time he is assistant resident physician at Doctors' hospital in New York City. Dr. Stroud is a member of Sigma Alpha Epsilon and Phi Chi medical fraternity.

Miss Wossman Speaks

Miss Julia Wossman, principal of Barkdull Faulk school, who spent her summer vacation at the state normal, deep in the study of methods and plans of supervision for the improvement of education in the state of Louisiana, had the following to say when she addressed the city school teachers at a reception planned in honor of Miss Wossman and Miss Myrtle Rodgers at the Sherrouse school on the thirteenth of September:

"One hundred twenty-eight supervisors, principals, and teachers met at the state normal college during the past summer to study methods and plans of supervision for the improvement of education in the state of Louisiana, a project conceded by visiting educators from other states to be an undertaking that held the most far-reaching possibilities for school betterment of anything being done in the country today.

"In the initial session of the state workers, Superintendent Harris made an address in which he stated that the purpose of the school of training was to enable supervisors and principals to give more effective aid to teachers in their work of training and developing the children of Louisiana for a finer type of citizenship.

"The program of the day's work follows: An hour's observation of classroom teaching followed by another hour's discussion of the lesson observed; intermission and an hour's lecture followed by an open forum devoted to educational matters taken up in the lecture; two hours in the afternoon given to the answering of 420 questions on supervision were scheduled differently after the first week, the questions being divided among committees who made written reports on them from time to time, some of which were given in open meetings, others mimeographed and distributed to the group.

"The personnel of the state educational staff responsible for the carrying out of the plan comprised men and women from the state department of education, supervisors of experience in the state, state normal college instructors, and principal and teachers of the normal demonstration school. A. M. Hopper, head of elementary education in the state, was the person on whom responsibility rested most heavily. Mr. Hopper was a fine example of the kind of helpfulness the supervisors were being trained for in his willingness to give advice to all in solving the problems of their parish or individual schools. His open-minded method of entering into discussions of curriculum-making and teaching practices gave assurance of a sympathetic attitude toward honest effort in educational work, even though he might disapprove of the method in use. J. W. Brouillette, who is a recent acquisition to the elementary department at Baton Rouge, gave able assistance to Mr. Hopper, and added much to the interest and success of the undertaking. Dr. M. S. Robertson, also of the department of elementary education at Baton Rouge, was a frequent and welcome visitor. Dr. Irving Foote came as representative of the state university and checked the work being done for credit toward a master's degree. Jess Hair, newly-elected supervisor of health and physical education, spent two days with the group getting acquainted with them and also getting them acquainted with his plans for a better, more inclusive program of physicol training and health than the schools of the state have had in the past. E. B. Robert, principal of the state normal demonstration school, was official host.

"Educational discussions for the instruction of the group were made quite practical, since the object of the school was to help the attendants to be more valuable in their work in the schools of their communities. Some of the discussions of special interest were: Changes in the standards used by the teachers in their classrooms, some changes being made; lengthening of the school day, which was decided against; changes in the supervisors' checking list, a few changes made; whether to require teachers to submit their lesson plans to supervisor or principal, decided against; and many other discussions.

"One day was given to music which is to be taught as a regular subject in the schools of the state.

"The lasting impression carried home from the six weeks of work in the school for supervisors was that there is a definite planning being carried on by the state department of education in Louisiana to meet the challenge of a changed social condition. The program for leisure time education includes music—love for it and self-expression in it; physical education—games and sports that will carry over into adult life, school-wide participation in them, hobbies; art—much drawing and painting, its use in connection with school subjects. In the regular school course, the plan calls for enrichment of the study and teaching process by the inclusion of much supplementary reading matter, visual aids, local materials to be used for the purpose of integroting school with daily living, and even folk-dancing and dramatics.

"Elementary education has these two generally recognized objectives: mastery of the tools and skills of learning; training in the correct social attitudes and habits. The state of Louisiana has made an outstanding success in the accomplishment of the first of these objectives in which the major efforts of the state department of elementary education have been centered. In the plans for attaining the second objective, there is the recognition that richness of experience and the living of the 'good life' by the child in school will result in the happy, efficient, well-rounded man or woman, the citizen who will build toward a finer social order."

P.-T. A. Meeting Held

The initial meeting for the new year of the Sherrouse P.-T. A. of the Louisiana Congress of Parents and Teachers was held Wednesday afternoon, with eight new members present.

The nursery under the direction of Mrs. J. P. McCarthy, assisted by Joyce Siegle and Evelyn Aden, sixth grade pupils, evidently played an important part in bringing the large number of members out. There was a splendid attendance.

During the business session, Mrs. J. C. Calhoun was appointed study group chairman. It was decided to ask that a traffic officer be placed at the corner of Sherrouse avenue and DeSiard street during opening and closing school hours.

Mrs. Linquist, program chairman, gave an interesting talk on the difference in schools of today and those of 50 years ago. She pointed out that education now is really administered as a "sugar-coated pill" compared with the rather "bitter" one of former days.

During the social hour, each member present was introduced to the group. Delicious cake was served with drinks, donated by a local bottling works.

To Stress Music

The importance of music in the lives of children is being stressed by the state department of education, according to an announcement made at the meeting last week of the Barkdull Faulk Parent-Teacher association. Miss Clara Hall, local supervisor of music in the city schools, will be given valuable assistance this year by the state supervisor of music, who will visit the schools from time to time. In addition, a band supervisor has been appointed for both elementary and high school children and the members of the P.-T. A. are working in harmony with the program.

A radio was recently purchased for the Barkdull Faulk school for the purpose of presenting Walter Damrosch's Friday morning programs of music.

Mrs. B. S. McRaney, president of the Barkdull Faulk P.-T. A., presided during the meeting. Reports from the various committees and officers were heard.

Mrs. C. W. Williams read the message of the national president, Mrs. B. F. Langworthy, at this time. Mrs. Langworthy, in her message, urges parents to make a study of the public, educational system, its history, its financial support and its modernization curriculum to fit the modern social structure with its vast changes in industry, agriculture, business and profession. Parents are urged to join the study clubs and to cooperate in every way possible with the P.-T. A.

A feature of the meeting was the beautiful vocal number contributed by Mrs. Louise Smelser McComb, accompanied by Mrs. Julius Kugler, pianist.

The president appointed the following committees:

Program—Mrs. L. E. Howell, chairman, Mrs. Julius Kugler, Mrs. C. L. Couch.

Membership—Mrs. William Whitfield, chairman, Mrs. J. B. Evans.

By Eve Bradford

Summer's fragrant reign is over. White mists draw their chilly veil and green monotony gives way to autumn's robust riot of color. The wind is soft and low and wafts to us the odor of dead leaves that whirl in little eddies around our feet. A filmy mist lies like a silver mantle over the river, where pleasure craft pass up and down, carrying happy families re-united after their summer vacations. The spider lillies, first harbinger of autumn, blaze through the misty air like a conflagration.

Glorious indeed is the clump of lilies encircling the old trees in the gardens of the Benjamin Dawkins' home. Most beautiful of all, however, are the lilies that spread a flaming carpet over the ground at the T. C. Rowland country home. Drive out there today, by all means, and see for yourself what autumn has done for us in the way of gorgeous coloring. Driving along this quiet countryside, where wood smoke rises blue and thin, your spirits will rise. The old uneasiness that autumn wakes will vanish completely and you will revel in the season devoid of heat and haste.

Although nature is clothing the world in autumnal garb, members of society continue to be comfortable in their summer clothes. However, some of the smartest clothes we have seen in many a day are noted here and there, where society meets over the bridge tables.

True Hudson was wearing a perfectly divine model the other afternoon. It was fashioned of heavy beige crepe with clip and wristlets of bright green beads.

Marguerite Hill, a picture of sartorial loveliness, was wearing some good-looking clothes during her visit in the city last week. A soft white wool suit with a bewitching bow under the chin and a white felt hat that shaded her face was most becoming. In her wardrobe trunk she had a gorgeous white fur, sport model coat, but, of course, the warm weather made its appearance impossible. Another model of pink lace, very long and very low as to decolletege in the back, was the kind of a dress that makes your escort look at you with his soul in his eyes and his heart in his mouth.

Enola Rogers flashed by in an open roadster the other day and we glimpsed a smart looking blue ensemble with perky bow of plaid taffeta at her throat and blue felt hat at a jaunty angle. She is such a good looking person and so delightfully genuine.

We went to call on last week's beautiful bride, Mrs. Amos Smelser (Frances Cole) and found her blonde beauty showing off to splendid advantage in a long, slim gown of black crepe.

Isn't it perfectly amazing the way romances are ticking off this fall? Watch out, boys. You had better sleep with one eye open and be ready to duck or you will be the next to get pricked with one of Danny Cupid's poisoned darts!

The tom-toms just rumbled a message, from the ranks of society, that two of their members will synchronize to Lohengrin's popular melody very soon now. And what do you think of Earl Stovall and Eileen Hemler walking around in our midst and pretending platonic friendship when they had been secretly wed for a month? There is still another young couple so far past the starting line that they just sit around and hold hands and gaze into each other's eyes.

Flash! What popular pair, according to Dame Rumor, have been married for a month or more but have not yet made a public announcement?

Ida and Patricia Kaplan pulled into town last week from the east, where they spent six blissful weeks dashing up and down the Atlantic seaboard. Ida, with her gift of eloquence, told us of the picturesque seacoast town of Gloucester, Mass., where they watched the white sails on the boundless blue and the fishermen returning home with their harvest of clams and variety of fish sufficient to tempt the most exacting epicurean. In Salem, they spent hours viewing the historic spots, and then on to other places of historic interest up and down the Atlantic coast. Contact with that invigorating salt air has made them both look perfectly splendid.

The snowy nappery will be spread in many a Monroe home when Dr. Carl Stroud brings home his wife for a visit. He will marry Fay King of Shreveport next month at the Little Church Around the Corner in New York. His parents and India Stubbs, Miss King's aunt, will be among those present from Monroe. Certainly is a case of the country boy making good in the big city. Carl is now associated with one of New York's largest hospitals.

Alladin, the smart little cruiser, bobs up and down in the river disconsolately since its owner, Robert Faulk, went off to Cornell university. His father, Clarence Faulk, has agreed, however, to keep the colors flying and the brass polished during his absence. Cornell was the school of Robert's choice, but with the advent of the boat he wishes that knowledge could be crammed closer to home. It certainly is interesting, just to sit on the shore and view Monroe's waterfront. Boats of ancient vintage flaunt their colors just as bravely as the shining new boats. The broad comfortable houseboats look so sure of themselves with their air of hospitality. The speed boats look restless and eager for action. Among the newest and fastest is the one purchased by M. C. McDonald. The Milling Bernstein's houseboat is the very essence of comfort. Scarcely a night passes that it is not seen drifting along with the occupants leaving behind them all cares that infest the day.

Clothes Problem Serious

When social life begins to hum with plans for the winter season, when school starts and clubs become active, it is usually a certain sign of fall, but this year it is difficult to be convinced that it is September and not June, with its the ever-increasing number of weddings.

October is the deadline for vacations and all womenhood must be at work on the problems of legislation, law enforcement, community interests and the many complexities of the day which go to make up their daily life.

The thought of dress has now become a serious problem with the warm days of September giving place any moment now to the chill winds of October. Many women have hung on to the last shreds of summer apparel, sacrificing smartness for comfort but the day of the printed crepe, filmy chiffon and dotted swiss is now definitely over.

Inspired by old Italians canvass, by glowing oil paintings of court beauties and dandies, in whose costumes rich fabrics combined with colors that match flaming sunsets in splendor, the newest fall fashions are gorgeous collections to inspect. Gowns display strange, rich colors. Cinnamon browns, mustard golds, deep green-bronzes, and royal purples in every fabulously lovely shade from amethyst to plum are just a few tones that will keep you using your best adjectives of appreciation.

It's the royal season of color. Bold, blazing creations make a living pageant or tapestry out of any social event that draws huge crowds of fashionably dressed women. Changeable two-toned velvets that flow from a draped decolletage to long flowing skirtline, opulent brocades that shimmer under lights, swishing taffetas—those that are stiff enough to stand alone—and the suave new favorites, soft, silken things that merely whisper when you move.

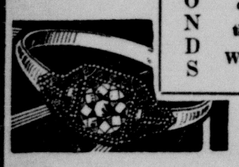

Or you may choose sleek, clinging, rich satins to use for the intricately draped costumes, or novelty silks with twinkling threads of cellophane or silver and gold metal threads shining in vertical or horizontal lines, depending upon the way your gown is cut and draped.

There's a noncrushable new velvet, fully guaranteed against any abuse; velvet that stays smooth and unwrinkled no matter how long you wear it. The velvets of old fashioned glory, velvets combined with metal, velvet brocades, velvets with dots, bumps, and small self patterns; velvets in two colors, velvet using three and even four contrasting or harmonizing colors to achieve an elegance never obtainable since the clothes-loving court ladies during the regime of the French Louis.

Silks also become doubly decorative. They have designs in color contrast, metallic stripes, checked patterns, or embroidered dots. Silk and velvet combines are lovelier than ever. One may find floral patterns of velvet against silk, stripes of velvet, dots and small geometric designs combined with either contrasting colored silk or self-colored silk backgrounds.

Monroe shops are filled with sumptuous creations using all these fall of '35 fabrics . . . afternoon costumes comprising a dress and a matching jacket; dinner gowns consisting of long, form revealing gown with extremely low cut necklines and a separate jacket that transforms this low gown into a costume for dinner. Satin rich velvets and gleaming, glittering costumes of colorful brocade make these breath-taking gowns.

Miss Eileen Hemler, Earl Stovall Married

Announcement of Wedding Solemnized August Twenty-Fourth In Marksville Is Made; Couple To Reside In Monroe

In the spotlight today is Miss Eileen Hemler and Mr. Earl F. Stovall, who are making public their marriage, solemnized in Marksville, La., on the twenty-fourth of August.

The announcement comes as a complete surprise to family and friends, all of whom are now extending their congratulations and sincere well wishes.

The bride, lovely daughter of Dr. and Mrs. L. R. Hemler, is a senior at L. P. I., Ruston, and will continue her studies through the winter. She is a member of Kappa Delta sorority.

Mr. Stovall, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Stovall of this city, attended the University of Oklahoma and Louisiana State university at Baton Rouge. He is president of the Arrow Drilling corporation.

Mr. and Mrs. Stovall, popular members of the younger set, will make their home for the time being with Mr. Stovall's parents on Rochelle avenue.

Robert-Barbero

Of interest to a wide circle of friends is the announcement of the marriage of Miss Margaret Barbero and Mr. Omer John Robert, Jr., September the fifteenth, at the Church of the Immaculate Conception, Lake Charles, at 11 o'clock in the morning.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, Mr. O. C. Barbero of Alto, wore a beautiful model of rust colored chiffon velvet with all accessories of the same shade. A corsage of talisman roses and valley liles was worn.

During the ceremony Schubert's "Ave Maria" was beautifully rendered by Mr. Francis Leveque, accompanied on the organ by Miss Lucille Smithers. Mendelssohn's wedding march was used for the recessional.

The bride is a graduate of St. Matthew's Parochial school, this city, and for the past two years has been in the employ of the Southern Bell Telephone company in Lake Charles.

Mr. Robert was graduated from the St. Joseph Commercial institute of Donaldsonville. He is manager of the Capitol store in Lake Charles.

Engagement Announced

Engaging the interest of society in this section of the state today is the announcement of the engagement and approaching marriage of Miss Lola Fayette King, beautiful young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Waldman King of Shreveport, and Dr. Carl White Stroud of New York City, son of Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Stroud of this city.

The wedding will take place in New York on the twenty-sixth of October at the Little Church Around the Corner. Mr. and Mrs. Stroud and Mrs. Guyton Palmer Stubbs of this city, aunt of Miss King, will attend the wedding.

Miss King, the granddaughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Fayette Johnson Alcocke of Shreveport and Judge and Mrs. William Woodson King of San Antonio, Texas, attended Randolph Macon college and received her bachelor of arts degree from Vassar. Miss King is now in her third year at Cornell university medical college, New York City. She is a member of Tri Delta sorority.

Dr. Stroud, born and reared in this city and a great favorite in younger social circles, is a grandson of Dr. and Mrs. A. D. Stroud of Henderson, Texas, and Mr. and Mrs. Walter S. White of Oak Ridge, La. He obtained his bachelor of science and medical degree from Tulane university. He served his internship at Union Memorial hospital in Baltimore and New York hospital. At the present time he is assistant resident physician at Doctors' hospital in New York City. Dr. Stroud is a member of Sigma Alpha Epsilon and Phi Chi medical fraternity.

Miss Wossman Speaks

Miss Julia Wossman, principal of Barkdull Faulk school, who spent her summer vacation at the state normal, deep in the study of methods and plans of supervision for the improvement of education in the state of Louisiana, had the following to say when she addressed the city school teachers at a reception planned in honor of Miss Wossman and Miss Myrtle Rodgers at the Sherrouse school on the thirteenth of September:

"One hundred twenty-eight supervisors, principals, and teachers met at the state normal college during the past summer to study methods and plans of supervision for the improvement of education in the state of Louisiana, a project conceded by visiting educators from other states to be an undertaking that held the most far-reaching possibilities for school betterment of anything being done in the country today.

"In the initial session of the state workers, Superintendent Harris made an address in which he stated that the purpose of the school of training was to enable supervisors and principals to give more effective aid to teachers in their work of training and developing the children of Louisiana for a finer type of citizenship.

"The program of the day's work follows: An hour's observation of classroom teaching followed by another hour's discussion of the lesson observed; intermission and an hour's lecture followed by an open forum devoted to educational matters taken up in the lecture; two hours in the afternoon given to the answering of 420 questions on supervision were scheduled differently after the first week, the questions being divided among committees who made written reports on them from time to time, some of which were given in open meetings, others mimeographed and distributed to the group.

"The personnel of the state educational staff responsible for the carrying out of the plan comprised men and women from the state department of education, supervisors of experience in the state, state normal college instructors, and principal and teachers of the normal demonstration school. A. M. Hopper, head of elementary education in the state, was the person on whom responsibility rested most heavily. Mr. Hopper was a fine example of the kind of helpfulness the supervisors were being trained for in his willingness to give advice to all in solving the problems of their parish or individual schools. His open-minded method of entering into discussions of curriculum-making and teaching practices gave assurance of a sympathetic attitude toward honest effort in educational work, even though he might disapprove of the method in use. J. W. Brouillette, who is a recent acquisition to the elementary department at Baton Rouge, gave able assistance to Mr. Hopper, and added much to the interest and success of the undertaking. Dr. M. S. Robertson, also of the department of elementary education at Baton Rouge, was a frequent and welcome visitor. Dr. Irving Foote came as representative of the state university and checked the work being done for credit toward a master's degree. Jess Hair, newly-elected supervisor of health and physical education, spent two days with the group getting acquainted with them and also getting them acquainted with his plans for a better, more inclusive program of physicol training and health than the schools of the state have had in the past. E. B. Robert, principal of the state normal demonstration school, was official host.

"Educational discussions for the instruction of the group were made quite practical, since the object of the school was to help the attendants to be more valuable in their work in the schools of their communities. Some of the discussions of special interest were: Changes in the standards used by the teachers in their classrooms, some changes being made; lengthening of the school day, which was decided against; changes in the supervisors' checking list, a few changes made; whether to require teachers to submit their lesson plans to supervisor or principal, decided against; and many other discussions.

"One day was given to music which is to be taught as a regular subject in the schools of the state.

"The lasting impression carried home from the six weeks of work in the school for supervisors was that there is a definite planning being carried on by the state department of education in Louisiana to meet the challenge of a changed social condition. The program for leisure time education includes music—love for it and self-expression in it; physical education—games and sports that will carry over into adult life, school-wide participation in them, hobbies; art—much drawing and painting, its use in connection with school subjects. In the regular school course, the plan calls for enrichment of the study and teaching process by the inclusion of much supplementary reading matter, visual aids, local materials to be used for the purpose of integroting school with daily living, and even folk-dancing and dramatics.

"Elementary education has these two generally recognized objectives: mastery of the tools and skills of learning; training in the correct social attitudes and habits. The state of Louisiana has made an outstanding success in the accomplishment of the first of these objectives in which the major efforts of the state department of elementary education have been centered. In the plans for attaining the second objective, there is the recognition that richness of experience and the living of the 'good life' by the child in school will result in the happy, efficient, well-rounded man or woman, the citizen who will build toward a finer social order."

P.-T. A. Meeting Held

The initial meeting for the new year of the Sherrouse P.-T. A. of the Louisiana Congress of Parents and Teachers was held Wednesday afternoon, with eight new members present.

The nursery under the direction of Mrs. J. P. McCarthy, assisted by Joyce Siegle and Evelyn Aden, sixth grade pupils, evidently played an important part in bringing the large number of members out. There was a splendid attendance.

During the business session, Mrs. J. C. Calhoun was appointed study group chairman. It was decided to ask that a traffic officer be placed at the corner of Sherrouse avenue and DeSiard street during opening and closing school hours.

Mrs. Linquist, program chairman, gave an interesting talk on the difference in schools of today and those of 50 years ago. She pointed out that education now is really administered as a "sugar-coated pill" compared with the rather "bitter" one of former days.

During the social hour, each member present was introduced to the group. Delicious cake was served with drinks, donated by a local bottling works.

To Stress Music

The importance of music in the lives of children is being stressed by the state department of education, according to an announcement made at the meeting last week of the Barkdull Faulk Parent-Teacher association. Miss Clara Hall, local supervisor of music in the city schools, will be given valuable assistance this year by the state supervisor of music, who will visit the schools from time to time. In addition, a band supervisor has been appointed for both elementary and high school children and the members of the P.-T. A. are working in harmony with the program.

A radio was recently purchased for the Barkdull Faulk school for the purpose of presenting Walter Damrosch's Friday morning programs of music.

Mrs. B. S. McRaney, president of the Barkdull Faulk P.-T. A., presided during the meeting. Reports from the various committees and officers were heard.

Mrs. C. W. Williams read the message of the national president, Mrs. B. F. Langworthy, at this time. Mrs. Langworthy, in her message, urges parents to make a study of the public, educational system, its history, its financial support and its modernization curriculum to fit the modern social structure with its vast changes in industry, agriculture, business and profession. Parents are urged to join the study clubs and to cooperate in every way possible with the P.-T. A.

A feature of the meeting was the beautiful vocal number contributed by Mrs. Louise Smelser McComb, accompanied by Mrs. Julius Kugler, pianist.

The president appointed the following committees:

Program—Mrs. L. E. Howell, chairman, Mrs. Julius Kugler, Mrs. C. L. Couch.

Structure Was Once Rendezvous Of Youth

Interesting Comments About Local Residents Are Found In Edition Of Monroe News Of June 26, 1897

Considerable water has passed under the bridge since the days when Monroe was a sleepy little southern town of old streets and long shadows, sweet-smelling magnolia and crape myrtle trees, surrounded by rich plantation lands along the sloping banks of the river.

Thoughts of old Monroe come to mind, when, for the first time since 1865, and doors of the building on the southwest corner of Jackson and DeSiard streets have been closed to the public. When the old bricks came tumbling down, recently, in the process of renovating the structure, a wealth of memories were stirred, memories of other days when the beaux and belles of Monroe drove along DeSiard street in high tally hos and stopped, in cloud of dust, at the Palace of Sweets for a sasaparilla ice cream soda, the favorite drink back in the old days.

The building, known to this generation as the Royal confectionery, is one of the oldest along DeSiard street. Across the worn threshold stepped the youth of old Monroe, now our most substantial citizens. It was the favorite rendezvous for the young blades who waited patiently of a Sunday afternoon that they might glimpse a "certain party" out for a stroll in her fluffy organdy.

Many a fractious saddle horse, hitched to the worn posts in front of the Palace of Sweets, champed at the bit while the owner gazed into the bright eyes of a lovely maiden across the table in the rear of the shop. Many a romantic tale would be unfolded if those dim old walls could utter the hushed words spoken across those tables on a quiet afternoon.

An old land mark is being reconstructed to meet the needs of progress but memories, our most precious heritage, will linger on. Traffic may roar, but many there are who will always hear above the din of the city streets the sound of hoof beats and of carriages rolling over the cobblestones. The acrid smell of gasoline can never stifle, for some, the haunting fragrance of magnolia and yellow jasmine wafted from the old gardens just around the corner from the main street. The blaring radio and the honking of automobile horns will never quite obliterate from memory those soft words spoken in the gloaming, under the spreading branches of the live oaks and the shining magnolias. Commerce may roar, but the sweet music of the serenaders strolling in the moonlight along the flower scented streets will return when memory goes back to those dear, dead days of old.

Glancing, recently, over an edition of the Monroe Evening News, published June 26, 1897, we noticed a beautiful picture of Miss Corrine Steinau, who is now Mrs. Arnold Bernstein. The cut lines classified her as "One of the fairest of the fair. Her beauty of face and form are distinctly statesque in its faultless proportions, with complexion as perfect as the petals of a flawless lily."

The picture of another belle, Miss Mona Millsaps (Mrs. George Weaks), also graced the page. The writer described her as being "radiantly fair with dark eyes and that shade of auburn hair which has been immortalized by our most famous painters."

A picture of Miss Anna Lee (Mrs. H. R. Speed) also inspired the writer to tell of her "fair face lighted by the sweetes. of violet eyes and framed in sunny brown hair."

In this same edition of the Monroe Evening News, Mrs. O. C. Dawkins, Sr., wrote glowingly of "Our Heroic Dead." She said, "Let us tell our children of the deeds of fortitude, deeds of daring and lofty patriotism the silent sleepers exhibited for what they conceived was right and point them for patriotic guidance to the two great central figures of the war—two men free of guile—without reproach—Robert E. Lee and Jefferson Davis."

Several articles under the caption, "Local Buzzes," also caught our eye. For instnce: "Wht's the matter with every merchant and every family paying 25 cents a month for a sprinkling cart to keep down the dust?" And another: "Take down the courthouse fence, it will make good kindling wood." Paved streets back on these days was a dream now realized. It was suggested back in 1867 that the "streets be paved if you want to see our pretty feet go tripping down the street."

Always above the symphony of saw and hammer will be heard the low sweet prelude of that sweet song of old, when life was unhurried, friendships were lasting and the doors of every home were flung wide. The glories of old Monroe have been swept away; but even so, there's a wonderful inspiration, encouragement and joyousness in the sound of new homes rising and other construction on the way.

Every home built inspires the vision of some happy family living there, home life under lthe happiest kind of conditions.

There's another phase, the economic side. Every home that goes up here and is occupied adds importantly to the well-being, the prosperity and the substantial growth of the entire community.

About Fraternities

College at a country club!

Palatial mansions, continuous social events, dance dates, parties, formal costumes, sports clothes, sleek roadsters, mixed drinking, under-slung bulldogs, jeweled pins, college scandal, and university intrigue. This is the conception of college fraternities and sororities which the movies, the college novels and college stories in popular magazines have given us. And, unfortunately, some people believe them.

The Greek letter fraternity system has grown up with American education, and a number of fraternities are over or near the age of one hundred years, and several of the sororities are over or near seventy-five years of age. In these years the plan of the American fraternity has changed considerably; the fraternity of fifty years ago would scarcely recognize its organization of the present day.

Fred H. Turner, dean of men, University of Illinois, has the following to say in defence of fraternities and sororities:

"Some of the most common objections to Greek letter organizations have been repeated many times. They are undemocratic and out of harmony with the democratic spirit which is desired in the true educational institution. They tend to produce class distinctions, and the members are snobbish and look down on the nonfraternity, nonsorority, or independent students. They tend to destroy the individuality of the student and to recast him in the set mold of the particular organization.

"Furthermore, the critics have said that fraternities produce an undesirable type of leader, who is more interested in activities and college politics than in educational standards. They are said to be expensive, and the boy or girl with little money is automatically excluded. They are satisfied with mediocrity in scholarship. They go in for extravagant social programs, encourage too much social life, and overexpenditures for dress. They have been said to be hotbeds of immorality, with drinking, gambling, and general looseness prevailing. They have built expensive homes, far too luxurious for the average student.

"On the other hand, fraternities and sororities have been praised just as warmly as they have been criticized. The praise has come from members, from college and university officials, and from the knowing public.

"Expressed in simple terms, the Greek letter fraternity or sorority is a club made up of college students. Men join fraternities and girls affiliate with sororities. The individual organizations usually have residences which they call chapter houses. Members are chosen and invited to join the various organizations, and each one has its own ritual. Pledges or prospective members are initiated when this ritual is read to them, and they subscribe to its aims and objectives.

"The history of fraternities and sororities indicates that over the hundred years of their existence they have had a varied career. At the outset many colleges ruled against them. Then, as educators began to see the advantages in them, they were allowed to form chapters on various campi.

"Students who are entering colleges and universities in the fall of 1935 will be confronted with the problem 'Should I join a fraternity (or sorority)?' and if the answer is yes, 'Which one?' It is wise therefore to consider the criticisms which have arisen from time to time against Greek letter organizations, to consider the points for which they have been praised, and, finally, to consider the question in the light of present day situations."

By Adelaide Kerr

PARIS, Sept. 21.—(AP)—Capes get a "big hand" in winter fashion shows. Monks capes, mantles, Arabian capes; military, troubadour and fur capes go swinging through mirrored dressmaking salons each time the mannequins display the shows. They are favored for every hour of the day in designs varying from the simplest to the most lavishly regal.

Some designers cut them like long regal mantles swinging from the back and swept up over one shoulder in front or like swathed Arabian capes. Others display swinging knee length models trimmed with fur—black ones sometimes being lined with ermine and thrown over one shoulder.

Fur capes are the richest they have been in years. Full length evening capes are made of strips of silver fox or black lynx running from shoulder to hem. Knee length day capes are fashioned of mink, silver fox or dyed red fox, or dyed moleskin while any number of hip-length models appear in astrakhan, nutria or broadtail. Occasionally the fur capes for day wear are cut with broad shoulders and little fullness below so that they hang straight, though more often they have some fullness.

By day the capes appear for every thing from formal afternoon to sports wear. Broadcloth military capes which reach to the knees top street frocks and hiplength troubadour capes tying under one arm finish colored wool ensembles.

Brown, mulberry, dregs of wine and green costumes combine a frock and hiplength cape of the same color trimmed or lined with fur, and the black frock topped by a black cape trimmed in astrakhan is almost a classic.

Capes for the sports mode reach all lengths from hip to hem. The modern tweeds of rainbow, multi-colored or two toned weaves, plaids and checks are all used to fashion the models which generally accompany a plain colored dark skirt.

Interesting Comments About Local Residents Are Found In Edition Of Monroe News Of June 26, 1897

Considerable water has passed under the bridge since the days when Monroe was a sleepy little southern town of old streets and long shadows, sweet-smelling magnolia and crape myrtle trees, surrounded by rich plantation lands along the sloping banks of the river.

Thoughts of old Monroe come to mind, when, for the first time since 1865, and doors of the building on the southwest corner of Jackson and DeSiard streets have been closed to the public. When the old bricks came tumbling down, recently, in the process of renovating the structure, a wealth of memories were stirred, memories of other days when the beaux and belles of Monroe drove along DeSiard street in high tally hos and stopped, in cloud of dust, at the Palace of Sweets for a sasaparilla ice cream soda, the favorite drink back in the old days.

The building, known to this generation as the Royal confectionery, is one of the oldest along DeSiard street. Across the worn threshold stepped the youth of old Monroe, now our most substantial citizens. It was the favorite rendezvous for the young blades who waited patiently of a Sunday afternoon that they might glimpse a "certain party" out for a stroll in her fluffy organdy.

Many a fractious saddle horse, hitched to the worn posts in front of the Palace of Sweets, champed at the bit while the owner gazed into the bright eyes of a lovely maiden across the table in the rear of the shop. Many a romantic tale would be unfolded if those dim old walls could utter the hushed words spoken across those tables on a quiet afternoon.

An old land mark is being reconstructed to meet the needs of progress but memories, our most precious heritage, will linger on. Traffic may roar, but many there are who will always hear above the din of the city streets the sound of hoof beats and of carriages rolling over the cobblestones. The acrid smell of gasoline can never stifle, for some, the haunting fragrance of magnolia and yellow jasmine wafted from the old gardens just around the corner from the main street. The blaring radio and the honking of automobile horns will never quite obliterate from memory those soft words spoken in the gloaming, under the spreading branches of the live oaks and the shining magnolias. Commerce may roar, but the sweet music of the seranaders strolling in the moonlight along the flower scented streets will return when memory goes back to those dear, dead days of old.

Glancing, recently, over an edition of the Monroe Evening News, published June 26, 1897, we noticed a beautiful picture of Miss Corrine Steinau, who is now Mrs. Arnold Bernstein. The cut lines classified her as "One of the fairest of the fair. Her beauty of face and form are distinctly statesque in its faultless proportions, with complexion as perfect as the petals of a flawless lily."

The picture of another belle, Miss Mona Millsaps (Mrs. George Weaks), also graced the page. The writer described her as being "radiantly fair with dark eyes and that shade of auburn hair which has been immortalized by our most famous painters."

A picture of Miss Anna Lee (Mrs. H. R. Speed) also inspired the writer to tell of her "fair face lighted by the sweetes. of violet eyes and framed in sunny brown hair."

In this same edition of the Monroe Evening News, Mrs. O. C. Dawkins, Sr., wrote glowingly of "Our Heroic Dead." She said, "Let us tell our children of the deeds of fortitude, deeds of daring and lofty patriotism the silent sleepers exhibited for what they conceived was right and point them for patriotic guidance to the two great central figures of the war—two men free of guile—without reproach—Robert E. Lee and Jefferson Davis."

Several articles under the caption, "Local Buzzes," also caught our eye. For instnce; "Wht's the matter with every merchant and every family paying 25 cents a month for a sprinkling cart to keep down the dust?" And another: "Take down the courthouse fence, it will make good kindling wood." Paved streets back on these days was a dream now realized. It was suggested back in 1867 that the "streets be paved if you want to see our pretty feet go tripping down the street."

Always above the symphony of saw and hammer will be heard the low sweet prelude of that sweet song of old, when life was unhurried, friendships were lasting and the doors of every home were flung wide. The glories of old Monroe have been swept away; but even so, there's a wonderful inspiration, encouragement and joyousness in the sound of new homes rising and other construction on the way.

Every home built inspires the vision of some happy family living there, home life under lthe happiest kind of conditions.

There's another phase, the economic side. Every home that goes up here and is occupied adds importantly to the well-being, the prosperity and the substantial growth of the entire community.

About Fraternities

College at a country club!

Palatial mansions, continuous social events, dance dates, parties, formal costumes, sports clothes, sleek roadsters, mixed drinking, under-slung bulldogs, jeweled pins, college scandal, and university intrigue. This is the conception of college fraternities and sororities which the movies, the college novels and college stories in popular magazines have given us. And, unfortunately, some people believe them.

The Greek letter fraternity system has grown up with American education, and a number of fraternities are over or near the age of one hundred years, and several of the sororities are over or near seventy-five years of age. In these years the plan of the American fraternity has changed considerably; the fraternity of fifty years ago would scarcely recognize its organization of the present day.

Fred H. Turner, dean of men, University of Illinois, has the following to say in defence of fraternities and sororities:

"Some of the most common objections to Greek letter organizations have been repeated many times. They are undemocratic and out of harmony with the democratic spirit which is desired in the true educational institution. They tend to produce class distinctions, and the members are snobbish and look down on the nonfraternity, nonsorority, or independent students. They tend to destroy the individuality of the student and to recast him in the set mold of the particular organization.

"Furthermore, the critics have said that fraternities produce an undesirable type of leader, who is more interested in activities and college politics than in educational standards. They are said to be expensive, and the boy or girl with little money is automatically excluded. They are satisfied with mediocrity in scholarship. They go in for extravagant social programs, encourage too much social life, and overexpenditures for dress. They have been said to be hotbeds of immorality, with drinking, gambling, and general looseness prevailing. They have built expensive homes, far too luxurious for the average student.

"On the other hand, fraternities and sororities have been praised just as warmly as they have been criticized. The praise has come from members, from college and university officials, and from the knowing public.

"Expressed in simple terms, the Greek letter fraternity or sorority is a club made up of college students. Men join fraternities and girls affiliate with sororities. The individual organizations usually have residences which they call chapter houses. Members are chosen and invited to join the various organizations, and each one has its own ritual. Pledges or prospective members are initiated when this ritual is read to them, and they subscribe to its aims and objectives.

"The history of fraternities and sororities indicates that over the hundred years of their existence they have had a varied career. At the outset many colleges ruled against them. Then, as educators began to see the advantages in them, they were allowed to form chapters on various campi.

"Students who are entering colleges and universities in the fall of 1935 will be confronted with the problem 'Should I join a fraternity (or sorority)?' and if the answer is yes, 'Which one?' It is wise therefore to consider the criticisms which have arisen from time to time against Greek letter organizations, to consider the points for which they have been praised, and, finally, to consider the question in the light of present day situations."

By Adelaide Kerr

PARIS, Sept. 21.—(AP)—Capes get a "big hand" in winter fashion shows. Monks capes, mantles, Arabian capes; military, troubadour and fur capes go swinging through mirrored dressmaking salons each time the mannequins display the shows. They are favored for every hour of the day in designs varying from the simplest to the most lavishly regal.

Some designers cut them like long regal mantles swinging from the back and swept up over one shoulder in front or like swathed Arabian capes. Others display swinging knee length models trimmed with fur—black ones sometimes being lined with ermine and thrown over one shoulder.

Fur capes are the richest they have been in years. Full length evening capes are made of strips of silver fox or black lynx running from shoulder to hem. Knee length day capes are fashioned of mink, silver fox or dyed red fox, or dyed moleskin while any number of hip-length models appear in astrakhan, nutria or broadtail. Occasionally the fur capes for day wear are cut with broad shoulders and little fullness below so that they hang straight, though more often they have some fullness.

By day the capes appear for every thing from formal afternoon to sports wear. Broadcloth military capes which reach to the knees top street frocks and hiplength troubadour capes tying under one arm finish colored wool ensembles.

Brown, mulberry, dregs of wine and green costumes combine a frock and hiplength cape of the same color trimmed or lined with fur, and the black frock topped by a black cape trimmed in astrakhan is almost a classic.

Capes for the sports mode reach all lengths from hip to hem. The modern tweeds of rainbow, multi-colored or two toned weaves, plaids and checks are all used to fashion the models which generally accompany a plain colored dark skirt.

Monroe Ornithologist Speaks Interestingly About Birds

Mrs. George Lowery, Sr., expert hornithologist, and a friend of every bird that wings its way over Monroe, talked recently, in an interesting manner on the subject of "Birds." She said:

"With the summer months drawing to a close and the advent of fall only a short time away, the natural beauties around Monroe will again change. Most of us will be glad in a way. Just as in late winter we look forward with joyous anticipation for the coming of spring with its array of flowers and vivid greenery, most of us who love the out-of-doors are now awaiting the coming of autumn.

"Possibly we enjoy spring more than any other season, but the failure of anyone to be impressed with the beauties of fall rests in their inability to discern at least something worthwhile in everything pertaining to the realm of nature.

"Right now remarkable changes are taking place among the bird population of Monroe and its vicinity. Little do most people realize it, but each day and each night brings many new birds to our city trees and parks. Likewise many kinds are leaving us, not to return until next spring. Some will come here from the north, remain for a week or so, then pass on to warmer climates where they will spend the winter. what is all of this movement? You all have heard something about it, but I wonder just how many have been fully impressed by its magnitude, its wonder, and its mystery.

"Each time the season changes, the most unobservant of people notice that different birds inhabit their gardens, different birds are seen along the highways and in the swamps. During the past few months, the sight of such species as herons along the cypress swamps and lakes, and orioles, thrushes and tanagers in the garden and city trees are familiar to all. This brings me to my point. The next few days or maybe a week or so will see the disappearance of these birds and in their place will come other kinds altogether. They will be the hearty winter types such as sparrows, not the common English sparrow, but the beautiful white-throated sparrow and the slate-colored junco. And there will be the lively little kinglets, both the ruby-crowned and the golden-crowned, each of which are common in all of the shrubbery about our homes. With the kinglets will be innumerable chickadees, titmice, Carolina wrens, downy woodpeckers, etc. The outstanding feature about our winter birds is the manner in which they travel about in groups, sometimes made up of as many as a dozen species.

"The whole discussion leads to this point. Those of you who would like to add something to your homes and gardens during the cold winter months as well as add to your infinite personal enjoyment, can easily do so by feeding the birds during the months ahead. Try putting out food on any sort of improvised feeding table and see the results. You will be surprised. Maybe at first only an English sparrow will come, but soon there will be blue jays, cardinals, or "red birds," and finally the list will grow and you will be allowed a continuous source of joy and amusement.

"Feeding birds and thus attracting them to your yard is an excellent way to study them closely. Moreover, it affords an easy way to teach children about them. Unfortunate it is that more mothers do not endeavor to enlighen their children on the beauties of nature. A little effort on the part of a mother goes a long ways in instilling into the mind of a child an appreciation of wild creatures. The reason may be two-fold. It has been aptly said that a man who has a true conscientious appreciation for the out-of-doors, be he a fisherman, a huntsman or whatnot, he has no difficulty in getting along with his fellow man. The time to create that impression is when the child is young. Make one of your child's hobbies that of learning about birds and animals. It has a natural appeal. Boy and Girl Scouts and Camp Fire Girl organizations have made great strides aloong this line, but their contact with the boy or girl is not as close as that of a mother or father.

"Often I have been confronted with this situation by women of Monroe: 'I would like to learn something about birds but I don't know how to go about it.' Such an expression is with some foundation. Like most everything else it requires diligence and effort. But with every bit of effort comes a great satisfaction and enjoyment. The secret lies in two words 'Look and Listen.' Then with the aid of some field guide, Reed's 'Field Guide to the Land Birds East of the Rockies,' for example, which can be purchased at a nominal sum—you can proceed to identify with certainty the birds that you see. As in the case of practically every field of human endeavor, interest increases with the accumulation of knowledge on the subject. As each new bird is identified your enthusiasm mounts higher and higher.

"So, in conclusion, let me urge that each and everyone avail himself of the opportunities awaiting him by a study of our birds. You will find them if you look for them. Orioles sing in every section of the town in spring and summer, but few people hear them. You will see nothing in the way of a natural beauty unless you look for it. If every bird along the street is assumed to be a mockingbird or a sparrow, and every large bird that flies a turkey buzzard, then you will see only mockingbirds, sparrows, and buzzards, and possibly some 30 or 40 other species go unnoticed. Furthermore, you will be firmly convinced that people that tell of seeing white pelicans, black-throated green warblers, and painted buntings in the city are triflers with the truth. But right here at my home, virtually in the heart of town, I have observed over 75 different kinds of birds, some of which are so rare that they are listed as accidental anywhere in Louisiana. But nevertheless they have come to my yard, and they will come to yours if you encourage them.

"If you will but look and listen, every tree, every flower, every bird, in fact, every animate and inanimate thing, has a message for you and is wanting to give you a fuller enjoyment of life."

FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH
Corner St. John and Grammont Sts.
L. T. Hastings, Pastor

Miss Emma Leachman, field representative of the Home Mission board, will be our guest speaker Sunday morning. Miss Leachman is one of the very finest inspirational speakers in the field of missions. Her messages are always well received. Her coming will be a wonderful opportunity for all lovers of the cause of missions, without which none of us would know of Christ the Savior of the world. Make your plans to hear Miss Leachman Sunday morning. It is the hope of the pastor and church that the tabernacle auditorium will be well filled for this occasion. The pastor will bring an evangelistic message Sunday evening. Last Sunday marked the beginning of his eleventh year as pastor of this church. It was a glorious day for all who attended. There were some 15 additions and about the same number of professions of faith. Hear the pastor in his message Sunday evening. Hear the choir and join in the singing with the great congregation. Worship or preaching services 11:55 a.m. and 7:30 p.m. Sunday school 9:30 a.m. B. T. U. 6:10 p.m. Other services of the week according to regular schedule. Visitors and friends are always welcome to any and all the services of our church.

FIRST PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH
Ernest Holloway, Pastor

The officials and teachers of the Sabbath school will assemble Wednesday evening at 6:15. Supper will be served and after the meeting plans and suggestions will be considered dealing with rally day and our future. Our worship periods will be had. The topic of the morning is "Memory, Loyalty and Appreciation—Three Motives of Action." The evening subject is "Our Spiritual Status—Can We know We Are the Lord's?" The young people gather each Sabbath at 6:30 p.m. They are alive and making progress. The leaders are anxious that our youth enroll. The interest and cooperation of the parents are wanted. Shall we reach our goals on rally day, October 6, the Sabbath when all our people are expected to be in attendance? In the meantime, the men and women of the congregation are invited to enroll in the Bible class of their choice. The Rev. Frank Crossley Morgan, D.D., begins a week of Bible study September 29. He speaks twice daily, 10:00 a.m. and 7:30 p.m. He is well known. Hear him.

ASSEMBLY OF GOD
West Monroe
E. L. Tanner, Pastor

The pastor has returned from Dallas, Texas, where he spent a week attending the general council meeting of the Assemblies of God, and will be in charge of both services Sunday, at 11 a.m. and 7:30 p.m. We are very much pleased to note the interest manifested in all departments of the Sunday school and as the hot weather is passing we are expecting to see a still greater interest, especially in attendance. Sunday school meets at 9:45 a.m., D. O. McDaniel, superintendent. Morning worship at 11 o'clock. Christ ambassadors class meets at 6:45 p.m., A Gay, director. Evening service, 7:30 o'clock.

TRINITY LUTHERAN CHURCH
Woodmen Building
107 Jackson Street
H. H. Schaefer, Pastor

Services for fourteenth Sunday after trinity. All departments of the Sunday school and Bible class meet for instruction at 9:30 a.m. Friends and visitors are cordially welcome to gather with us at all of our services. Chief worship begins at 10:30 a.m. Topic of the pastor's sermon will be "The City that Voted Jesus Out." The Walther league meets Wednesday, 7:30 p.m. with Paul Arnold, 314 Sixth street.

CENTRAL BAPTIST CHURCH
3400 Lee Avenue
Roger M. Baxter, Pastor

Regular services will be held Sunday. Preaching at 10:50 a.m. and 7:45 p.m. Sunday school at 9:45 a.m. B. T. U. at 6:45 p.m. Come worship with us.

MANGHAM BAPTIST CHURCH
Roger M. Baxter, Pastor

It was a joy to the new pastor to be greeted by good crowds at both services last Sunday. There will be preaching at both morning and evening hours this Sunday. Sunday school at 10 a.m. Morning worship at 11 o'clock. B. T. U. at 6:45 p.m. Evening worship at 7:45 o'clock. An invitation is extended to every one to worship with us.

Prayer service Thursday night at 7:30 o'clock. An invitation is extended to everyone to attend this church.

FIRST METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH, SOUTH
Jackson At Wood Street
W. C. Scott, Pastor

"The Love of God" will be the theme of the pastor's sermon on Sunday morning at the 11 o'clock hour. Evening services are now held at 7:30 o'clock each Sunday. Mid-week prayer services are held on Wednesday at 7:30 p. m. in the annex. A series of discourses on "Prayer" are proving most interesting at the prayer services. Sunday is Missionary day in the church school. September 29 will be Promotion day, which marks the close of the church school year. Suitable programs will be held in every department; and at the church hour, there will be installation services for the teachers and officers of the church school for the coming year. The Woman's Missionary society will meet in circles on Tuesday at 3 p. m. The meeting places will be found in the daily papers and in the church bulletin. You are invited to worship with us at all services and join your group at the church school for an hour of Bible study and Christian fellowship. We are looking forward to a visit from our bishop, who will fill our pulpit October 5. The Young Woman's Methodist auxiliary will meet Tuesday at the home of Mrs. T. T. Pugh, 404 K street.

FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH
West Monroe
E. E. Huntsberry, Pastor

The subject chosen by the pastor for Sunday at the morning hour is "Tipping or Tithing." At the evening hour, he will speak on "The Blood of Jesus Christ." This is anniversary Sunday, commemorating the fifteenth anniversary of the church, and will be home-coming day for the church. The "Prove Me" plan is being accepted most graciously by the people of the church and Sunday will be Covenant day for our people. The W. M. S. will meet in circles Tuesday afternoon as follows: No. 1, with Mrs. C. I. Kirby; No. 2 with Mrs. Dierlamm; No. 3 with Mrs. Elkins; Number 4 with Mrs. O. W. Getchell; No. 5 with Mrs. Ro. GRACE CHURCH
Fourth and Glenmar Streets
Edward Farren Hayward, Rector

Services for the fourteenth Sunday after Trinity are as follows: The Holy Eucharist, 7:30 a. m.; church school, 9:30 a. m.; morning service and sermon, 11 a. m. To obtain God's promises, we must love His precepts; and faith and hope are essential to this love of duty or practical obedience. But the Epistle shows us that God's commandments are at war with our natural appetites and passions, so that nothing but grace can make us believe and hope in such wise as to obey. And in Sunday's gospel, we have another example of the despised class as showing forth true faith, and rebuking the conduct of the other nine members of the true church, who had not even common gratitude. Note that as they went they were cleansed; in obeying, they found healing. The sinner, instead of waiting to feel better, would at once begin to obey God and to observe His ordinances, the conversion and grace which he needs would be wrought in him simultaneously. The church is open daily from 7:30 a. m. until 5:30 p. m. Come in, rest and pray.

FIRST CHURCH OF CHRIST, SCIENTIST
Corner Auburn and N. Second St.

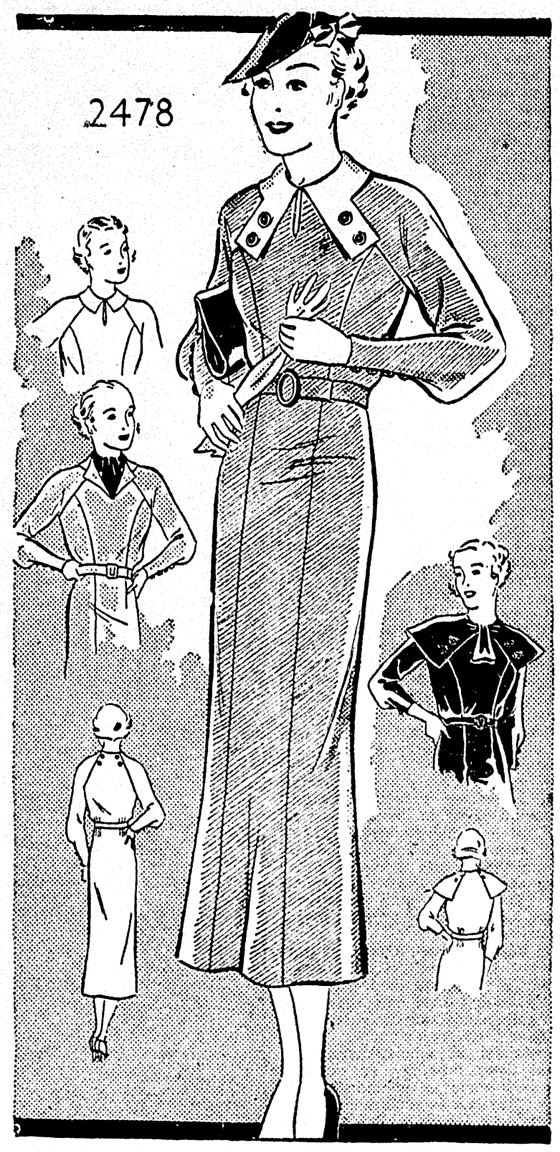

Sunday services 11 a.m., Sunday school 9:30 a.m. Wednesday evening testimony meetings 8 o'clock. Reading room, 1108 Ouachita National Bank building, open daily, except Sunday and holidays, 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. The public is welcome to all services and the use of the reading room. "Matter" is the subject of the lesson-sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, Sunday, September 22. Among the citations which comprise the lesson-sermon is the following from the Bible: "And therefore will the Lord wait, that he may be gracious unto you, and therefore will he be exalted, that he may have mercy upon you; for the Lord is a God of judgment; blessed are all they that wait for him." (Isa. 30). The lesson-sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy; "Nothing we can say or believe regarding matter is immortal, for matter is temporal and is therefore a mortal phenomenon, a human concept sometimes beautiful, always erroneous." (p. 277).

CLAIBORNE METHODIST CHURCH
Rev. H. W. Ledbetter, Pastor

A revival begins Sunday night and will continue through the fifth Sunday. The pastor will be assisted by visiting ministers. Special choir leaders will lead the choir. On the fifth Sunday we will celebrate the 15th anniversary of the organization of the church with a home-coming service. Dinner will be served on the church grounds. The public is invited to these services.

PATTERNS 2468 AND 2446

Don't they make a pretty picture, this smartly attired pair, whom we'll suppose to be mother and daughter? Each was her own dressmaker, each her own "Budget-eer." Daughter chose pattern 2468 for its young lines, sheer wool for fabric, topped with trig collar and bow of pique. Crepe with velvet or satin trim would be dressier, of course. Mother needed a frock for "very best" so chose pattern 2446, and satin because it drapes so softly on the heavier figure. A pointed surplice bodice follows jacket-like lines. Rich shirring tops the shoulders.

Pattern 2468 is available in sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, 20, 30, 32, 34, 36, 38 and 40. Size 16 takes 2 5-8 yards 54 inch fabric and 5-8 yard contrasting. Price 15c.

Pattern 2446 is available in sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44. Size 36 takes 4 1-8 yards 39 inch fabric. Price 15c. Illustrated step-by-step sewing instructions included with each pattern.

Send FIFTEEN CENTS (15c) in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for each Anne Adams pattern, THIRTY CENTS (30c) for both. Write name, address and style number. BE SURE TO STATE SIZE.

Important to send for your NEW ANNE ADAMS PATTERN BOOK FOR FALL AND WINTER! IT pictures the newest styles and glorious new fabrics and shows how you can outfit yourself and your family—easily and inexpensively. Gives pattern-designs for lovely gifts, and tells how to look more charming by suiting your clothes and accessories to your own personality. PRICE OF BOOK FIFTEEN CENTS. BOOK AND PATTERN TOGETHER, TWENTY-FIVE CENTS.

CHAPTER XXXI

It become apparent to Jo at once that Marsh was using the coming party as an excuse to corner her for a talk about Fragonet. From the moment they took their places at the table he was ill at ease. He talked swiftly and rather incoherently of his plans to hold a dance in honor of Drann and the location company. Then abruptly Marsh's tone changed and he turned to Jo seriously.

"Jo . . . if you're thinking of leaving with Fragonet day after tomorrow, I—I can't let you."

"I haven't been thinking of leaving with him," Jo said.

"But you have to make a decision. Fragonet won't just let it slide. And the fact that you haven't made up your mind not to go makes me afraid that . . . perhaps you will."

Jo did not answer and Marsh went on, embarrassed, "I hate like the devil to do a thing like this, Jo. But I want to ask you—do you think as much of Fragonet as you did?"

"Do you mean because of what happened out there yesterday on the lake?" Jo raised her eyes to his. "I'm afraid I don't feel that's important. I wouldn't refuse to marry a man just because he—he couldn't swim for a camera fiend like Silas Drann. The truth is, I think it's terrible the way people have been treating him since that happened."

Marsh leaned back in his chair, stared at his plate a moment. Then; "All right, Jo. I'm going to let you have it. I didn't mean to go this far." he hesitated, then plunged on, "That day they were waiting for Fragonet, and I went for him at the Inn. Remember?"

Jo nodded, her heart skipping a beat.

"He said he was asleep. Well . . . he wasn't. He was with one of the extra girls—that Dila Saunders who came up later. They were having cocktails in her room, while the company waited."

Slowly Jo smiled. "Is that so terrible, after all? Fragonet's wife is divorcing him. There's no one in particular for him to be faithful to, is there? Besides, cocktails in her room—"

"Jo!" Marsh interrupted quietly. "Jo, that's not like you. Fragonet has asked you to marry him, pleaded with you to return to Hollywood with him. And you can't fool me with your attitude of sophistication—because it's false. It doesn't belong to you. You'll expect your man to be faithful."

Jo had to lower her eyes in defeat before his direct, questioning gaze.

"You do expect that, don't you, Jo?"

"Yes," she told him slowly. "But—why should that action of Fragonet's mean anything more than—than what happened that night on the way to the Lone Tree Tavern? Men seem to have moments when they play with their fingers crossed, don't they?"

Marsh flushed. "Perhaps that meant more than you think, Jo. You see, I—"

But Jo had had enough. She wanted to get out into the air to think. In a swift movement she rose. Marsh had no time to leave his own chair before she had said, "There's no cause for your concern, Mr. Marsh."

"Then you're not thinking of leaving with Fragonet?"

She turned and left him standing there, bewildered. He started as if to follow, but just at that moment Mrs. Marsh and Babs Montgomery appeared.

"Oh, there you are!" exclaimed Mrs. Marsh, sweeping forward with Babs at her side. "What do you mean, running off to dinner without us?"

Marsh covered his annoyance, smiled and chatted while he seated his mother and the younger woman. "I had to discuss plans for the party."

"Not," remarked Babs with a meaningful glance at Jo's empty cup, "plans for a private party, I trust?"

"I'm afraid," said Marsh with cutting politeness, "there's no such thing at Crest Lake Inn . . . Shall I order?"

Tradition insists that when a motion picture company sends a unit on location, the unit must be given a party by the local inhabitants. Part of every popular movie star's education consists of parties given at sea, on mountain tops, in the broad farm lands, and by small towns and big ones.

Marsh was a natural host, and even more important, he had the money to back his inclinations. If the party at Crest Lake was not the most elaborate which Drann and his company had attended, certainly it came near to being the most enjoyable. The host was entertaining the movie crowd because he wanted to—and not because they were movie stars. Perhaps that was why Fragonet and Drann and Montez and the rest enjoyed themselves so thoroughly. The imported dance band, the cocktails, the cabaret entertainers Marsh had ordered down—these were all incidentals. The main point was that Douglas Marsh was proud of Crest Lake Inn and enjoyed having his guests there.

Tradition has it, too, that at such parties the leading man and woman accompany eath other; they, in fact, carry on the show for the benefit of the public. Thus Fragonet, to Jo's relief, was pretty well occupied with Lolita Montez—and Lolita was hiding her dislike for the star as admirably as she hid it before the camera. Most amusing of all was Drann's proprietary air toward Tubby. He whirled her away in a dance almost as soon as the music began, and hardly left her side all evening. Whenever they passed near Jo, her roommate would screw up her face defiantly over the stock director's shoulder.

Barston, the aviator, jockeyed for Jo's attention all evening, and when at last he was successful he delivered a lecture. "Look here, Jo Darien. Seems to me I never see you any more unless Marsh decides to throw a party."

"I've been around all the time," laughed Jo.

"So have the other guys. The only reason I have even a prayer tonight is because Fragonet has to show off with Montez—because old lady Marsh has tossed this Montgomery wench at Doug again—and maybe because that handsome life guard hasn't shown up."

"I went to school with that handsome life guard," Jo told him lightly.

"Sometimes not so hard," said Jo queerly.

She wondered if Bret intended to stay away from the dance. He wasn't particularly excited about big parties, and perhaps he wouldn't come. She knew that Marsh had invited him, and Tubby had heard—in characteristic Tubby fashion—that Bret was escorting Dila Saunders, the blond extra girl Marsh had mentioned in connection with Fragonet. Jo had seen the Saunders girl only once, for Drann had ordered three extra girls up from Hollywood and then, with his usual inconsistency, used them not at all. The Saunders girl seemed hard and cheap, and Johnny Barley had insinuated that she was not so much a genuine, hard-working extra girl as one of the "hangers-on" of the Hollywood studios.

Tubby's rumor that Bret was to escort Dila Saunders had disturbed Jo more deeply than she admitted even to herself. As she danced with Todd Barston she reflected that she hadn't yet had an opportunity to confess to Bret what a blind fool she had been. After her talk with Marsh the night before she had decided it was too late to go to Bret's cabin. Someone was almost certain to see and perhaps to misunderstand—and she had quite enough chalked up against her by Mrs. Marsh.

But tonight, with almost everyone at the Inn, it might be safe. Certainly she must see Bret without further delay. There had been too much between them, they had loved each other too deeply, to have this thing hanging over their heads.

When the dance with Barston ended Jo excused herself quickly, slipped out on the empty veranda. There was a high full moon, lighting the lake and the broad slope which led down to the cottages. Bret's little place was at the very edge of the lake so that he could be near at hand if some nocturnal swimmer should find himself in trouble.

Jo saw that there was a dim light in one of the rooms, and hurried her pace. "I'll tell him quickly," she thought. "I'll tell him quickly and get it over with, and try to make him come back to the dance with me. . . . Then maybe, dancing together, like we used to do . . ."

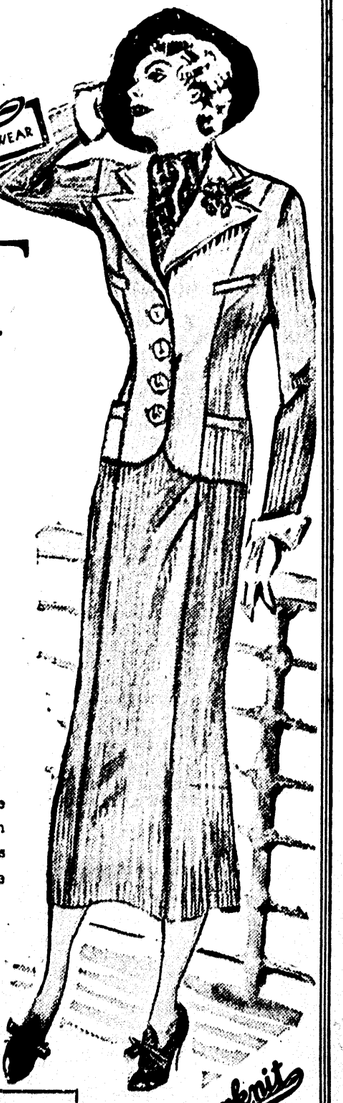

Her high-heeled slippers sank deep in the soft grass, staining green, but Jo didn't think of this. She slipped by the window, her hand outstretched to rap on the cottage door. But her knuckles never reached the wood, for something beyond the window caught her eye. It was something bright and artificial and glittering—the platinum head of Dila Saunders.

Bret was smiling down at Dila Saunders, and as Jo stood, transfixed, he bent slowly to kiss those insolent carmined lips. Jo saw him reach out and touch the lamp on the table, plunge the cottage into darkness.

Monroe Ornithologist Speaks Interestingly About Birds

Mrs. George Lowery, Sr., expert hornithologist, and a friend of every bird that wings its way over Monroe, talked recently, in an interesting manner on the subject of "Birds." She said:

"With the summer months drawing to a close and the advent of fall only a short time away, the natural beauties around Monroe will again change. Most of us will be glad in a way. Just as in late winter we look forward with joyous anticipation for the coming of spring with its array of flowers and vivid greenery, most of us who love the out-of-doors are now awaiting the coming of autumn.

"Possibly we enjoy spring more than any other season, but the failure of anyone to be impressed with the beauties of fall rests in their inability to discern at least something worthwhile in everything pertaining to the realm of nature.

"Right now remarkable changes are taking place among the bird population of Monroe and its vicinity. Little do most people realize it, but each day and each night brings many new birds to our city trees and parks. Likewise many kinds are leaving us, not to return until next spring. Some will come here from the north, remain for a week or so, then pass on to warmer climates where they will spend the winter. what is all of this movement? You all have heard something about it, but I wonder just how many have been fully impressed by its magnitude, its wonder, and its mystery.

"Each time the season changes, the most unobservant of people notice that different birds inhabit their gardens, different birds are seen along the highways and in the swamps. During the past few months, the sight of such species as herons along the cypress swamps and lakes, and oriole, thrushes and tanagers in the garden and city trees are familiar to all. This brings me to my point. The next few days or maybe a week or so will see the disappearance of these birds and in their place will come other kinds altogether. They will be the hearty winter types such as sparrows, not the common English sparrow, but the beautiful white-throated sparrow and the slate-colored junco. And there will be the lively little kinglets, both the ruby-crowned and the golden-crowned, each of which are common in all of the shrubbery about our homes. With the kinglets will be innumerable chickadees, titmice, Carolina wrens, downy woodpeckers, etc. The outstanding feature about our winter birds is the manner in which they travel about in groups, sometimes made up of as many as a dozen species.

"The whole discussion leads to this point. Those of you who would like to add something to your homes and gardens during the cold winter months as well as add to your infinite personal enjoyment, can easily do so by feeding the birds during the months ahead. Try putting out food on any sort of improvised feeding table and see the results. You will be surprised. Maybe at first only an English sparrow will come, but soon there will be blue jays, cardinals, or "red birds," and finally the list will grow and you will be allowed a continuous source of joy and amusement.

"Feeding birds and thus attracting them to your yard is an excellent way to study them closely. Moreover, it affords an easy way to teach children about them. Unfortunate it is that more mothers do not endeavor to enlighen their children on the beauties of nature. A little effort on the part of a mother goes a long ways in instilling into the mind of a child an appreciation of wild creatures. The reason may be two-fold. It has been aptly said that a man who has a true conscientious appreciation for the out-of-doors, be he a fisherman, a huntsman or whatnot, he has no difficulty in getting along with his fellow man. The time to create that impression is when the child is young. Make one of your child's hobbies that of learning about birds and animals. It has a natural appeal. Boy and Girl Scouts and Camp Fire Girl organizations have made great strides aloong this line, but their contact with the boy or girl is not as close as that of a mother or father.

"Often I have been confronted with this situation by women of Monroe: 'I would like to learn something about birds but I don't know how to go about it.' Such an expression is with some foundation. Like most everything else it requires diligence and effort. But with every bit of effort comes a great satisfaction and enjoyment. The secret lies in two words 'Look and Listen.' Then with the aid of some field guide, Reed's 'Field Guide to the Land Birds East of the Rockies,' for example, which can be purchased at a nominal sum—you can proceed to identify with certainty the birds that you see. As in the case of practically every field of human endeavor, interest increases with the accumulation of knowledge on the subject. As each new bird is identified your enthusiasm mounts higher and higher.

"So, in conclusion, let me urge that each and everyone avail himself of the opportunities awaiting him by a study of our birds. You will find them if you look for them. Orioles sing in every section of the town in spring and summer, but few people hear them. You will see nothing in the way of a natural beauty unless you look for it. If every bird along the street is assumed to be a mockingbird or a sparrow, and every large bird that flies a turkey buzzard, then you will see only mockingbirds, sparrows, and buzzards, and possibly some 30 or 40 other species go unnoticed. Furthermore, you will be firmly convinced that people that tell of seeing white pelicans, black-throated green warblers, and painted buntings in the city are triflers with the truth. But right here at my home, virtually in the heart of town, I have observed over 75 different kinds of birds, some of which are so rare that they are listed as accidental anywhere in Louisiana. But nevertheless they have come to my yard, and they will come to yours if you encourage them.

"If you will but look and listen, every tree, every flower, every bird, in fact, every animate and inanimate thing, has a message for you and is wanting to give you a fuller enjoyment of life."

L. T. Hastings, Pastor

Miss Emma Leachman, field representative of the Home Mission board, will be our guest speaker Sunday morning. Miss Leachman is one of the very finest inspirational speakers in the field of missions. Her messages are always well received. Her coming will be a wonderful opportunity for all lovers of the cause of missions, without which none of us would know of Christ the Savior of the world. Make your plans to hear Miss Leachman Sunday morning. It is the hope of the pastor and church that the tabernacle auditorium will be well filled for this occasion. The pastor will bring an evangelistic message Sunday evening. Last Sunday marked the beginning of his eleventh year as pastor of this church. It was a glorious day for all who attended. There were some 15 additions and about the same number of professions of faith. Hear the pastor in his message Sunday evening. Hear the choir and join in the singing with the great congregation. Worship or preaching services 11:55 a.m. and 7:30 p.m. Sunday school 9:30 a.m. B. T. U. 6:10 p.m. Other services of the week according to regular schedule. Visitors and friends are always welcome to any and all the services of our church.

FIRST PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH
Ernest Holloway, Pastor

The officials and teachers of the Sabbath school will assemble Wednesday evening at 6:15. Supper will be served and after the meeting plans and suggestions will be considered dealing with rally day and our future. Our worship periods will be had. The topic of the morning is "Memory, Loyalty and Appreciation—Three Motives of Action." The evening subject is "Our Spiritual Status—Can We know We Are the Lord's?" The young people gather each Sabbath at 6:30 p.m. They are alive and making progress. The leaders are anxious that our youth enroll. The interest and cooperation of the parents are wanted. Shall we reach our goals on rally day, October 6, the Sabbath when all our people are expected to be in attendance? In the meantime, the men and women of the congregation are invited to enroll in the Bible class of their choice. The Rev. Frank Crossley Morgan, D.D., begins a week of Bible study September 29. He speaks twice daily, 10:00 a.m. and 7:30 p.m. He is well known. Hear him.

ASSEMBLY OF GOD
West Monroe
E. L. Tanner, Pastor

The pastor has returned from Dallas, Texas, where he spent a week attending the general council meeting of the Assemblies of God, and will be in charge of both services Sunday, at 11 a.m. and 7:30 p.m. We are very much pleased to note the interest manifested in all departments of the Sunday school and as the hot weather is passing we are expecting to see a still greater interest, especially in attendance. Sunday school meets at 9:45 a.m., D. O. McDaniel, superintendent. Morning worship at 11 o'clock. Christ ambassadors class meets at 6:45 p.m., A Gay, director. Evening service, 7:30 o'clock.

TRINITY LUTHERAN CHURCH
Woodmen Building
107 Jackson Street
H. H. Schaefer, Pastor

Services for fourteenth Sunday after trinity. All departments of the Sunday school and Bible class meet for instruction at 9:30 a.m. Friends and visitors are cordially welcome to gather with us at all of our services. Chief worship begins at 10:30 a.m. Topic of the pastor's sermon will be "The City that Voted Jesus Out." The Walther league meets Wednesday, 7:30 p.m. with Paul Arnold, 314 Sixth street.

CENTRAL BAPTIST CHURCH

Jackson At Wood Street
W. C. Scott, Pastor

"The Love of God" will be the theme of the pastor's sermon on Sunday morning at the 11 o'clock hour. Evening services are now held at 7:30 o'clock each Sunday. Mid-week prayer services are held on Wednesday at 7:30 p. m. in the annex. A series of discourses on "Prayer" are proving most interesting at the prayer services. Sunday is Missionary day in the church school. September 29 will be Promotion day, which marks the close of the church school year. Suitable programs will be held in every department; and at the church hour, there will be installation services for the teachers and officers of the church school for the coming year. The Woman's Missionary society will meet in circles on Tuesday at 3 p. m. The meeting places will be found in the daily papers and in the church bulletin. You are invited to worship with us at all services and join your group at the church school for an hour of Bible study and Christian fellowship. We are looking forward to a visit from our bishop, who will fill our pulpit October 5. The Young Woman's Methodist auxiliary will meet Tuesday at the home of Mrs. T. T. Pugh, 404 K street.

FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH
West Monroe
E. E. Huntsberry, Pastor

The subject chosen by the pastor for Sunday at the morning hour is "Tipping or Tithing." At the evening hour, he will speak on "The Blood of Jesus Christ." This is anniversary Sunday, commemorating the fifteenth anniversary of the church, and will be home-coming day for the church. The "Prove Me" plan is being accepted most graciously by the people of the church and Sunday will be Covenant day for our people. The W. M. S. will meet in circles Tuesday afternoon as follows: No. 1, with Mrs. C. I. Kirby; No. 2 with Mrs. Dierlamm; No. 3 with Mrs. Elkins; Number 4 with Mrs. O. W. GRACE CHURCH
Fourth and Glenmar Streets
Edward Farren Hayward, Rector

Services for the fourteenth Sunday after Trinity are as follows: The Holy Eucharist, 7:30 a. m.; church school, 9:30 a. m.; morning service and sermon, 11 a. m. To obtain God's promises, we must love His precepts; and faith and hope are essential to this love of duty or practical obedience. But the Epistle shows us that God's commandments are at war with our natural appetites and passions, so that nothing but grace can make us believe and hope in such wise as to obey. And in Sunday's gospel, we have another example of the despised class as showing forth true faith, and rebuking the conduct of the other nine members of the true church, who had not even common gratitude. Note that as they went they were cleansed; in obeying, they found healing. The sinner, instead of waiting to feel better, would at once begin to obey God and to observe His ordinances, the conversion and grace which he needs would be wrought in him simultaneously. The church is open daily from 7:30 a. m. until 5:30 p. m. Come in, rest and pray.

FIRST CHURCH OF CHRIST, SCIENTIST
Corner Auburn and N. Second St.

Sunday services 11 a.m., Sunday school 9:30 a.m. Wednesday evening testimony meetings 8 o'clock. Reading room, 1108 Ouachita National Bank building, open daily, except Sunday and holidays, 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. The public is welcome to all services and the use of the reading room. "Matter" is the subject of the lesson-sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, Sunday, September 22. Among the citations which comprise the lesson-sermon is the following from the Bible: "And therefore will the Lord wait, that he may be gracious unto you, and therefore will he be exalted, that he may have mercy upon you; for the Lord is a God of judgment; blessed are all they that wait for him." (Isa. 30). The lesson-sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "Nothing we can say or believe regarding matter is immortal, for matter is temporal and is therefore a mortal phenomenon, a human concept sometimes beautiful, always erroneous." (p. 277).

CLAIBORNE METHODIST CHURCH
Rev. H. W. Ledbetter, Pastor

A revival begins Sunday night and will continue through the fifth Sunday. The pastor will be assisted by visiting ministers. Special choir leaders will lead the choir. On the fifth Sunday we will celebrate the 15th anniversary of the organization of the church with a home-coming service. Dinner will be served on the church grounds. The public is invited to these services.

PATTERNS 2468 AND 2446

Don't they make a pretty picture, this smartly attired pair, whom we'll suppose to be mother and daughter? Each was her own dressmaker, each her own "Budget-eer." Daughter chose pattern 2468 for its young lines, sheer wool for fabric, topped with trig collar and bow of pique. Crepe with velvet or satin trim would be dressier, of course. Mother needed a frock for "very best" so chose pattern 2446, and satin because it drapes so softly on the heavier figure. A pointed surplice bodice follows jacket-like lines. Rich shirring tops the shoulders.

Pattern 2468 is available in sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, 20, 30, 32, 34, 36, 38 and 40. Size 16 takes 2 5-8 yards 54 inch fabric and 5-8 yard contrasting. Price 15c.

Pattern 2446 is available in sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44. Size 36 takes 4 1-8 yards 39 inch fabric. Price 15c. Illustrated step-by-step sewing instructions included with each pattern.

Send FIFTEEN CENTS (15c) in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for each Anne Adams pattern, THIRTY CENTS (30c) for both. Write name, address and style number. BE SURE TO STATE SIZE.

Important to send for your NEW ANNE ADAMS PATTERN BOOK FOR FALL AND WINTER! IT pictures the newest styles and glorious new fabrics and shows how you can outfit yourself and your family—easily and inexpensively. Gives pattern-designs for lovely gifts, and tells how to look more charming by suiting your clothes and accessories to your own personality. PRICE OF BOOK FIFTEEN CENTS. BOOK AND PATTERN TOGETHER, TWENTY-FIVE CENTS.

CHAPTER XXXI

It become apparent to Jo at once that Marsh was using the coming party as an excuse to corner her for a talk about Fragonet. From the moment they took their places at the table he was ill at ease. He talked swiftly and rather incoherently of his plans to hold a dance in honor of Drann and the location company. Then abruptly Marsh's tone changed and he turned to Jo seriously.

"Jo . . . if you're thinking of leaving with Fragonet day after tomorrow, I—I can't let you."

"I haven't been thinking of leaving with him," Jo said.

"But you have to make a decision. Fragonet won't just let it slide. And the fact that you haven't made up your mind not to go makes me afraid that . . . perhaps you will."

Jo did not answer and Marsh went on, embarrassed, "I hate like the devil to do a thing like this, Jo. But I want to ask you—do you think as much of Fragonet as you did?"

"Do you mean because of what happened out there yesterday on the lake?" Jo raised her eyes to his. "I'm afraid I don't feel that's important. I wouldn't refuse to marry a man just because he—he couldn't swim for a camera fiend like Silas Drann. The truth is, I think it's terrible the way people have been treating him since that happened."

Marsh leaned back in his chair, stared at his plate a moment. Then; "All right, Jo. I'm going to let you have it. I didn't mean to go this far." he hesitated, then plunged on, "That day they were waiting for Fragonet, and I went for him at the Inn. Remember?"

Jo nodded, her heart skipping a beat.

"He said he was asleep. Well . . . he wasn't. He was with one of the extra girls—that Dila Saunders who came up later. They were having cocktails in her room, while the company waited."

Slowly Jo smiled. "Is that so terrible, after all? Fragonet's wife is divorcing him. There's no one in particular for him to be faithful to, is there? Besides, cocktails in her room—"

"Jo!" Marsh interrupted quietly. "Jo, that's not like you. Fragonet has asked you to marry him, pleaded with you to return to Hollywood with him. And you can't fool me with your attitude of sophistication—because it's false. It doesn't belong to you. You'll expect your man to be faithful."

Jo had to lower her eyes in defeat before his direct, questioning gaze.

"You do expect that, don't you, Jo?"

"Yes," she told him slowly. "But—why should that action of Fragonet's mean anything more than—than what happened that night on the way to the Lone Tree Tavern? Men seem to have moments when they play with their fingers crossed, don't they?"

Marsh flushed. "Perhaps that meant more than you think, Jo. You see, I—"

But Jo had had enough. She wanted to get out into the air to think. In a swift movement she rose. Marsh had no time to leave his own chair before she had said, "There's no cause for your concern, Mr. Marsh."

"Then you're not thinking of leaving with Fragonet?"

She turned and left him standing there, bewildered. He started as if to follow, but just at that moment Mrs. Marsh and Babs Montgomery appeared.

"Oh, there you are!" exclaimed Mrs. Marsh, sweeping forward with Babs at her side. "What do you mean, running off to dinner without us?"

Marsh covered his annoyance, smiled and chatted while he seated his mother and the younger woman. "I had to discuss plans for the party."

"Not," remarked Babs with a meaningful glance at Jo's empty cup, "plans for a private party, I trust?"

"I'm afraid," said Marsh with cutting politeness, "there's no such thing at Crest Lake Inn . . . Shall I order?"

Tradition insists that when a motion picture company sends a unit on location, the unit must be given a party by the local inhabitants. Part of every popular movie star's education consists of parties given at sea, on mountain tops, in the broad farm lands, and by small towns and big ones.

Marsh was a natural host, and even more important, he had the money to back his inclinations. If the party at Crest Lake was not the most elaborate which Drann and his company had attended, certainly it came near to being the most enjoyable. The host was entertaining the movie crowd because he wanted to—and not because they were movie stars. Perhaps that was why Fragonet and Drann and Montez and the rest enjoyed themselves so thoroughly. The imported dance band, the cocktails, the cabaret entertainers Marsh had ordered down—these were all incidentals. The main point was that Douglas Marsh was proud of Crest Lake Inn and enjoyed having his guests there.

Tradition has it, too, that at such parties the leading man and woman accompany eath other; they, in fact, carry on the show for the benefit of the public. Thus Fragonet, to Jo's relief, was pretty well occupied with Lolita Montez—and Lolita was hiding her dislike for the star as admirably as she hid it before the camera. Most amusing of all was Drann's proprietary air toward Tubby. He whirled her away in a dance almost as soon as the music began, and hardly left her side all evening. Whenever they passed near Jo, her roommate would screw up her face defiantly over the stock director's shoulder.

Barston, the aviator, jockeyed for Jo's attention all evening, and when at last he was successful he delivered a lecture. "Look here, Jo Darien. Seems to me I never see you any more unless Marsh decides to throw a party."

"I've been around all the time," laughed Jo.

"So have the other guys. The only reason I have even a prayer tonight is because Fragonet has to show off with Montez—because old lady Marsh has tossed this Montgomery wench at Doug again—and maybe because that handsome life guard hasn't shown up."

"I went to school with that handsome life guard," Jo told him lightly.

"Sometimes not so hard," said Jo queerly.

She wondered if Bret intended to stay away from the dance. He wasn't particularly excited about big parties, and perhaps he wouldn't come. She knew that Marsh had invited him, and Tubby had heard—In characteristic Tubby fashion—that Bret was escorting Dila Saunders, the blond extra girl Marsh had mentioned in connection with Fragonet. Jo had seen the Saunders girl only once, for Drann had ordered three extra girls up from Hollywood and then, with his usual inconsistency, used them not at all. The Saunders girl seemed hard and cheap, and Johnny Barley had insinuated that she was not so much a genuine, hard-working extra girl as one of the "hangers-on" of the Hollywood studios.

Tubby's rumor that Bret was to escort Dila Saunders had disturbed Jo more deeply than she admitted even to herself. As she danced with Todd Barston she reflected that she hadn't yet had an opportunity to confess to Bret what a blind fool she had been. After her talk with Marsh the night before she had decided it was too late to go to Bret's cabin. Someone was almost certain to see and perhaps to misunderstand—and she had quite enough chalked up against her by Mrs. Marsh.

But tonight, with almost everyone at the Inn, it might be safe. Certainly she must see Bret without further delay. There had been too much between them, they had loved each other too deeply, to have this thing hanging over their heads.

When the dance with Barston ended Jo excused herself quickly, slipped out on the empty veranda. There was a high full moon, lighting the lake and the broad slope which led down to the cottages. Bret's little place was at the very edge of the lake so that he could be near at hand if some nocturnal swimmer should find himself in trouble.

Jo saw that there was a dim light in one of the rooms, and hurried her pace. "I'll tell him quickly," she thought. "I'll tell him quickly and get it over with, and try to make him come back to the dance with me. . . . Then maybe., dancing together, like we used to do . . ."

Her high-heeled slippers sank deep in the soft grass, staining green, but Jo didn't think of this. She slipped by the window, her hand outstretched to rap on the cottage door. But her knuckles never reached the wood, for something beyond the window caught her eye. It was something bright and artificial and glittering—the platinum head of Dila Saunders.

Bret was smiling down at Dila Saunders, and as Jo stood, transfixed, he bent slowly to kiss those insolent carmined lips. Jo saw him reach out and touch the lamp on the table, plunge the cottage into darkness.

JONESVILLE, La., Sept. 20.—(Special)—Announcement has been made by Rev. Shirley Briggs, of the Baptist church of Jonesville, that the Ouachita Baptist association will convene in annual session this year at the Lake Lilly Baptist church on October 17 and 18.

The two-day session will begin at 9:30 a. m., Oct. 17, and will continue throughout both days, ending with a sermon by Dr. M. E. Dodd, president of the Southern Baptist association of Shreveport, accompanied by a showing of moving pictures made by Dr. Dodd on world tour, and which portrays scenes taken in many countries of the world.

It was stated by Rev. Briggs that the closing sermon will be delivered in Jonesville instead of Lake Lilly in order that electricity may be obtainable for the pictures. The association will adjourn from the Lake Lilly church early in the afternoon of Friday, Oct. 18, to reconvene in the Trinity Baptist church in Jonesville at 7 p.m. Much interest is being taken in the association this year and it is thought that there will be a large number of delegates in attendance from various churches throughout north Louisiana.

Heinrich Schliemann discovered the buried cities in the great mound of Troy. The mound itself was about 125 feet high, but all nine buried cities were found after digging only 50 feet.

BAKER'S BREAD
Is Safe For Your Health

Nourishment and ease of digestion are the health-value of food. Bread slow baked by your baker ranks high in both. Carbohydrates, proteins and nourishment values are found plentifully in bread. Wheat flour, milk, yeast, sugar, shortening, salt, all of nationally known and nationally accepted brands, are its ingredients. Bread is more nourishing, weight for weight, than most foods.

Slow baking in evenly heated ovens makes easily digested food. Every cell of flour or shortening gets its share of heat, and gives up its share of nourishment and flavor. So-called "quick breads," while easy to prepare, are hard to digest, and quick baking injuries instead of helping the health of your family. Your baker bakes all products thoroughly, and his bread is easy to digest. Nourishment and ease of digestion are always found in your baker's bread.

JONESVILLE, La., Sept. 20.—(Special)—Announcement has been made by Rev. Shirley Briggs, of the Baptist church of Jonesville, that the Ouachita Baptist association will convene in annual session this year at the Lake Lilly Baptist church on October 17 and 18.

The two-day session will begin at 9:30 a. m., Oct. 17, and will continue throughout both days, ending with a sermon by Dr. M. E. Dodd, president of the Southern Baptist association of Shreveport, accompanied by a showing of moving pictures made by Dr. Dodd on world tour, and which portrays scenes taken in many countries of the world.

It was stated by Rev. Briggs that the closing sermon will be delivered in Jonesville instead of Lake Lilly in order that electricity may be obtainable for the pictures. The association will adjourn from the Lake Lilly church early in the afternoon of Friday, Oct. 18, to reconvene in the Trinity Baptist church in Jonesville at 7 p.m. Much interest is being taken in the association this year and it is thought that there will be a large number of delegates in attendance from various churches throughout north Louisiana.

Heinrich Schliemann discovered the buried cities in the great mound of Troy. The mound itself was about 125 feet high, but all nine buried cities were found after digging only 50 feet.

BAKER'S BREAD
Is Safe For Your Health

Nourishment and ease of digestion are the health-value of food. Bread slow baked by your baker ranks high in both. Carbohydrates, proteins and nourishment values are found plentifully in bread. Wheat flour, milk, yeast, sugar, shortening, salt, all of nationally known and nationally accepted brands, are its ingredients. Bread is more nourishing, weight for weight, than most foods.

Slow baking in evenly heated ovens makes easily digested food. Every cell of flour or shortening gets its share of heat, and gives up its share of nourishment and flavor. So-called "quick breads," while easy to prepare, are hard to digest, and quick baking injuries instead of helping the health of your family. Your baker bakes all products thoroughly, and his bread is easy to digest. Nourishment and ease of digestion are always found in your baker's bread.

Adventure And Romance Featured At Theaters This Week

A picture that rates the raves of every movie fan in town—and collected a lot of them yesterday when it began its run at the Paramount theater—is Darryl Zanuck's filmization of "Call of the Wild," the immortal Jack London classic of the Yukon gold rush.

Rich in rugged drama and clean fun, the picture exerts a powerful appeal for every member of every family—the youngsters and their dads won't have to be told for they've all thrilled to this most famous of Jack London's tales, and the love story, beautifully played by Clark Gable and Loretta Young, will insure the feminine contingent of a grand time.

Jack Oakie contributes the comedy and has never been better. And there's a new dog star—a huge, soft-eyed St. Bernard named Buck—who makes his screen debut in "Call of the Wild," and looks like the logical contender for the canine cinema crown.

The film, which was shot amid the majestic beauty of sub-zero Mt. Baker, Washington, was adapted by Gene Fowler and Leonard Praskins, and the team has done a brilliant piece of work. Gable is ideally cast as a swash-buckling prospector who sets out with his buddy, Shorty Hoolihan, (Jack Oakie), to find a "lost claim." On the trail, they rescue the beautiful Claire Blake (Loretta Young) from wolves and learn that her husband has been lost searching for the same claim, which had been discovered by his now dead father.

The "take-what-you-want" code of the Northwest by which Thornton lives is foreign to this over-civilized, sheltered woman and the pair are in constant conflict. However, their mutual contempt gradually turns to a deep and genuine love.

The trio locates the rich claim, but Smith, a villainous prospector who has found the lost Blake and forced him to lead him to the claim site, surprises them and takes their gold and their canoe, but drowns in the rapids, weighted down with his stolen bounty.

The unexpected return of Claire's husband offers a challenge to Thornton's code, but he finally agrees to let her go. Throughout the story, the "Call of the Wild," which torments the dog, Buck, with memories of the time when he he was a wolf and makes him waver between his love for his master and his yearning for the wolf-mate who calls to him, is paralleled with the conflict in Thornton's soul.

The direction of William Wellman is vigorous and flawless and this Joseph M. Schenck presentation, for release through United Artists emerges the most refreshing and enjoyable entertainment in many cinema seasons.

Mr. Gaushell will take the place of Harvey Nelson, who had charge of this work here last year and who will now conduct a similar work at Louisiana Tech in Ruston. He is said to come here highly recommended.

Elissa Landi and Francis Drake in a scene from Paramount's "Without Regret," the story of an Oriental romance that turned into a London scandal, which comes to the Paramount theater for two days, Tuesday and Wednesday. Paul Cavanaugh, Kent Taylor, David Nivin and Betty Holt are in the special supporting cast. You'll find "Without Regret" a daringly different drama of high society and mystery.

Jack Oakie, Loretta Young and Clark Gable strike "Pay Dirt" in Jack London's flaming romance of the Klondike "Call of the Wild," the attraction playing the Paramount theater for today and Monday. This greatest of all outdoor adventure romances boasts of an all-star supporting cast and also introduces the new wonder dog "Buck," the Saint Bernard, who makes his movie bow . . . or should we say "bow-wow" . . . as London's immortal dog hero.

"College Scandal," coming to the Capitol Tuesday and Wednesday, has a cast of good looking and competent juveniles, a compact script, and imaginative direction. It manages to blend just the right chiller aspect with some effective comedy and just the right proportion of romance. The principal characters of this story set in a peaceful college campus plunged into murder mystery are Edward Nugent, Arline Judge, Kent Taylor and Wendy Barrie.

Mary Ellis and Tullio Carminati in a romantic moment from the Paramount song and fun festival, "Paris in Spring," which also features Ida Lupino, Lynne Overmann and Jesse Ralph. It's the attraction at the Paramount theater for Thursday and Friday. It's the story of life, love and laughter in Gay Paree with America's favorite singing star.

"She Married Her Boss," with Claudette Colbert, Melvyn Douglas, Michael Bartlett, Jean Dixon and Katherine Alexander, comes to the Paramount theater for next Saturday, Sunday and Monday.

An Old Theme In New Dress

George Madden Martin, who wrote those delightful stories of "Emmy-Lou," treasured in girls' libraries, has written another novel, "Made in America," which becomes an interesting contribution to the American scene. The story deals with an alley-born lad, product of a destitute Fenian patriot and a shanty-Irish mother, who rises to wealth and power through beginnings that are more or less fortuitous, but engineered finally through an innate intelligence honestly derived from an intellectual paternal parent.

Mrs. Martin develops the story of Sherry McNeill as a theme that has its substance in the ethical question of the true value of material wealth. The plot is tenuous enough, but sufficiently tangible to involve some of the high spots of that amazingly changeful period of American history embraced in the last seventy years.

The author deftly weaves into her story the development of the telephone, the modern printing press, the revolution in transportation by means of the automobile and the safety coupler of the passenger train, every one of which has had a distinct bearing on economic and human relationships, both urban and rural. It is the telephone that furnishes a basis for one of the most dramatic incidents recorded in the book.

Mrs. Martin indulges in no heroics to demonstrate America's "melting pot." The book presents an old theme in an entirely new dress, and in this the author succeeds in presenting a picture, subtle, without being obscure, that comprehends the forces which have produced American civilization as we see it today.

The chief figure is hardly of heroic mold, despite the fact that he lifts himself from the squalid purlieus of a southern city to become a financial wizard in the country's metropolis. No heroism is essential in amassing wealth after the first hundred thousand is safely in the bank, and Sherry McNeill's first steps toward great fortune came after his quick brain, collaborating with that of an equally alert railroad mechanic, had supplied a missing drawing of an automatic coupling designed by Sherry's engineer father. After that it was easy enough to amass millions.

The tragedy of the story is not the death of the girl that Sherry had loved since his early alley days, and whom he marries only after she has become hopelessly crippled in an accident. The tragedy is Sherry himself, who, becomes "the third richest man in the country," after coming up out of squalor, destitution and the depths of human misery that abject poverty brings, doesn't know what to do with his wealth. He is faced with the futility of his successful life.

Says he: "I repudiate charity and its implications. I distrust philanthropy conducted by salaried boards after the donor is gone. I see red at the words 'social service'." He has no solutions for his own dilemma.

Perhaps this is the import of the book. Yet, within the same covers, in sharp contrast, is the story of John Gayley, the electrician, who devotes his wealth to the advancement of science through the endowment of laboratories for experimental purposes and for promoting the social and economic interests of society.

The book is engagingly written, in that style which is peculiarly and delightfully Mrs. Martin's. The theme is treated with considerable power, achieving at times the heights of pure drama. It is highly readable, even if only for the refreshing fact that it escapes the traditional mode in dealing with the threadbare "poor but honest boy" element in the American motif.

The author is one of the south's brilliant intellectuals, though she would probably deny the implication. She is a leader in activities for the betterment of her native south, and one of her chief interests is the Association of Southern White Women for the Prevention of Lynching, of which she is chairman.

BUGLE CORPS IS HONORED AT MEET

SCHOOL TERM STARTS

LAKE PROVIDENCE, La., Sept. 21, —(Special)—The Lake Providence High school opened last week with an enrollment of 454 students, 116 in the high school department and 338 in the elementary department. The third grade topped the list with an enrollment of 58.

Screen Life In Hollywood

HOLLYWOOD.—You are going on a journey, and midway someone places a hat on your head, and then after a while the same hand takes off the hat and you go along, not missing it.

At least, Katharine Hepburn wants not to miss it—the "hat' of movie stardom—when it is removed by the public that put it there. And that, she says, is one of the reasons she is the way she is. She wants to be the same under the "hat" when it is taken off when it was put on.

"This doesn't last long," she says. "But while it does one can lay the foundations for unhappy old age. I don't want to do that. I won't be photographed and interviewed now when I go across the country. Later, nobody will want to take my picture. If I did all that now, I might be terribly unhappy when that time comes. As it is, I won't care. I'll be the same person I was when I came to Hollywood."

Requires Energy

Another reason—and this is Hepburn in a burst of explanations after long silence—is her belief in the importance of illusion. She admires Garbo but has no desire to meet her, and would walk around the block, if need be, to avoid meeting her—for fear the illusion might be destroyed. It is the same with other screen favorites of hers; she wants not to know them.

And the third reason Hepburn is like Hepburn is that in acting she requires "terrific energy," wants to devote all her energy to the task in hand, and does not want it distracted by extraneous matters such as the business of being a star on parade.

Dungarees For Comfort

"I have never put on an act," she declares with a trace of indignation. "When I came here I was afraid I'd fail, and most of all I wanted to make it possible for me to go back to the stage unhandicapped by any great ballyhoo preceding a failure. I began wearing dungarees around the lot after I saw that everyone else was wearing comfortable clothes—but anyone who knew me before I came can tell you I always did wear dungarees for comfort."

Hepburn, with hair cut short like a boy's for her role in "Sylvia Scarlett," may be the heroine of Max Reinhardt's production of "Twelfth night" in the Hollywood bowl this summer—"but I hate to mention that because my picture may not be finished in time, and then it would be said I got cold feet and backed out. No, after my experience on the stage in 'The Lake,' I'm eager to do this. —I'm a glutton for punishment. I usually agree with my criticisms, only I thought I was worse in 'The Lake' than anyone said I was."

She agreed also, before the picture was made, with what critics later said of "Break of Hearts," but she thinks "Alice Adams," her latest, is a good picture—and that the veteran Fred Stone, whose photograph incidentally is the only actor's she owns, will be sensational in it.

Race Track Film Opens At Capitol

THE "RED BOOK" magazine story, "Leander Clicks," which caused so much comment among the reading public when it was published in 1928, affords the basis of "Hot Tip," which returns to the screen ZaSu Pitts and James Gleason as a new and refreshing comedy team. The film begins a two-day engagement today at the Capitol theater.

From the pen of William Slavens McNutt, who for the past two decades has provided the world with a goodly amount of popular literature, "Hot Tip" is one of his best stories.

Each a comedy star in previous pictures, ZaSu Pitts and James Gleason pool their talents for their roles of Jimmy and Belle McGill. In the romantic leads are Margaret Callahan, Hollywood's latest recruit from the legitimate stage, and Russell Gleason, James' own son and veteran of many productions.

In other prominent roles are Ray Mayer, Arthur Stone, Rollo Lloyd, J. M. Kerrigan (remember McLaglen's parasite in "The Informer"?), Del Henderson and Willie Best.

The American flag is the third oldest of all national standards.

A picture that rates the raves of every movie fan in town—and collected a lot of them yesterday when it began its run at the Paramount theater—is Darryl Zanuck's filmization of "Call of the Wild," the immortal Jack London classic of the Yukon gold rush.

Rich in rugged drama and clean fun, the picture exerts a powerful appeal for every member of every family—the youngsters and their dads won't have to be told for they've all thrilled to this most famous of Jack London's tales, and the love story, beautifully played by Clark Gable and Loretta Young, will insure the feminine contingent of a grand time.

Jack Oakie contributes the comedy and has never been better. And there's a new dog star—a huge, soft-eyed St. Bernard named Buck—who makes his screen debut in "Call of the Wild," and looks like the logical contender for the canine cinema crown.

The film, which was shot amid the majestic beauty of sub-zero Mt. Baker, Washington, was adapted by Gene Fowler and Leonard Praskins, and the team has done a brilliant piece of work. Gable is ideally cast as a swash-buckling prospector who sets out with his buddy, Shorty Hoolihan, (Jack Oakie), to find a "lost claim." On the trail, they rescue the beautiful Claire Blake (Loretta Young) from wolves and learn that her husband has been lost searching for the same claim, which had been discovered by his now dead father.

The "take-what-you-want" code of the Northwest by which Thornton lives is foreign to this over-civilized, sheltered woman and the pair are in constant conflict. However, their mutual contempt gradually turns to a deep and genuine love.

The trio locates the rich claim, but Smith, a villainous prospector who has found the lost Blake and forced him to lead him to the claim site, surprises them and takes their gold and their canoe, but drowns in the rapids, weighted down with his stolen bounty.

The unexpected return of Claire's husband offers a challenge to Thornton's code, but he finally agrees to let her go. Throughout the story, the "Call of the Wild," which torments the dog, Buck, with memories of the time when he he was a wolf and makes him waver between his love for his master and his yearning for the wolf-mate who calls to him, is paralleled with the conflict in Thornton's soul.

The direction of William Wellman is vigorous and flawless and this Joseph M. Schenck presentation, for release through United Artists emerges the most refreshing and enjoyable entertainment in many cinema seasons.

Mr. Gaushell will take the place of Harvey Nelson, who had charge of this work here last year and who will now conduct a similar work at Louisiana Tech in Ruston. He is said to come here highly recommended.

Elissa Landi and Francis Drake in a scene from Paramount's "Without Regret," the story of an Oriental romance that turned into a London scandal, which comes to the Paramount theater for two days, Tuesday and Wednesday. Paul Cavanaugh, Kent Taylor, David Nivin and Betty Holt are in the special supporting cast. You'll find "Without Regret" a daringly different drama of high society and mystery.

"College Scandal," coming to the Capitol Tuesday and Wednesday, has a cast of good looking and competent juveniles, a compact script, and imaginative direction. It manages to blend just the right chiller aspect with some effective comedy and just the right proportion of romance. The principal characters of this story set in a peaceful college campus plunged into murder mystery are Edward Nugent, Arline Judge, Kent Taylor and Wendy Barrie.

An Old Theme In New Dress

George Madden Martin, who wrote those delightful stories of "Emmy-Lou," treasured in girls' libraries, has written another novel, "Made in America," which becomes an interesting contribution to the American scene. The story deals with an alley-born lad, product of a destitute Fenian patriot and a shanty-Irish mother, who rises to wealth and power through beginnings that are more or less fortuitous, but engineered finally through an innate intelligence honestly derived from an intellectual paternal parent.

Mrs. Martin develops the story of Sherry McNeill as a theme that has its substance in the ethical question of the true value of material wealth. The plot is tenuous enough, but sufficiently tangible to involve some of the high spots of that amazingly changeful period of American history embraced in the last seventy years.

The author deftly weaves into her story the development of the telephone, the modern printing press, the revolution in transportation by means of the automobile and the safety coupler of the passenger train, every one of which has had a distinct bearing on economic and human relationships, both urban and rural. It is the telephone that furnishes a basis for one of the most dramatic incidents recorded in the book.

Mrs. Martin indulges in no heroics to demonstrate America's "melting pot." The book presents an old theme in an entirely new dress, and in this the author succeeds in presenting a picture, subtle, without being obscure, that comprehends the forces which have produced American civilization as we see it today.

The chief figure is hardly of heroic mold, despite the fact that he lifts himself from the squalid purlieus of a southern city to become a financial wizard in the country's metropolis. No heroism is essential in amassing wealth after the first hundred thousand is safely in the bank, and Sherry McNeill's first steps toward great fortune came after his quick brain, collaborating with that of an equally alert railroad mechanic, had supplied a missing drawing of an automatic coupling designed by Sherry's engineer father. After that it was easy enough to amass millions.

The tragedy of the story is not the death of the girl that Sherry had loved since his early alley days, and whom he marries only after she has become hopelessly crippled in an accident. The tragedy is Sherry himself, who, becomes "the third richest man in the country," after coming up out of squalor, destitution and the depths of human misery that abject poverty brings, doesn't know what to do with his wealth. He is faced with the futility of his successful life.

Says he: "I repudiate charity and its implications. I distrust philanthropy conducted by salaried boards after the donor is gone. I see red at the words 'social service'." He has no solutions for his own dilemma.

Perhaps this is the import of the book. Yet, within the same covers, in sharp contrast, is the story of John Gayley, the electrician, who devotes his wealth to the advancement of science through the endowment of laboratories for experimental purposes and for promoting the social and economic interests of society.

The book is engagingly written, in that style which is peculiarly and delightfully Mrs. Martin's. The theme is treated with considerable power, achieving at times the heights of pure drama. It is highly readable, even if only for the refreshing fact that it escapes the traditional mode in dealing with the threadbare "poor but honest boy" element in the American motif.

The author is one of the south's brilliant intellectuals, though she would probably deny the implication. She is a leader in activities for the betterment of her native south, and one of her chief interests is the Association of Southern White Women for the Prevention of Lynching, of which she is chairman.

BUGLE CORPS IS HONORED AT MEET

The local drum and bugle corps was awarded third place in the national open contest and also received $200 cash. First place was awarded to the drum and bugle corps from Hudson, Mass., while the Connecticut Yankees from Thompsonville, Conn., secured third place.

In the closed contest, Wayne county council of Detroit won first place; Elgin Illinois drum corps won second place and a group from Harrisonburg, Pa., was awarded third place.

SCHOOL TERM STARTS

LAKE PROVIDENCE, La., Sept. 21.—(Special)—The Lake Providence High school opened last week with an enrollment of 454 students, 116 in the high school department and 338 in the elementary department. The third grade topped the list with an enrollment of 58.

Screen Life In Hollywood

HOLLYWOOD.—You are going on a journey, and midway someone places a hat on your head, and then after a while the same hand takes off the hat and you go along, not missing it.

At least, Katharine Hepburn wants not to miss it—the "hat' of movie stardom—when it is removed by the public that put it there. And that, she says, is one of the reasons she is the way she is. She wants to be the same under the "hat" when it is taken off when it was put on.

"This doesn't last long," she says. "But while it does one can lay the foundations for unhappy old age. I don't want to do that. I won't be photographed and interviewed now when I go across the country. Later, nobody will want to take my picture. If I did all that now, I might be terribly unhappy when that time comes. As it is, I won't care. I'll be the same person I was when I came to Hollywood."

Requires Energy

Another reason—and this is Hepburn in a burst of explanations after long silence—is her belief in the importance of illusion. She admires Garbo but has no desire to meet her, and would walk around the block, if need be, to avoid meeting her—for fear the illusion might be destroyed. It is the same with other screen favorites of hers; she wants not to know them.

And the third reason Hepburn is like Hepburn is that in acting she requires "terrific energy," wants to devote all her energy to the task in hand, and does not want it distracted by extraneous matters such as the business of being a star on parade.

Dungarees For Comfort

"I have never put on an act," she declares with a trace of indignation. "When I came here I was afraid I'd fail, and most of all I wanted to make it possible for me to go back to the stage unhandicapped by any great ballyhoo preceding a failure. I began wearing dungarees around the lot after I saw that everyone else was wearing comfortable clothes—but anyone who knew me before I came can tell you I always did wear dungarees for comfort."

Hepburn, with hair cut short like a boy's for her role in "Sylvia Scarlett," may be the heroine of Max Reinhardt's production of "Twelfth night" in the Hollywood bowl this summer—"but I hate to mention that because my picture may not be finished in time, and then it would be said I got cold feet and backed out. No, after my experience on the stage in 'The Lake,' I'm eager to do this. —I'm a glutton for punishment. I usually agree with my criticisms, only I thought I was worse in 'The Lake' than anyone said I was."

She agreed also, before the picture was made, with what critics later said of "Break of Hearts," but she thinks "Alice Adams," her latest, is a good picture—and that the veteran Fred Stone, whose photograph incidentally is the only actor's she owns, will be sensational in it.

Jack Oakie, Loretta Young and Clark Gable strike "Pay Dirt" in Jack London's flaming romance of the Klondike "Call of the Wild," the attraction playing the Paramount theater for today and Monday. This greatest of all outdoor adventure romances boasts of an all-star supporting cast and also introduces the new wonder dog "Buck," the Saint Bernard, who makes his movie bow . . . or should we say "bow-wow" . . . as London's immortal dog hero.

Mary Ellis and Tullio Carminati in a romantic moment from the Paramount song and fun festival, "Paris in Spring," which also features Ida Lupino, Lynne Overmann and Jesse Ralph. It's the attraction at the Paramount theater for Thursday and Friday. It's the story of life, love and laughter in Gay Paree with America's favorite singing star.

"She Married Her Boss," with Claudette Colbert, Melvyn Douglas, Michael Bartlett, Jean Dixon and Katherine Alexander, comes to the Paramount theater for next Saturday, Sunday and Monday.

Race Track Film Opens At Capitol

THE "RED BOOK" magazine story, "Leander Clicks," which caused so much comment among the reading public when it was published in 1928, affords the basis of "Hot Tip," which returns to the screen ZaSu Pitts and James Gleason as a new and refreshing comedy team. The film begins a two-day engagement today at the Capitol theater.

From the pen of William Slavens McNutt, who for the past two decades has provided the world with a goodly amount of popular literature, "Hot Tip" is one of his best stories.

When his daughter's fiance intrusts Jimmy with his life's savings an effort to swell the exchequer overnight and thus be able to marry, Jimmy goes haywire at the track. His subsequent efforts to recoup fills the story with comedy highlights, punctuated with dramatic and semi-tragic crises.

Each a comedy star in previous pictures, ZaSu Pitts and James Gleason pool their talents for their roles of Jimmy and Belle McGill. In the romantic leads are Margaret Callahan, Hollywood's latest recruit from the legitimate stage, and Russell Gleason, James' own son and veteran of many productions.

In other prominent roles are Ray Mayer, Arthur Stone, Rollo Lloyd, J. M. Kerrigan (remember McLaglen's parasite in "The Informer"?), Del Henderson and Willie Best.

The American flag is the third oldest of all national standards.

BANKER LAUDS REPAIR LOANS

New Hampshire Institution Considers Modernization Plan Sound

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Small loans, as an outlet for surplus bank funds, have earned the applause of one of the first banks to make a Modernization Credit Loan under the operation of the National Housing Act.

In making its hundredth such loan in just under a year's time, the First National Bank of Concord, N. H., through its president, Burns P. Hodgman, finds this method of credit a "benefit in providing an outlet for a portion of loanable funds on a profitable basis."

"While this bank," he said, "has never conducted a small loan department as that term is generally understood, we have for years made so-called character loans to people of limited means. Our experience was so good that when Modernization Credit loans were made possible, we welcomed the opportunity to accept as many good loans as would come to our doors.

"I believe we were the first bank in New Hampshire to make a loan insured by the Federal Housing administration (August 24, 1934), and I have been told we were among the first in the United States.

"We have very few instances where for one reason or another payments temporarily lapsed. In two instances only do we find apparently willful disregard of payments and in one of these the borrowers own unencumbered property and all credit reports were good.

"In company with most other banks, we have had excess loanable funds, and this method of granting credit has been of benefit in providing an outlet for a portion thereof on a profitable basis."

The experience of the First National Bank of Concord bears out the findings of the Federal Housing administration in respect to the percentage of losses in such character loans. The Housing Administration estimates that even in the most distressing times, losses will not exceed three per cent. however, with the insurance provisions of the Housing Act, the Housing Administration guarantees the lending institution against loss up to 20 per cent of total modernization credits in its portfolio.

The case of the First National Bank of Concord is typical of many institutions throughout the United States, judging from the volume of business the banks of the country have done in insured loans alone since the inauguration of operations, under the National Housing Act. Through August 22 the banks approved by the Federal Housing administration made 335,579 insured modernization loans amounting to $127,775,850.

PAINT CONCERN HAD GREAT YEAR

Sherwin-Williams Huge Plants Sold Over 18 Million Gallons

J. F. Davis, manager of the Sherwin-Williams company, 109 Catalpa street, with which concern he has been associated as manager for six years, is proud of the record of the company he represents which sold 18,500,000 gallons of paint last year at a gross total of $56,000,000.

Many interesting facts concerning this industry were brought out in "Fortune" magazine for August, 1935.

Among other things it emphasizes the fact that in good times one paints; in depression one repaints.

The biggest single customer of the paint industry is not the building trades, even in good times—it is the automobile industry. The second biggest is the railroads. Building trades come third. Laboratories of the company have formulas for us on 40,000 specific industrial products.

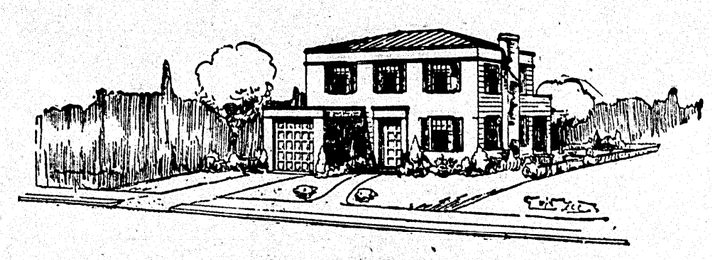

A small paint factory near Cleveland, Ohio, in 1873, was the parent of the giant industry of today. Their first year's output was 225 tons of paint mixings. Honesty of policy and the making of a better paint than the other fellow, was the basis of the tremendous success that has come through the years to this firm.

Today Sherwin-Williams and its subsidiaries employ 6,000 people, according to "Fortune," which goes on to say as follows:

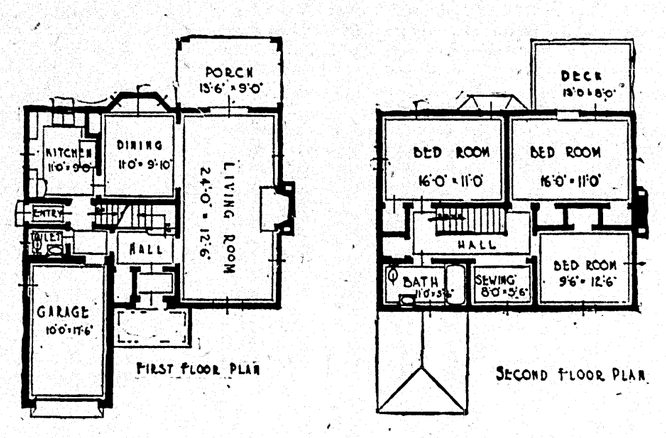

"Employe relations are agreeable. There have been small strikes in Newark, Cleveland and Chicago the past five years, but nothing approaching a major upset. During the depression there have been two or three general pay cuts. But Sherwin-Williams employment and Sherwin-Williams pay have in general held up well. So apparently has employe satisfaction. There is a benefit association and a long-service pension plan. Twenty-five year men, of which there are 436, get gold watches from the company. Fifty-year men, of which there are three, get a diamond pin and a bonus. There are social clubs for the girls, there is a junior club for younger executives. There are numerous other sodalities.

"Today it is hard for Sherwin-Williams executive to take a short view of events. The depression has not brought them anywhere near a crisis. They have been thankful for the price-raising of the New Deal, and for the as yet small but potential benefits of the federal housing administration, and the Home Owners' Loan corporation. They do not miss the paint code, which had very little effect on Sherwin-Williams or any other high grade paint company. But the fact is that today the Sherwin-Williams executives have their eyes on the long perspectives. Physical expansion has become something for a paint manufacturer's memories and hopes. But they are not depressed, because the paint business is exciting today. Excitement gets into the paint business when techniques begin to multiply. And the Sherwin-Williams men are busier than ever with technological revolution. You hear that we are passing out of a mechanical era and into a chemical era. The Sherwin-Williams men believe it. And they look beyond immediate possibilities to a glaring and comforting fact; that the world needs, and is beginning to want, a new coat of many colors."

Up-to-Date Home Construction

FROM STREET

This attractive modernized version of a Colonial house in Milton, Mass., was designed by C. F. Springall, architect, Malden, Mass., and was financed with a mortgage insured by the Federal Housing Administration.

The first floor is designed so that the service and living area are separated and yet accessible from the main hall. The living room is spacious and overlooks a secluded rear garden.

The basement area is well utilized and provides a laundry with access to the drying yard, and a large game room. Construction of this house was begun on National Better Housing Day, June 15.

House Design, Construction Are Important

In past articles we have discussed the manner in which the individual may obtain an insured mortgage loan to provide funds for a new home. The long-term, fully amortized mortgage has been fully explained. General considerations, location and the site have been discussed. The next proposition is the house itself.

The ideal American dwelling should provide complete living facilities for one family combined with adequate light and ventilation. Such facilities should include living and sleeping accommodations, a bathroom, and facilities for the preparation and storage of food.

In planning the house proper, the home builder should go deeply into his general requirements for living, having determined the size of the house which is within his means. The first question is the number and kind of rooms. The requirements for bedrooms are generally fixed as are the requirements for a kitchen, living room, and at least one bath. These are the essential rooms in a home.

When, as frequently occurs, it becomes a question of compromise there are several possibilities. When considering the dining room, it may be a separate room; it may be an alcove, situated just off the living room; it may also be a part of the kitchen. The guest room, usually a desirable feature, can be a double-purpose room combined with a library, children's play room, sewing room, or upstairs living room.

When deciding upon the arrangement of rooms in the new home, a primary consideration is that adequate light and air be provided to all rooms. The question of easy passage between rooms, so that it may not be necessary to pass through one room to get to another, is not to be ignored.

These problems of requirements, arrangement, and size of rooms are best solved at the outset by consultation with a competent architect, who should be employed to make sketches of the floor plan. These and the many other considerations which, if overlooked would produce material losses in comfort as well as in cash are eliminated by calling upon his professional experience.

The kitchen should be located so that it is easily accessible to the service door and the front door. Where possible it is generally advisable that the kitchen have a northern exposure. The bathroom should be situated so that adequate privacy may be attained. Where one bath is provided, access should never be through another room, but through a hallway. From the standpoint of economical construction it is advisable to have the bathroom and the kitchen located as near to one another as possible to minimize plumbing-installation costs.

Another consideration which is highly important and which will be taken up at length in a subsequent article is the matter of waste space. Here again consultation with an architect will produce material savings for the home builder.

Several important factors enter the picture when building the actual house that go beyond the confines of lumber, mortar, brick, and hardware. The house is to be a home. The question of comfort, family morale, and similar considerations are most vividly reflected by the house itself. There is also the question of the value of the house as a mortgage risk. It follows that a well-planned, sturdily constructed house will automatically receive a higher rating as security for a mortgage, besides adding materially to the general welfare of the family. Even before the house is built the prospective owner may readily take into consideration the all-important question of depreciation. If every means is employed to minimize deterioration from the moment the foundation is laid until the roof is nailed down, the life of the structure will be thereby lengthened.

The next article in this series will deal with the question of "whether to build or to buy a home."

GIRL ASLEEP FOR YEAR

Fourteen-year-old Carmen Bodoy is still alive after sleeping for a year at a hospital in Guia, Canary Isles. She is being systematically fed by means of a probe inserted through her nose. Her continued coma, which is baffling physicians, is believed to be the result of shock received after seeing her mother killed by her father in a family quarrel.

SITE FOR HOME DEMANDS CARE

The Specific Lot For Proposed House Deserves Fine Consideration

After the home builder has chosen the general location, he next approaches the problem of the specific lot or site for the proposed house. If he does not exercise care, the home builder or buyer may overlook important items that will present themselves later and cause considerable inconvenience and discomfort.

The plot should be considered with great care. Has it water, sewerage connections, gas, electric current, adequate paving? If it is necessary because of lack of a public sewer, to install a septic tank, what will such a procedure cost? If it is necessary to drill for water, what will that item cost? Is the site level? Is natural drainage possible or does the plot require grading? Have proper precautions been taken to avoid basement flooding? Is the site on a slope? Does the neighboring surface water drain toward the plot? If so, does the drainage system carry off the water properly? Is the site on the top of a hill? Is it exposed to cold winds or is there a windbreak of some kind, as a row of trees? Is the site in a hollow? Is the property located in a section where night fog and dampness frequently set in?

Trees, planting, grading, cutting, filling, and other landscaping details should also be considered. Possibilities of future additions to the home require consideration.

Then comes the decision concerning the placing of the house on the site and the relation of its plan to the site. First there will be the question of the exposure and prevailing breezes. Does the dining room get the morning sun? A north light is usually desired for the kitchen, and south and west offer the best exposures for the living rooms, where they get the afternoon sun. The direction from which the prevailing winds come may make it advisable to change this orientation.

Then we come to the relation of the exterior to the working and living areas in the house. The driveway should be near or pass by the service area or kitchen, which should be screened by planting or fences from the living or garden areas. These latter areas are best located where direct access may be had from the living rooms.

While the details to preliminary home planning mentioned here are in no way complete, they are presented to give an idea of the need for planning before a spade of earth is turned.

In this connection it cannot be too strongly stressed that the average home builder when planning a home should avail himself of the services of a competent architect and landscape architect before the lot has even been purchased. Working cooperatively, their advice will be found invaluable in choosing just the correct site for the type of home contemplated. The interesting possibilities that can be realized from an unusual site are seldom secured by the average home builder without the assistance of experts trained to give just this sort of service.

The saving in time, in convenience, comfort, and actual cash will more than justify the fees paid these experts for their advice and counsel. The "get by" policy adopted by some home builders who attempt to avoid the services of qualified experts has proved to be false economy in instances too numerous to mention. By employing an able architect the home builder will receive the maximum return on whatever amount of money he invests in new home comfort. When adequate provision is made for these conditions there is greater assurance for the home builder that a real value will be recognized in the valuation given under the program for insurance of mortgages by the Federal Housing administration.

ILLUMINATING OF GARDEN STEPS, WALKS ADVISED

Even though the terrace or lawn may be flood-lighted at night, walks and steps leading to these areas are seldom adequately lighted. The shadows cast by shrubs and planting along walks and those cast by the steps themselves. Rough brick or stone paths and stepping stones are particularly dangerous.

Where necessary, place along the walks and steps low round posts, one and one-half or two feet high holding lights shaded so that the light will shine directly on the walk and not up into the air. Two narrow rectangular posts can be placed to form an angle, and a narrow tubular light bulb placed in the angle. Across the top of the two posts, screw a wooden or metal disk of sufficient width to prevent the light from shining upward into the eyes of a person walking along the path. Metal in round or angular shapes may also be used as standards for the lights.

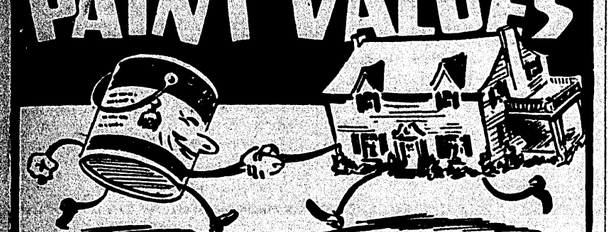

The small posts may be painted to harmonize with the other garden furnishings or the house itself or they may be painted to make them inconspicuous in the daytime.

These low lights can be used to add to the attractiveness of the garden by accenting particular features, and at the same time will add greatly to the safety and ease in the use of the garden.

Her continued coma, which is baffling physicians, is believed to be the result of shock received after seeing her mother killed by her father in a family quarrel.

Up-to-Date Home Construction

This attractive modernized version of a Colonial house in Milton, Mass., was designed by C. F. Springall, architect, Malden, Mass., and was financed with a mortgage insured by the Federal Housing Administration.

The first floor is designed so that the service and living area are separated and yet accessible from the main hall. The living room is spacious and overlooks a secluded rear garden.

Three well-proportioned bedrooms on the second floor all have cross ventilation.

The basement area is well utilized and provides a laundry with access to the drying yard, and a large game room. Construction of this house was begun on National Better Housing Day, June 15.

SITE FOR HOME DEMANDS CARE

The Specific Lot For Proposed House Deserves Fine Consideration

After the home builder has chosen the general location, he next approaches the problem of the specific lot or site for the proposed house. If he does not exercise care, the home builder or buyer may overlook important items that will present themselves later and cause considerable inconvenience and discomfort.

The plot should be considered with great care. Has it water, sewerage connections, gas, electric current, adequate paving? If it is necessary because of lack of a public sewer, to install a septic tank, what will such a procedure cost? If it is necessary to drill for water, what will that item cost? Is the site level? Is natural drainage possible or does the plot require grading? Have proper precautions been taken to avoid basement flooding? Is the site on a slope? Does the neighboring surface water drain toward the plot? If so, does the drainage system carry off the water properly? Is the site on the top of a hill? Is it exposed to cold winds or is there a windbreak of some kind, as a row of trees? Is the site in a hollow? Is the property located in a section where night fog and dampness frequently set in?

Trees, planting, grading, cutting, filling, and other landscaping details should also be considered. Possibilities of future additions to the home require consideration.

Then comes the decision concerning the placing of the house on the site and the relation of its plan to the site. First there will be the question of the exposure and prevailing breezes. Does the dining room get the morning sun? A north light is usually desired for the kitchen, and south and west offer the best exposures for the living rooms, where they get the afternoon sun. The direction from which the prevailing winds come may make it advisable to change this orientation.

Then we come to the relation of the exterior to the working and living areas in the house. The driveway should be near or pass by the service area or kitchen, which should be screened by planting or fences from the living or garden areas. These latter areas are best located where direct access may be had from the living rooms.

While the details to preliminary home planning mentioned here are in no way complete, they are presented to give an idea of the need for planning before a spade of earth is turned.

In this connection it cannot be too strongly stressed that the average home builder when planning a home should avail himself of the services of a competent architect and landscape architect before the lot has even been purchased. Working cooperatively, their advice will be found invaluable in choosing just the correct site for the type of home contemplated. The interesting possibilities that can be realized from an unusual site are seldom secured by the average home builder without the assistance of experts trained to give just this sort of service.

The saving in time, in convenience, comfort, and actual cash will more than justify the fees paid these experts for their advice and counsel. The "get by" policy adopted by some home builders who attempt to avoid the services of qualified experts has proved to be false economy in instances too numerous to mention. By employing an able architect the home builder will receive the maximum return on whatever amount of money he invests in new home comfort. When adequate provision is made for these conditions there is greater assurance for the home builder that a real value will be recognized in the valuation given under the program for insurance of mortgages by the Federal Housing administration.

ILLUMINATING OF GARDEN STEPS, WALKS ADVISED

Even though the terrace or lawn may be flood-lighted at night, walks and steps leading to these areas are seldom adequately lighted. The shadows cast by shrubs and planting along walks and those cast by the steps themselves. Rough brick or stone paths and stepping stones are particularly dangerous.

Where necessary, place along the walks and steps low round posts, one and one-half or two feet high holding lights shaded so that the light will shine directly on the walk and not up into the air. Two narrow rectangular posts can be placed to form an angle, and a narrow tubular light bulb placed in the angle. Across the top of the two posts, screw a wooden or metal disk of sufficient width to prevent the light from shining upward into the eyes of a person walking along the path. Metal in round or angular shapes may also be used as standards for the lights.

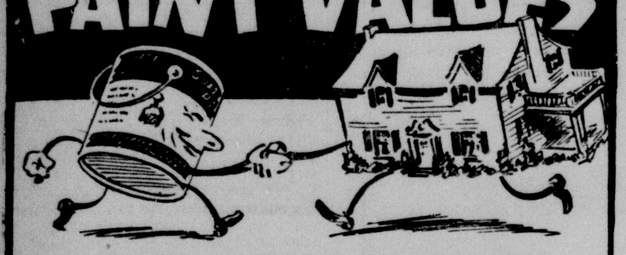

The small posts may be painted to harmonize with the other garden furnishings or the house itself or they may be painted to make them inconspicuous in the daytime.

These low lights can be used to add to the attractiveness of the garden by accenting particular features, and at the same time will add greatly to the safety and ease in the use of the garden.

BUYING POWER BIG INFLUENCE IN DWELLINGS

Survey Reveals Many Factors Concerning Problems Of The Home

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The great variation in residential standards in different sections of the country is reflected forcefully in a survey recently completed by statisticians of the Federal Housing administration. They are due not only to climatic conditions and circumstances surrounding the distribution of population but also the ability of the people to provide for themselves those items which contribute to better living.

The figures are intended to assist in the educational campaign now being conducted by the Federal Housing administration to acquaint home owners and renters with the features of the National Housing act which enables them to obtain from commercial banks and other private financial institutions the money necessary to repair and modernize their dwellings. They came from various governmental and other sources and seek to determine whence the demand would come for modernization credit.

Factors Considered

factors considered were location and value of dwellings; the ability of the people to buy, as revealed by income-tax returns and number of telephones and automobiles, and also the number of trade outlets in the building group, it being an accepted theory that selling has a distinct ratio to the opportunity to buy.

In setting up the figures the statisticians used $1,000,000,000 as the amount probably required to repair and modernize the dwellings of the country which have been so sorely neglected during the last few years of uncertainty. From this figure a quota was made up on what share of it would be spent on an individual dwelling as an average.

The amount for the District of Columbia, with 84,903 dwellings, was greater than for any other political division in the country, $70.67. This is natural enough, since it is small in area and almost entirely urban. In addition, there are a large number of two-family dwellings and apartment houses.

Climate Influence

The obvious fact that climatic conditions influence the cost of dwellings is substantiated by further examination of the figures. The quota for the states that experience severe winters is high.

Here is the tabulation, by states, showing the quota for each dwelling: New York, $64.55; Pennsylvania, $41.81; Illinois, $48.30; Ohio, $41.36; California, $42.76; Michigan, $42.20; Texas, $31.98; New Jersey, $56.85; Massachusetts, $51.19; Missouri, $37.06; Indiana, $36.72; Wisconsin, $44.86; Iowa, $41.39. Minnesota, $44.28; Kansas, $40.97; Oklahoma, $32.28; Kentucky, $28.25; North Carolina, $26.05; Connecticut, $53.47; Georgia, $24.90; Washington, $36.60; Nebraska, $42.95; Virginia, $28.42; Tennessee, $28.08; Maryland, $37.56; Alabama, $23.44.

New Hampshire, $39.33; Montana, $31.53; Idaho, $38.84; Utah, $37.81; Vermont, $37.76; Arizona, $30.42; New Mexico, $32.42; Delaware, $36.40; Wyoming, $37.34; Nevada, $41.85.

Built-in Comfort, Efficiency

The illustration above gives a graphic idea of the advantages to be derived from built-in effects in home decoration. The glass and china cabinets flanking the arch in the foreground are not only decorative but utilize space that otherwise would be wasted. In the living room seen through the archway, built-in bookcases on both sides of the fireplace lend balance to the interior and perform a similar function to the cabinets by putting to work wall space that under other circumstances would have no utility. The paneled mirror above the mantel is another modern feature which creates an interesting detail and lends a suggestion of spaciousness to the room. Built-in features also minimize furniture requirements and tend to give a room an air of simplicity. Such improvements to existing property come under the provisions of the Federal Housing Administration's Modernization Credit Plan. Many home owners are realizing the value of built-in effects and a large amount of modernization projects already completed throughout the country have included such improvements in one form or another.

'FARMERETTE' TO SHOW BENEFIT OF RURAL LIFE

SEATTLE, Wash.—Similar in nature to "model home" exploitation, the Puget Mill company here has designed and is laying out a "farmette," to educate the public in the possibilities of farm modernization under the provisions of the national housing act. The "farmette" will occupy one acre within the city limits. A modest residence will be erected with the grounds laid out in typical farm fashion, with fruit trees, kitchen garden, chicken yard and other farm accessories.

Much attention is being attracted to the project by a large scale model of the "farmette" which is on exhibition in a window of the Seattle Trust company. The Puget Mill company owns several tracts within the city limits and intend to divide them into single acre plots for "farmette" developments.

FACTORY UPTURN SIGN OF RECOVERY

The factory in question was operated by a family of four, a widow and three children. Like many others, they knew the struggles that came with the depression and gradually they reached a state of literal destitution. Somehow they managed to hold on in the face of it.

About eight months ago orders came rolling in. Business boomed. The little mill added more labor until the factory operated three 8-hour shifts. Recently the chairman of the board sought to buy out the widow's interest. She was given $61,000 in cash for her share, which a year ago couldn't produce enough money to feed her family.

BOY BURNED AS SACRIFICE

WALL PAPERS GIVE VARIETY

Usage Increases In Hotels, Apartments And Other Buildings

Standardization of design and construction cuts building and operating costs for the hotel or apartment house operator—but it tends to produce monotony. The traveling and renting public likes charm and individuality in hostelries as well as at home.

Nationally known operators realize this and achieve individuality in spite of the hundreds of rooms in each hotel. They use the modern washable wallpapers securing variety by several different colors of each of a number of different wallpaper patterns.

Apartment operators find that by hanging wallpapers of designs suited to the architecture of the building and the history of the region they secure that most favorable of all tenant reactions—the willingness to pay a profit-carrying rent.

The advent of absolute colorfastness followed by the much appreciated washability feature has increased the usefulness of wallpaper. Added to the fact that wallpaper can be hung in the morning and the rooms occupied the same day without fear of unpleasant odor or harm to the surface, accounted for a 40 per cent increase in sales of wallpaper to hotels and apartment houses in 1934 over 1933.

Funds for repapering are available under terms of the Modernization Credit Plan at any financial institution holding an insurance contract with the Federal Housing admininsration.

The orang-utan sleeps in the swaying tree tops without fear of falling. His hands automatically lock themselves to the boughs with a vise-like grip.

Child's Attic Studio Will Bring Out Talent

When a child has reached the age to be interested in painting, sculpture, and other arts, a special studio for this work will do much toward developing his talents.

A portion of the attic can be remodeled into an attractive studio room. If there is insufficient light, a dormer may be added, or the window in the gable end may be enlarged. In some cases, glass shingles or a skylight may be used.

A space large enough to hold a good sized work table, cases for materials and books, a comfortable chair or two, and perhaps a small couch should be partitioned from the remaining unfinished attic space. If the studio is left open, it will lack a feeling of intimacy and seclusion. The child needs a room it can close off from the rest of the household.

The floor should be durable, bright, and attractive. Linoleum or some other composition floor covering in colors is appropriate. Many interesting tile inserts are available. A pattern of brightly colored animals placed on a dark blue or green base may interest the child. Such floors are also easy to clean.

The walls should be a restful color—soft green or blues are attractive. Cut-out paper murals applied to the finished surface and shellaced will create definite areas of interest and at the same time maintain a restful effect.

The furnishings can be very gay—clear yellows or oranges, bright blue greens contrasted with white, and many other combinations dependent on the colors in floor and walls. Most of the furniture can be built-in, and the cabinetmaker can build the work table while he is there for the built-in pieces. This table should stand free in the center of the room or nearest the best light and should have a washable surface.

With proper planning, an attractive attic studio room can be added for quite a small cost. Modernization credit loans insured by the Federal Housing administration are available for this type of work.

REPAIR FLUES IN HOT MONTHS

Fireplace Renovations Possible Under Federal Housing Program

Summer is an ideal season in which to repair fireplaces and faulty flues. Such repairs may be effected by obtaining modernization credit from any financial institution approved by the Federal Housing administration.

There are various causes for smoking fireplaces. A flue opening that is too small for the size of the fireplace opening may cause smoking. The area of the fireplace opening should not be more than 12 1-2 times the net area of the flue section. Also the fireplace may be too shallow. Ordinarily, it should be 18 inches to 20 inches deep. Very little advantage is to be obtained from larger fireplace openings in deeper fireplaces. The sides should not be perpendicular. They should be splayed or constructed so that they slant inward and upward to the flue. This will help radiate heat out into the room. If it is found that a fire burns on only one side, this may be due to the unequal slope of the sides of the smoke chamber. Both sides should be sloped to the same angle.

Tops of chimneys should not be lower than within 2 feet of the ridge of sloping roofs and 3 feet over flat roofs. If there are large trees near the chimney, however, its height should be increased. In contemplating fireplace repair it is advisable to solicit the service and advice of an expert.

Although snakes prefer dry land, all of them are able to swim. No one has ever seen a snake which has been drowned.

---"AMORTIZE"---

Today, you can amortize a mortgage, and "kill off" the debt in easy payments. This means you can own your own home and pay for it conveniently, by the month, just as you pay rent. An amortized mortgage is one which is gradually paid off—in other words, "killed by easy stages." It's the new way, the sensible way to real home ownership.

You pay off, each month, a part of the principal, along with interest, charges, taxes, and insurance. You can pay over a period of 10, 15, or 20 years—so that the installments come within your means.

At the end of that time the mortgage has been completely amortized. THE DEBT IS DEAD. Your home is actually yours—free and clear.

Let us show you, with figures based on your own income, how you can build, buy, or refinance a home with a single amortized insured mortgage.

A pattern of brightly colored animals placed on a dark blue or green base may interest the child. Such floors are also easy to clean.

The walls should be a restful color—soft green or blues are attractive. Cut-out paper murals applied to the finished surface and shellaced will create definite areas of interest and at the same time maintain a restful effect.

The furnishings can be very gay—clear yellows or oranges, bright blue greens contrasted with white, and many other combinations dependent on the colors in floor and walls. Most of the furniture can be built-in, and the cabinetmaker can build the work table while he is there for the built-in pieces. This table should stand free in the center of the room or nearest the best light and should have a washable surface.

With proper planning, an attractive attic studio room can be added for quite a small cost. Modernization credit loans insured by the Federal Housing administration are available for this type of work.

REPAIR FLUES IN HOT MONTHS

Fireplace Renovations Possible Under Federal Housing Program

Summer is an ideal season in which to repair fireplaces and faulty flues. Such repairs may be effected by obtaining modernization credit from any financial institution approved by the Federal Housing administration.

There are various causes for smoking fireplaces. A flue opening that is too small for the size of the fireplace opening may cause smoking. The area of the fireplace opening should not be more than 12 1-2 times the net area of the flue section. Also the fireplace may be too shallow. Ordinarily, it should be 18 inches to 20 inches deep. Very little advantage is to be obtained from larger fireplace openings in deeper fireplaces. The sides should not be perpendicular. They should be splayed or constructed so that they slant inward and upward to the flue. This will help radiate heat out into the room. If it is found that a fire burns on only one side, this may be due to the unequal slope of the sides of the smoke chamber. Both sides should be sloped to the same angle.

Tops of chimneys should not be lower than within 2 feet of the ridge of sloping roofs and 3 feet over flat roofs. If there are large trees near the chimney, however, its height should be increased. In contemplating fireplace repair it is advisable to solicit the service and advice of an expert.

Although snakes prefer dry land, all of them are able to swim. No one has ever seen a snake which has been drowned.

The Home-Loving Romans Had a Name For It

---"AMORTIZE"---

Today, you can amortize a mortgage, and "kill off" the debt in easy payments. This means you can own your own home and pay for it conveniently, by the month, just as you pay rent. An amortized mortgage is one which is gradually paid off—in other words, "killed by easy stages." It's the new way, the sensible way to real home ownership.

You pay off, each month, a part of the principal, along with interest, charges, taxes, and insurance. You can pay over a period of 10, 15, or 20 years—so that the installments come within your means.

At the end of that time the mortgage has been completely amortized. THE DEBT IS DEAD. Your home is actually yours—free and clear.

Let us show you, with figures based on your own income, how you can build, buy, or refinance a home with a single amortized insured mortgage.

Dr. F. Crossley Morgan Will Conduct Bible Conferences At Local Church

Dr. F. Crossley Morgan, of Augusta, Ga., who has in the past conducted Bible conferences at the First Presbyterian church, will return on September 29 to hold similar services which will continue until October 4. There will be meetings each morning at 10 o'clock and at 7:30 p. m. daily.

Dr. Morgan is the son of the world-famed Dr. G. Campbell Morgan of London, England, and is said to possess much of the ability of his noted father.

He received a liberal education in his native England and was distinguished for his outstanding services in the World war. He was decorated by King George for his "gallantry in action."

He was ordained to the ministry December 31, 1920, and has served as pastor of a number of large churches, notably the First Presbyterian church in Augusta, Ga.

He has lectured on the Bible at many conferences. On December 31, 1931, he resigned his pastorate at Augusta so as to give all his time to the holding of Bible conferences. Conferences have been held in the following cities by Dr. Morgan: Elizabeth, N. J., Spartanburg, S. C., Columbus, Miss., Chattanooga, Tenn., Decature, Ga., Atlanta, Ga., Philadelphia, Pa., Memphis, Tenn., and many other places.

BANDITS TAKE SUMMER RESORT

One hundred bandits recently captured the summer resort of Erhtientantze, on the eastern section of the Chinese Eastern railway, a midnight after an attack lasting three hours. The desperadoes plundered the place, and just before departing with three Russian vacationers as hostages, set fire to the town in several places. Reports received at Harbin, Manchuria, said one Russian was killed.

MEMORIAL SERVICES HELD FOR FORMER COURT CLERK

MARION, La., Sept. 21.—(Special)—Memorial exercises were held in the district court of Union parish at Farmerville Friday for W. B. Dawkins, who was chief deputy clerk of the court for about 15 years. He died in August.

Appropriate resolutions of respect were read in open court and spread on the minutes of the court, the resolutions committee being composed of Harvey G. Fields, Edward Everett, Jr., and Boyd K. Watson. In addition to the committee, T. C. Bergeron addressed the court. The court and members of the bar were thanked for their action in holding the exercises by J. R. Dawkins, brother of the deceased.

MONROE DELEGATION OFF TO LEGION CONVENTION

No special train from Monroe to St. Louis for the national convention of the American Legion will be operated, it was announced Saturday, as it was impossible to secure the 75 persons that were required.

However, a large delegation from here, representing the legion and auxiliary, are to attend. Many of the group left Saturday night and others will leave tonight.

Dr. C. L. Mengis, official of the Forty and Eight, estimated that 25 or more will attend from Monroe and vicinity. He left with the delegation bound for St. Louis last night.

BLOCK HIGH SCHOOL ENROLLS 645 PUPILS

JONESVILLE, La., Sept. 21.—(Special)—Professor F. S. Shiel in a recent statement gave out the fact that Block High school opened Monday with 645 children in attendance; 509 in the grammar grades and 136 in the high school department.

It was necessary to lengthen some of the regular van routes operating to and from the school and add several new vans in order to take care of the increased number of students.

One addition has been made to the school faculty this year which does much to improve conditions in school which was crowded to the capacity last year, but the main difficulty is finding seating room for those already in attendance.

Mr. Shiel stated that there is a possibility of the student personnel reaching the 880 mark by mid-term. He announced that desks have been installed in the auditorium and in some rooms two students are being placed in one desk.

Many of the children who are yet to enroll at Block High are being detained until after the crops are gathered.

Catahoula Named After A Beautiful Indian Girl

HARRISONBURG, La., Sept. 21.—(Special)—When the beautiful Kohito said, "Catahoula! Catahoula!" Catahoula parish was named.

The late Henry E. Hardtner, who built up one of the largest industries in north Louisiana, and whose mill will never "cut out," secured the Legend of Catahoula from the Indians and published his version in the Jena Times, December 16, 1906, and reprinted in October, 1927, by J. P. Wade, the present publisher.

The legend, which covers almost a newspaper page, tells of a large tribe of Indians—the Choctaws—whose chief controlled more than half of the land south of Red river. He had a young daughter whose beauty was unusual for an Indian girl. She had suitors from the Dakotas, the Araphoes, the Apaches, and all over the country. Her father, a stern old chief, implored her to marry one of these but she refused.

According to the writings of Mr. Hardtner, the legend dates back to 1565 when the powerful Choctaws made their permanent headquarters in Terrebonne parish where the town of Houma is now located. Being at the junction of a half dozen bayous, their outlets were plentiful. Corn was easily grown and fish were abundant.

The legend has it that Don Juan Gonzales, a trader working with Pedro Menendez a Spanish explorer who founded a colony in Florida, came to the tribe. Forsaking his company, he sought the hand of Kohito, the Indian princess, the only daughter of the old chief. In a rage the father forbade her to see the Spaniard again but she reputedly went on a hunger strike until finally the old man told her to marry him and smile again.

As time went on Don Juan tired of Kohito and resumed his trading, being away for months at a time. In 1572, a plague hit the Choctaws and many of the warriors died. The medicine man ordered Don Juan and his wife Kohito to leave with their two children, a beautiful daughter, Victorie and cherubic son, Gomez and take fifty warriors and go to the highlands north of Red river. The fever had almost sapped their strength and there being little rainfall, they prayed for water from heaven.

Arriving in Catahoula parish, near White Sulphur Springs, the party halted. Kohito, who had lost consciousness, awakened by the cataract in one of the brooks on which they were camped, asked to have her litter removed nearer the water. Looking down at the crystal whiteness of the stream, she exclaimed, "Catahoula! Catahoula!" which Mr. Hardtner explained meant in the language of the Choctaw, "white water, clear water."

The water from the Medicine Springs brought Kohito and the party back to health again and they decided to make it a permanent camping place. Tepees were erected and everybody was happy again. Don Juan was almost civil to his family, and little Victorie was growing prettier every day.

Finally a band of Spanish traders came along and Don Juan decided to join them and to take Victorie to a convent. Kohito begged that she might be taken along and that she would not make them ashamed of her. Victorie exclaimed, "Ashamed of you, and you the daughter of a king?"

Don Juan started to strike Kohito and Kohito exclaimed, "Why did you marry me, only a Choctaw girl?"

Three years passed, and Gomez had reached the age of six, his mother was teaching him to hate all white men and trusted that he would grow to be a fierce warrior who would avenge the wrong a white man had done her. She was making good headway with her teachings when Don Juan returned and on bended knees begged Kohito's forgiveness but Kohito would not give in to his pleadings. However, Gomez was falling for the wiles of his bewitching father. It was too much for the heartbroken Kohito. While Juan and a party of warriors were out on a hunting trip she dressed in her wedding clothing, donned beads and beaded slippers, and dressed Gomez in gaudy clothing, with a gaudier belt of wampum.

"Why are we dressing, Mama?" little Gomez queried.

"We're going to my father. There he cannot come and beat me and steal away my beloved," she answered.

"The canoe is sinking, Mama!" Gomez shrieked.

"My father beckons me to come with him and the Great Spirit and I must go."

That was the last ever seen of the beautiful Kohito, who paddled her canoe toward the center of Catahoula lake. The legend does not tell what became of Victorie or Don Juan. Today a small number of Indians, said to be descendants of the Choctaws, still live near Eden, in LaSalle parish. Although they have been supplied with a school, the Indians still carry on their old customs and observe the same rituals of their ancestors. They are rarely seen in the towns nearby.

LaSalle parish, where the scene of the legend was said to have been laid, was at one time a part of Catahoula parish and it was largely through the efforts of the late Mr. Hardtner that the parish was divided. At the time the parish was in a process of division, it was the intention of the leaders to name it Beauregard. In the conclusion of the legend, Mr. Hardtner expressed the hope that the parish seat of the parish would be named for Kohito but that hope was never realized.

Mr. Hardtner's poetic imagination told him that even the mocking birds had caught the word "Catahoula!" from Kohito and that even to this day they could be heard cheerfully chirping "Catahoula." He used many glittering superlatives in his descriptions of the creeks, rivulets, and brooks, which natives and visitors say was not exaggerating their beauty in the least.

When the parish was divided, Catahoula lake, with an area of about 150 square miles, was in LaSalle, the new parish. Many people of LaSalle parish regard themselves as Catahoulans and still feel a kindly interest in the affairs of the mother parish.

Catahoula lake had never been known to go dry until a few years ago, when the low water left it a barren prairie with here and there a marsh filled with tall grass which makes fine hay. In many parts of the lake the ground is hard and hunters have been known to drive their cars at a high rate of speed, chasing ducks and geese. The hard sandy bottom allowed people to go almost anywhere they desired on the lake, which is about ten miles wide and fifteen miles long, or approximately those dimensions.

A. L. Swayze, Jonesville game warden, is working hard to get the Little river at Jonesville closed to navigation by a levee, thus keeping Catahoula lake filled with water as well as the score of bayous and creeks leading into the large body of water. Mr. Swayze points out that the big fishing industry and sportsman's paradise will be restored if such is done and again, people can look at the beautiful body of water and say, "Catahoula! Catahoula!"

NEWLY MARRIED COUPLE TO RESIDE IN TALLULAH

TALLULAH, La., Sept. 21.—(Special)—Lowell S. Osborne, son of Rev. and Mrs. W. F. Osborne of Joliet, Ill., and Miss Eleanor Gwendolyn Mosier, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Mosier of Chicago, were married in Rayville recently by the Rev. James T. Harris, pastor of the Methodist church. The couple will reside in Tallulah, where Mr. Osborne is employed by a logging concern.

LASALLE CLERK OF COURT IS UP FOR RE-ELECTION

JENA, La., Sept. 21.—(Special)—Q. R. Hudson, clerk of court of LaSalle parish, has announced his candidacy for re-election. Mr. Hudson has been clerk since 1924 and during his term of office an index system has been installed by him. W. L. Parker, who has been assessor of the parish since 1924, also announced his candidacy for re-election.

JENA AND OLLA FUTURE FARMERS SELECT OFFICERS

The Jena officers are: Woodie Doshler, president; Bill Hodges, vice-president; Marion Ford, secretary; T. A. Breithaupt, treasurer; K. E. Osterberger, advisor.

The Olla officers are: Willard Ethridge, president; Mathew Meredith, vice-president; Don Tousley, secretary; Arvel Randall, treasurer; Beverly Boyd, reporter; H. Vinyard, advisor. The president appointed program, budget, objectives and fair committees which consisted of the following members: Matthew Meredith, Don Tousley, Don Steer, Harry Griffin, James Elliott, George Fritz, John Blake, Vernon Cantwell, Bennett Boss, Fay Brooks, William Holloman, and Reggie Parham.

Harry D. Wilson, state commissioner of agriculture and immigration, is expected to be the chief speaker on the opening night of the North Central Louisiana fair which is to be held in Olla October 8 to 12, inclusive.

Parish Agent L. O. Sumrall says that the agricultural exhibits at the fair this year will be far better than ever before. Prizes being offered for the best individual exhibits are: First $50; second, $35; third, $15, and fourth, $10.

The fair management is receiving requests about school and home demonstration exhibits, parade on the opening night, the baby show, the parish exhibits, 4-H exhibits, livestock, poultry, canning, sewing and Smith-Hughes exhibits, all of which are expected to surpass those of previous years at the fair.

LASALLE PARISH POLICE JURY EMPLOYS ENGINEER

JENA, La., Sept. 21.—(Special)—F. C. Green of Catahoula parish has been employed by the LaSalle parish police jury as engineer to prepare projects to be submitted to the WPA authorities on certain roads located in LaSalle parish.

The police jury also went on record as requesting the judges and district attorney that the grand and petit jury terms of court, usually held in the fall in Jena, be discontinued this year. This request was made in view of the fact that no serious crimes have been committed in the parish since the jury term in the spring and that the parish treasury is almost depleted.

JENA AMERICAN LEGION POST INSTALLS OFFICERS

BLOCK HIGH SCHOOL ENROLLS 645 PUPILS

JONESVILLE, La., Sept. 21.—(Special)—Professor F. S. Shiel in a recent statement gave out the fact that Block High school opened Monday with 645 children in attendance; 509 in the grammar grades and 136 in the high school department.

It was necessary to lengthen some of the regular van routes operating to and from the school and add several new vans in order to take care of the increased number of students.

One addition has been made to the school faculty this year which does much to improve conditions in school which was crowded to the capacity last year, but the main difficulty is finding seating room for those already in attendance.

Mr. Shiel stated that there is a possibility of the student personnel reaching the 880 mark by mid-term. He announced that desks have been installed in the auditorium and in some rooms two students are being placed in one desk.

Many of the children who are yet to enroll at Block High are being detained until after the crops are gathered.

LAURA INGALLS SETS NEW PLANE SPEED RECORD

Here is petite Laura Ingalls as she arrived at New York after a record-breaking flight from Los Angeles. She made the trip in 13 hours, 34 minutes and five seconds, breaking the old record for women fliers set by Amelia Earhart. Had her radio compass been functioning, Miss Ingalls might have landed seven minutes earlier and tied the non-stop record for both men and women held by Frank Hawks. (Associated Press Photo)

Catahoula Named After A Beautiful Indian Girl

HARRISONBURG, La., Sept. 21.—(Special)—When the beautiful Kohito said, "Catahoula! Catahoula!" Catahoula parish was named.

The late Henry E. Hardtner, who built up one of the largest industries in north Louisiana, and whose mill will never "cut out," secured the Legend of Catahoula from the Indians and published his version in the Jena Times, December 16, 1906, and reprinted in October, 1927, by J. P. Wade, the present publisher.

The legend, which covers almost a newspaper page, tells of a large tribe of Indians—the Choctaws—whose chief controlled more than half of the land south of Red river. He had a young daughter whose beauty was unusual for an Indian girl. She had suitors from the Dakotas, the Araphoes, the Apaches, and all over the country. Her father, a stern old chief, implored her to marry one of these but she refused.

According to the writings of Mr. Hardtner, the legend dates back to 1565 when the powerful Choctaws made their permanent headquarters in Terrebonne parish where the town of Houma is now located. Being at the junction of a half dozen bayous, their outlets were plentiful. Corn was easily grown and fish were abundant.

The legend has it that Don Juan Gonzales, a trader working with Pedro Menendez a Spanish explorer who founded a colony in Florida, came to the tribe. Forsaking his company, he sought the hand of Kohito, the Indian princess, the only daughter of the old chief. In a rage the father forbade her to see the Spaniard again but she reputedly went on a hunger strike until finally the old man told her to marry him and smile again.

As time went on Don Juan tired of Kohito and resumed his trading, being away for months at a time. In 1572, a plague hit the Choctaws and many of the warriors died. The medicine man ordered Don Juan and his wife Kohito to leave with their two children, a beautiful daughter, Victorie and cherubic son, Gomez and take fifty warriors and go to the highlands north of Red river. The fever had almost sapped their strength and there being little rainfall, they prayed for water from heaven.

Arriving in Catahoula parish, near White Sulphur Springs, the party halted. Kohito, who had lost consciousness, awakened by the cataract in one of the brooks on which they were camped, asked to have her litter removed nearer the water. Looking down at the crystal whiteness of the stream, she exclaimed, "Catahoula! Catahoula!" which Mr. Hardtner explained meant in the language of the Choctaw, "white water, clear water."

The water from the Medicine Springs brought Kohito and the party back to health again and they decided to make it a permanent camping place. Tepees were erected and everybody was happy again. Don Juan was almost civil to his family, and little Victorie was growing prettier every day.

Finally a band of Spanish traders came along and Don Juan decided to join them and to take Victorie to a convent. Kohito begged that she might be taken along and that she would not make them ashamed of her. Victorie exclaimed, "Ashamed of you and you the daughter of a king?"

Don Juan started to strike Kohito and Kohito exclaimed, "Why did you marry me, only a Choctaw girl?"

Three years passed, and Gomez had reached the age of six, his mother was teaching him to hate all white men and trusted that he would grow to be a fierce warrior who would avenge the wrong a white man had done her. She was making good headway with her teachings when Don Juan returned and on bended knees begged Kohito's forgiveness but Kohito would not give in to his pleadings. However, Gomez was falling for the wiles of his bewitching father. It was too much for the heartbroken Kohito. While Juan and a party of warriors were out on a hunting trip she dressed in her wedding clothing, donned beads and beaded slippers, and dressed Gomez in gaudy clothing, with a gaudier belt of wampum.

"Why are we dressing, Mama?" little Gomez queried.

"We're going to my father. There he cannot come and beat me and steal away my beloved," she answered.

"The canoe is sinking, Mama!" Gomez shrieked.

"My father beckons me to come with him and the Great Spirit and I must go."

That was the last ever seen of the beautiful Kohito, who paddled her canoe toward the center of Catahoula lake. The legend does not tell what became of Victorie or Don Juan. Today a small number of Indians, said to be descendants of the Choctaws, still live near Eden, in LaSalle parish. Although they have been supplied with a school, the Indians still carry on their old customs and observe the same rituals of their ancestors. They are rarely seen in the towns nearby.

LaSalle parish, where the scene of the legend was said to have been laid, was at one time a part of Catahoula parish and it was largely through the efforts of the late Mr. Hardtner that the parish was divided. At the time the parish was in a process of division, it was the intention of the leaders to name it Beauregard. In the conclusion of the legend, Mr. Hardtner expressed the hope that the parish seat of the parish would be named for Kohito but that hope was never realized.

Mr. Hardtner's poetic imagination told him that even the mocking birds had caught the word "Catahoula!" from Kohito and that even to this day they could be heard cheerfully chirping "Catahoula." He used many glittering superlatives in his descriptions of the creeks, rivulets, and brooks, which natives and visitors say was not exaggerating their beauty in the least.

When the parish was divided, Catahoula lake, with an area of about 150 square miles, was in LaSalle, the new parish. Many people of LaSalle parish regard themselves as Catahoulans and still feel a kindly interest in the affairs of the mother parish.

Catahoula lake had never been known to go dry until a few years ago, when the low water left it a barren prairie with here and there a marsh filled with tall grass which makes fine hay. In many parts of the lake the ground is hard and hunters have been known to drive their cars at a high rate of speed, chasing ducks and geese. The hard sandy bottom allowed people to go almost anywhere they desired on the lake, which is about ten miles wide and fifteen miles long, or approximately those dimensions.

A. L. Swayze, Jonesville game warden, is working hard to get the Little river at Jonesville closed to navigation by a levee, thus keeping Catahoula lake filled with water as well as the score of bayous and creeks leading into the large body of water. Mr. Swayze points out that the big fishing industry and sportsman's paradise will be restored if such is done and again, people can look at the beautiful body of water and say, "Catahoula! Catahoula!"

NEWLY MARRIED COUPLE TO RESIDE IN TALLULAH

TALLULAH, La., Sept. 21.—(Special)—Lowell S. Osborne, son of Rev. and Mrs. W. F. Osborne of Joliet, Ill., and Miss Eleanor Gwendolyn Mosier, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Mosier of Chicago, were married in Rayville recently by the Rev. James T. Harris, pastor of the Methodist church. The couple will reside in Tallulah, where Mr. Osborne is employed by a logging concern.

LASALLE CLERK OF COURT IS UP FOR RE-ELECTION

JENA, La., Sept. 21.—(Special)—Q. R. Hudson, clerk of court of LaSalle parish, has announced his candidacy for re-election. Mr. Hudson has been clerk since 1924 and during his term of office an index system has been installed by him. W. L. Parker, who has been assessor of the parish since 1924, also announced his candidacy for re-election.

JENA AND OLLA FUTURE FARMERS SELECT OFFICERS

The Jena officers are: Woodie Doshier, president; Bill Hodges, vice-president; Marion Ford, secretary; T. A. Breithaupt, treasurer; K. E. Osterberger, advisor.

The Olla officers are: Willard Ethridge, president; Mathew Meredith, vice-president; Don Tousley, secretary; Arvel Randall, treasurer; Beverly Boyd, reporter; H. Vinyard, advisor. The president appointed program, budget, objectives and fair committees which consisted of the following members: Matthew Meredith, Don Tousley, Don Steer, Harry Griffin, James Elliott, George Fritz, John Blake, Vernon Cantwell, Bennett Boss, Fay Brooks, William Holloman, and Reggie Parham.

Harry D. Wilson, state commissioner of agriculture and immigration, is expected to be the chief speaker on the opening night of the North Central Louisiana fair which is to be held in Olla October 8 to 12, inclusive.

Parish Agent L. O. Sumrall says that the agricultural exhibits at the fair this year will be far better than ever before. Prizes being offered for the best individual exhibits are: First $50; second, $35; third, $15, and fourth, $10.

The fair management is receiving requests about school and home demonstration exhibits, parade on the opening night, the baby show, the parish exhibits, 4-H exhibits, livestock, poultry, canning, sewing and Smith-Hughes exhibits, all of which are expected to surpass those of previous years at the fair.

LASALLE PARISH POLICE JURY EMPLOYS ENGINEER

JENA, La., Sept. 21.—(Special)—F. C. Green of Catahoula parish has been employed by the LaSalle parish police jury as engineer to prepare projects to be submitted to the WPA authorities on certain roads located in LaSalle parish.

The police jury also went on record as requesting the judges and district attorney that the grand and petit jury terms of court, usually held in the fall in Jena, be discontinued this year. This request was made in view of the fact that no serious crimes have been committed in the parish since the jury term in the spring and that the parish treasury is almost depleted.

JENA AMERICAN LEGION POST INSTALLS OFFICERS

BEFORE HIS MYSTIFIED FOES COULD FATHOM HIS DISAPPEARANCE, HIS WARRIORS HAULED HIM ABOARD.

THE MEN OF THALGAARD HAILED HIM AS A HERO, AND THEY WERE PROUD TO SERVE UNDER HIS COMMAND.

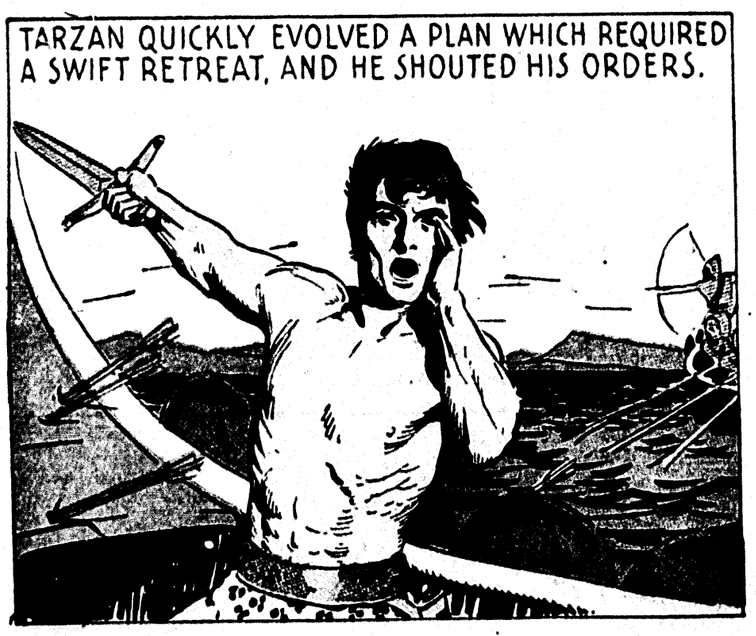

NOW THE APE-MAN SURVEYED THE BATTLE SCENE, AND HIS HEART WAS HEAVY, BECAUSE HE FORESAW DEFEAT.

FOUR OF ERIK'S SHIPS HAD BEEN DESTROYED, BUT THE ENEMY FIRE-BRANDS HAD RAVAGED THREE THALGAARD VESSELS.

HIS WARRIORS WERE ASTONISHED AND RESENTFUL. "NO!" THEY CRIED. "THE MEN OF THALGAARD ARE PLEDGED NEVER TO RETREAT!"

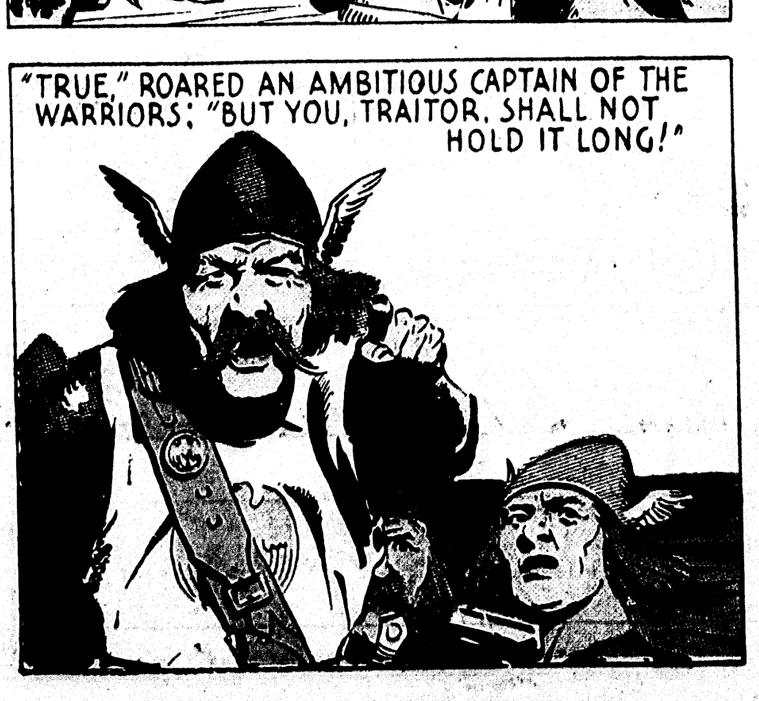

NOW TARZAN BRANDISHED THE SWORD HE HAD TAKEN FROM THEIR WOUNDED KING, THE SWORD WHICH SYMBOLIZED MILITARY COMMAND

KNOWING WELL THE SACREDNESS OF VIKING OATHS, HE CRIED: "YOU ARE SWORN ALSO TO OBEY HIM WHO HOLDS THIS SWORD!"

"TRUE," ROARED AN AMBITIOUS CAPTAIN OF THE WARRIORS; "BUT YOU, TRAITOR, SHALL NOT HOLD IT LONG!"

WITH THESE RESOLUTE WORDS, THE MUTINOUS CAPTAIN CHARGED UPON TARZAN!

THIS IS TREASON!

POOF

NOT SO FAST, NIKKY, OLD POY. I LEFT ORDERS—IF YOU PULL ANY MONKEY SHINES, DER MUNITIONS PLANTS VILL BE BLOWN UP!

VELL, BETTER YOU VATCH OUT, HEYLOFF.

VOT!

CHUST VAIT! I'LL SETTLE DOT BOOBLES HASH.

JUST THEN, THERE IS ANOTHER ENEMY AIR RAID.

POW!

HELP! SAFE US!

RUN FOR YOUR LIFE!

BLAM!

BLOOM!

DUNNER BLITZEN! NOW DEY GOT SIX PLANES.

SINGLE HANDED, SUH?

YOU HEARD ME! VIPE 'EM OUT UF DER SKY!

MEANWHILE, THE MUNITIONS KING OF NIKKATEENA HAS WORDS WITH THE CZAR.

CONFOUND IT, HEYLOFF! I CAN'T WIN A WAR WITHOUT MUNITIONS.

DICK TRACY

by CHESTER GOULD

OH, THERE ARE LOTS WORSE THINGS THAN BEING BLIND-I GUESS... THAT IS - LOTS WORSE THINGS THAN BEING BLIND IN THE EYES.

FOR INSTANCE, BEING BLIND TO RIGHT AND WRONG- BEING BLIND TO FRIENDS. THAT'S THE WORST KIND OF BLINDNESS.

YOU'RE NOT AFFLICTED WITH THAT KIND, TOBY..WE ALL KNOW IT NOW.

IT JUST SEEMS A MIGHTY STIFF PRICE TO PAY FOR THE LITTLE SIDE STEP YOU MADE, TOBY.

MR. TRACY.. IF THERE WERE ONLY SOME WAY OF BRINGING HOME TO OTHER YOUNG PEOPLE-HOW LITTLE INSIGNIFICANT MISDEEDS CAN LEAD TO SUCH TRAGIC RESULTS.

I KNOW-

AND YOU'RE SURE YOU DON'T WANT TO RETURN TO YOUR FAMILY OUT WEST?

NO-NO! THEY WOULD NEVER UNDERSTAND! JUST LET ME STAY HERE WITH YOU, MRS. STEELE, PLEASE. I'LL WORK WITHOUT PAY.. LET ME MAKE AMENDS. I CAN STILL BE CASHIER IN THE "COFFEE POT."

THERE ARE WAYS FOR THE BLIND TO LEARN TO READ AND WRITE..I'LL WORK.. REALLY I WILL.. I WON'T BE A BURDEN TO YOU.

THAT'S MIGHTY SWEET OF YOU, TOBY.. ....I'M SURE IT CAN BE ARRANGED.

WHAT DO YOU SAY- LET'S GO DOWN TO THE "COFFEE POT." I JUST WANT TO FEEL MYSELF BACK THERE AGAIN... ..I WANT TO "SEE" THE PLACE.

THERE THEY GO, OSCAR. SHE HAS TO HAVE SOME ONE LEAD HER AROUND EVERY-WHERE SHE GOES.

DON'T YOU SEE? THIS IS A CHANCE FOR YOU TO BE A BIG SHOT--WHY, TOBY WON'T HAVE TO DEPEND ON ANYBODY, IF YOU CATCH ONTO THIS.

NOW, COME ON, LET'S PRACTICE GOING AROUND THE BLOCK AGAIN... REMEMBER, STAY ON THE SIDEWALK..AND WATCH FOR AUTOS AT THE STREETS AND ALLEYS.

ATTA BOY! YOU'RE DOING FINE! WHY, WITH YOUR INTELLIGENCE AND A LITTLE TRAINING, SHE'LL HAVE THE BEST ESCORT IN TOWN.
